Every American citizen should make up his mind to visit Washington at least once, and personally size up his Government.

HOOVER SEEKS AID OF NATION IN BUDGET CUT

Special Interests Hit in Stern Forecast of General Slash.

ECONOMY TO REACH EVERY DEPARTMENT

Navy Band, 2 Yards, Hospital Here, Ship Constitution, 7,000 Jobs to Go.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

President Hoover yesterday called on the country to support him in his budget-slashing campaign in the Navy and other departments of the Government.

In times like these, when the country is confronted with a large deficit, he said, even meritorious projects must be deferred. And, he added in a sterner note, they "will" be deferred.

Pointing out that in various localities there are "special interests" seeking appropriations for particular projects, the President said that "public opinion in support of drastic economies will need to reach into these directions."

Oral Plea Given News Men.

The President issued his appeal orally, as he stood before his desk at the White House and faced 50 or more newspaper correspondents.

That the President had threatened to carry his fight to the country became known last month. At that time, it developed that the President was extremely angry with certain individuals in the Navy Department, who, in his opinion, had started a "backfire" against his economy program.

This backfire continued yesterday, not from the Navy Department, but from those communities which have the ax of economy hanging over them—from Boston, where it is proposed to close down the old navy yard; from Charleston, where it is planned to close another navy yard, and from fashionable Newport, where the big naval training station is listed for closing.

Britten to Fight for Hospital.

Here in Washington Representative Fred Britten (Republican), of Illinois, chairman of the House committee on naval affairs, served notice that he would fight the proposal to postpone construction of a new Naval Hospital at Twenty-third street and Potomac Park.

Describing the temporary war-time structures that now house most of the patients as "dangerous fire traps," Mr. Britten said that he would introduce an amendment calling for $750,000 to start work on the proposed $3,000,000 structure. Congress has authorized the hospital and has

Bomb Perils 1,000; Explodes in Pocket

Carrier and Fireman Only Ones Hurt in Burst in Chicago Theater.

Chicago, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—More than 1,000 persons in a Southwest Side moving picture theater were thrown into a panic tonight when a bomb exploded almost in the center of the place. Police said the bomb was in a coat pocket of Peter Mooney, 30. Mooney was injured seriously. The only other injury reported was that of an unidentified city fireman, who extinguished a blaze which followed the explosion.

Police said Mooney was too severely injured to be questioned at once, but that they believed the bomb was intended to be set off in the theater as another incident of the controversy between owners of 160 neighborhood theaters and the Moving Picture Operators Union.

They said they considered it remarkable that many persons were not injured or killed by the explosion or in the resultant rush for exits. The theater has a capacity of 1,800 persons and was considerably more than half filled.

Doolittle Flight Set for Tuesday

Transcontinental Flier Is to Attempt Canada-to-Mexico Hop.

Word was received in Washington yesterday that Maj. James Doolittle, holder of the transcontinental record, will undertake an international flight between Ottawa, Canada, and Mexico City by way of Washington on next Tuesday, October 20, weather permitting. The trip, originally scheduled for last Monday, Columbus Day, was postponed because of engine trouble.

Doolittle will fly his Laird racer on the trip of 2,442 miles and hopes to reach the Mexican capital within twelve hours after his start from Ottawa. He expects to get away at 5 a. m., which will bring him into Bolling Field around 7.

In addition to Washington, Maj. Doolittle will stop at Birmingham, Ala., and Corpus Christi, Tex., in the United States.

Family Sits At Bedside Of Edison

West Orange, N. J., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Every member of his immediate family and his personal physician were grouped about Thomas A. Edison tonight as the end approached for the snowy-haired creative genius.

In the red-brick residence in shrubbery-studded Llewelyn Park the 84-year-old inventor lay in a coma. His circulation was showing signs of the strain, but Dr. Hubert S. Howe said the quality of his pulse was better at 8:30 p. m. than it had been in the morning.

"I am afraid the end is near," said Charles Edison, a son, who added that Dr. Howe's presence was as "much for mother as for any emergency" that might arise from his father's condition.

Dr. Howe said he would remain throughout the night, although he did not anticipate an emergency for 24 hours.

HOOVER IS STUDYING G. O. P. '32 SHAKE-UP

Fess Willing to Continue as Chairman, but Would Rather Withdraw.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover is carefully considering the requests of some Republican members of Congress for a reorganization of the national committee at the forthcoming meeting.

Several names are before him for national chairman, including Walter F. Brown, of Ohio, the Postmaster General; Mark L. Requa, of California, new national committeeman for that State, and David Mulvane, of Kansas.

Senator Fess, of Ohio, who accepted the chairmanship temporarily a year ago upon the retirement of Claudius H. Huston, is willing to go on until the convention next June if the President desires, but with the Senate about to reconvene he prefers to withdraw.

Fess called on the President yesterday to discuss a date for the committee meeting. He said later he will call the members together, probably during the week of December 14, to select a convention city.

At the same time he said there was no change in the chairmanship situation.

The congressional Republicans have no hostility to Senator Fess. It is the argument of some of those who have talked with Mr. Hoover that it is time for the party to organize permanently for next year's campaign.

Mr. Hoover has given no indication of his views. The recent selection of Requa for the California committee post so long held by William H. Crocker, and his subsequent visit at the White House, has led to considerable speculation.

Graf Zeppelin Leaves Again for Pernambuco

Friedrichshafen, Germany (Saturday), Oct. 17 (A.P.).—The German dirigible Graf Zeppelin took off at 1:05 o'clock this morning on its third voyage of the year to Pernambuco, Brazil.

The ship carried seventeen passengers, including two women. H. H. Brix, of Saginaw, Mich., was on the passenger list.

BISHOP CANNON AND WOMAN AID HELD FOR TRIAL

BOND OF $1,000 EACH SPECIFIED BY COURT

Defendants Facing $50,000 Fine and 10 Years in Jail as Maximum Penalty.

(Associated Press.)

Bishop James Cannon, jr., must stand trial on charges arising from his management of thousands of dollars contributed to his relentless anti-Smith campaign of 1928.

With Miss Ada L. Burroughs, treasurer of his "headquarters committee, anti-Smith Democrats," in Virginia, the Southern Methodist prelate was indicted before the District of Columbia Supreme Court yesterday for conspiring to violate the Federal corrupt practices law.

The grand jury returned ten counts, carrying a possible maximum penalty upon conviction of ten years' imprisonment and $50,000 fine for each defendant.

Failure to report contributions of $65,300 from E. C. Jameson, New York capitalist and Republican, as required by law, was the basis of the indictment. Bond was fixed at $1,000 for each.

Will Ask Early Trial.

Assistant District Attorney John Wilson, prosecutor, said he would seek an early trial.

From Atlanta, where he is attending a meeting of the College of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, the churchman said:

"I am not surprised at anything that the Roman Catholic district attorney might do."

It was the second time he had directed public attention to the faith of District Attorney Leo A. Rover. Earlier, he said Mr. Rover had ignored his offers to testify before the grand jury.

Mr. Rover withheld comment then but immediately after the grand jury reported yesterday, he said the clergyman's requests that he be permitted to testify personally and that certain witnesses be called were "promptly transmitted by me to the grand jury and that body was advised that it was within its province to grant the request if it so desired."

Bonds to Be Arranged.

The bishop once said he would welcome a grand jury inquiry.

Robert H. McNeill, the bishop's attorney, said Miss Burroughs would make bond in Richmond, Va., her home, and arrangements would be made for the bishop's bond upon his return to Washington.

Mr. McNeill expressed confidence "a full and open hearing when all the facts can be brought out, will vindicate the conduct of Bishop Cannon and his associates."

Four of the counts presented by the grand jury charged Miss Burroughs with wilful failure to report Mr. Jameson's contributions to the

Bribery Charge Denied Before Arkansas Body

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Chairman Dwight H. Blackwood, today appeared voluntarily before the House committee investigating charges of attempted bribery of three House members and denied insinuations connecting his name with the affair.

The bribery charges were made while the House deliberated over the highway audit bill.

One Civilian Also Named; New Grand Jury Ignores True Bills Found Against 3 by "Illegal" Predecessors; Arraignments Set for Friday; Trials Not Expected for Month.

In a courtroom scene that is without parallel in the history of the District, the grand jury for the fall term of the District Supreme Court yesterday handed down to Justice James M. Proctor indictments against eighteen members of the Police Department and one civilian as the result of its investigation into alleged brutal treatment of persons by policemen.

The courtroom filled rapidly when it became known that the program for reporting indictments had been altered, and that instead of the customary hour of 12:30, the indictments would be filed at 10:15.

Word spread quickly, and when the foreman of the grand jury, Theodore Gittings, manager of the service department of the Western Union Telegraph Co., handed his indictments to Justice Proctor, a criminal case then on trial was stopped unceremoniously.

Names that had never been connected with the investigation by any one of the thousand rumors that percolated through the courthouse were included in the list. Three detective sergeants, one of them known as a kindly man, were included in the list. Contrary to these same rumors, there was no sergeant—except those of the Detective Bureau, or any lieutenants on the list.

Those indicted were:

First Precinct Detective James A. Mostyn, assault with a dangerous weapon, two charges of simple assault, and a fourth charge of assault with a dangerous weapon combined with simple assault.

William R. Laflin, private, First Precinct; William T. Burroughs, private, First Precinct, and William C. Groomes, private, First Precinct, assault with a dangerous weapon and simple assault.

65 ARE UNOPPOSED IN BRITISH BALLOT

Government Has 53 Lead in Acclamations as Nominations Close.

London, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The list of 1,225 men and 61 women, who will run for election to the House of Commons in one of the greatest and most fateful fights in British political history closed today with their official nomination.

Included in the list are 65 candidates, of whom Stanley Baldwin, Conservative chief, is the outstanding figure, who have no opponents to fight in their constituencies and who have, in effect, therefore, already become members of the new Parliament.

Forty-seven of these are Conservatives, twelve are Liberal supporters of the government, and six are opposition Labor nominees. Thus, the government is 53 members ahead of its opposition as a result of today's proceedings, although this is hardly indicative of the results at the polls.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's prospects in Seaham were thought to have been somewhat increased by the intervention of a Communist candidate, who may, to some extent, take away from the total vote for the regular Labor-party candidate.

Arthur Henderson, who succeeded Mr. MacDonald as leader of the Labor party, also has a fight against a Communist as well as against the breezy Conservative nominee, Admiral Gordon Campbell, who is his chief opponent. It was thought by some that Mr. Henderson might stand to lose in the election by this development.

David Lloyd George, head of one faction of the Liberty party, will be opposed in the Carnarvon District by Capt. P. Page-Gourley, Conservative. Sir Herbert Samuel, Liberal and home secretary in the national government, has a three-cornered fight in Darwen, Lancashire, against Capt. Alan Gra-

Michigan Girl Convicted As Murder Accessory

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—A circuit court jury today convicted Katherine Keller, of Ypsilanti, as an accessory after the fact of murder in the torch slayings of four young people in Washteman County last August. The jury recommended leniency. It deliberated for an hour. Sentence was not immediately passed.

Miss Keller was a sweetheart of Fred Smith, one of the three torch slayers now serving life sentences in the Michigan branch prison. She had been accused of helping Smith evade arrest.

Mayflower Hulk Bid In at $16,105

Secretary Adams Seals the Sale of Former Pride of Presidents.

(Associated Press.)

Going, going, gone! The U. S. S. Mayflower, yacht of Presidents, sold for $16,105.

Secretary Adams yesterday approved a bid for that amount offered by a gentleman from Chicago, Leo P. Coe. All he will get is a hulk, charred and rusted, for while the Navy was trying six times to sell the famous vessel she was burned and sank at her dock in Philadelphia.

Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson and Coolidge enjoyed many pleasant hours on the handsome craft, but President Hoover didn't want her. Nobody else seemed to want her very much when the Navy asked for bids.

The Mayflower came to the Nation in March, 1898, from the estate of Ogden Goelet at a price of $430,000. She was a gunboat in the Spanish-American War, taking part in the blockade off Santiago and later doing duty in West Indian waters.

YORKTOWN PAGEANT BRILLIANTLY BEGUN

Cornwallis Attends Unveiling of Bust to Ancestor; Ovation for Petain.

Yorktown, Va., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The glory that was Yorktown's, heralded as a triumph of the English people for the right of self-government, was reviewed today in pageant and in story.

And among the thousands who came to participate in the four-day sesquicentennial of the battle that ended the American Revolution was Lord Cornwallis, descendant of the English earl whose forces surrendered to Washington and Lafayette 150 years ago.

"I feel that I would be as agreeable to him as it is delightful to me that a member of the family can be here today," Lord Cornwallis said. "War is behind; peace is in the future, let us hope, forevermore."

He spoke at the dedication of a bust of his distinguished ancestor, dedicated by Virginia as a memorial to the affection for the other country. As the British flag was pulled aside to reveal the bust, it was Maj. Rochambeau, great-great-grandson by adoption of the noted French ally of Washington, who whirled about and came to full salute.

A short time later the friendship of the allies of 1781 was exemplified in a tremendous ovation accorded Marshal Henri Petain as he arrived in state to be presented to the assembled thousands.

Recalling the famous words: "They shall not pass!" uttered in an hour of trial in the World War, United States Senator Claude A. Swanson, chairman of the National Sesquicentennial Commission, told the distinguished French soldier they would live forever as an inspiration to all men in war and in peace.

"The French mission that I head is overjoyed to commemorate the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Yorktown which represents one of the greatest events of modern times," Marshal Petain replied, speaking in his own tongue. He accepted a medal presented by the United States Sesquicentennial Commission with an expression of thanks.

Ashton Bovell, chairman of the Virginia commission, said the English-speaking peoples "must stand united in spirit" for the maintenance of the peace of the world, in his address at the dedication of the Cornwallis Memorial. This thought was carried forward later in the day by Gov. Pollard, who said Yorktown marked the triumph of an ideal and the announcement of another.

"We must remember that war has its roots in the mistakes of peace," the Virginian said. "To avoid such

Mother Kills Four Children and Self

Financial Troubles Blamed for the Tragedy in Ohio Home.

Wilmington, Ohio, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—A 35-year-old mother shot and killed her four children and then committed suicide at their home in Reesville, near here, tonight.

The dead were:

Mrs. Russell Ward and her children—Arlene, 11; Audrey, 8; Edith, 7, and Richard, 4.

Authorities blamed financial troubles for the tragedy. The mother, who had told friends she was so worried she "couldn't think" went to the village school to get her children. She told them they were "going away."

The husband was in Wilmington at the time of the shooting. He found the bodies when he returned home—those of his daughters lying on the bedroom floor, the mother's in a doorway leading from the room, and nearby was the body of the boy.

REICH UPHOLDS BRUENING RULE AND ADJOURNS

Germany Virtually Under Dictatorship of Chancellor.

HITLER QUITS SESSION AMID WILD DISORDER

Rally of Cabinet Strength Smashes Attack Made by Radicals.

Berlin, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Germany reverted tonight to a virtual dictatorship under Chancellor Heinrich Bruening when the Reichstag, after giving the chancellor a vote of confidence, voted to adjourn until February 23.

Adolf Hitler's National Socialists and Alfred Hugenberg's Nationalists, arose and walked out of the chamber following the confidence vote, announcing they had no more interest in what the Reichstag might do. Even with the support of the Communists, the two parties were able to muster only 270 votes against the chancellor. The vote in favor of the confidence motion was 295.

Economy Planned.

The adjournment paves the way for Chancellor Bruening to launch a campaign immediately to put Germany's economic house in order without interference from parliamentary opposition.

Berlin, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Chancellor Heinrich Bruening rallied the cabinet's strength in the Reichstag today and smashed a determined attack by Fascists, Nationalists and Communists who are seeking to overthrow the government.

The Communists, however, took advantage of the fact that the Fascist-Nationalist bloc had indignantly stormed out of the chamber after being defeated by the cabinet, and pushed through a motion interrupting construction work on the second German "pocket battleship." The vote was 211 to 181.

Pocket Battleship Issue.

The pocket battleship issue, which has had grave international repercussions in the last year, had been determinedly supported by the Nationalistic parties, and the government had not opposed construction because it desired support of certain "right wing" factions. The struggle over the warships had become a bitter contest between the Socialists, who supported the Communist motion, and the Conservatives, who had aroused unofficial French protests against increase of German armaments.

By passage of the Communist motion the Reichstag voted to devote approximately 10,800,000 marks (about $2,250,000), which was appropriated for the warship, to feeding children of the poor.

Six tests of confidence and demands for new elections were crushed by the government, which surprised its most ardent supporters by maneuvering a majority of 25 votes

Boardman and Polando To Fly, Tokyo to Seattle

Bradford, Pa., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Russell Boardman and John Polando, New York to Turkey fliers, announced here tonight they intend to try a nonstop flight from Tokyo, Japan, to Seattle, Wash., as soon as weather conditions warranted and plans could be completed.

The two aviators stopped off here today for a visit. They will fly to New York tomorrow.

U. S. PEACE AID IS CONFINED TO KELLOGG PACT

League Vote Inviting U. S. Stirs Japan

Tokyo (Saturday), Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Dispatches saying the council of the League of Nations had invited an American representative to participate in discussions of the Manchurian situation caused great concern here this morning and although it was a national holiday the war and foreign departments were working on full schedule.

Reports pending actions were numerous. One said the government was considering sending another set of instructions to Kennichi Yoshizawa, the Japanese ambassador to France and spokesman at Geneva, owing to the latest developments.

Military authorities at a joint conference were reported to have voted to uphold Japan's position in objecting to having an American representative at the league council table and the Rengo News Agency said that "as far as the Army is concerned secession from the league, if necessary, would be quite in order."

Meanwhile Gen. Giro Minami, min-

SHIP IN DISTRESS IS BELIEVED SUNK

Dollar Liner Sights Part of Missing Vessel's Deck Load.

San Francisco, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The deck load of the Japanese freighter Yonan Maru, reported sinking in the stormy North Pacific early today, was found by the Dollar liner President Jefferson, cruising in the vicinity, late this afternoon.

In a message to the Mackay radio station here, the Dollar liner said:

"Found deck load, but nothing else. Cruised vicinity three hours in company with Ayaha Maru and Taigen Maru, but no ships found trace of anything except logs from Yonan Maru deck load.

The Japanese freighter carried a crew of from 40 to 50 men. The three ships proceeded immediately to the position given when the freighter sent its first SOS, but the search was hampered because of poor visibility due to rain and high seas.

The Jefferson, whose passengers included Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, was continuing the search, as were the two other ships, in the hope some of the crew may have escaped on lifeboats.

The cause of the difficulties resulting in the supposed disaster to the Yonan Maru was not told by the freighter. The vessel was carrying a lumber cargo to Shanghai, having left Portland, Oreg., September 30. The Yonan indicated earlier it had lost the deck load.

"We are now sinking; come quickly," the 7,154-ton freighter radioed shortly before 6 a. m. No further messages were intercepted, as far as Coast radio stations could learn late today.

"Our stern deck is same horizon west sea; now we want quick coming," was a message intercepted a little after 4 a. m.

The position the Japanese ship gave was latitude 50:24 north, longitude 179:20 east, in the world's worst fog belt south of the western Aleutian Islands. The President Jefferson, bound for Puget Sound, was some four-score miles distant when the first call for help was received, and her course was changed for the race to the rescue.

Gilbert Authorized to Sit With Geneva Council on Manchuria.

ACTS FOR AMERICA AS PARTY TO TREATY

Statement Read to Session Outlines Limitations of His Participation.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Secretary Stimson yesterday announced that American participation in the league conversations for the achievement of peace between China and Japan in Manchuria will be restricted to the basis of the Kellogg-Briand Pact.

As long as the various delegates act under the articles of the Pact of Paris, the participation of Prentiss Gilbert, American Consul at Geneva and now representative of the United States at the League of Nations, will be full and frank. He will act as an American signatory of the Kellogg Pact, his vote will be registered and he will have full powers to take part in the discussions.

If the delegates decide, however, to invoke any other diplomatic instrument, such as the Nine Power Pact or, in a case of real emergency, the League Covenant, he will revert to his original status of "observer."

Text of Instructions.

"You are authorized to participate in the discussions of the council when they relate to the possible application of the Kellogg-Briand pact, to which treaty the United States is a party. You are expected to report the result of such discussions to the department for its determination as to possible action. If you are present at the discussion of any other aspect of the Chinese-Japanese dispute, it must be only as an observer and auditor."

The statement read to the assembled delegates yesterday at Geneva by Mr. Gilbert was a faithful reflection of the intentions of the United States. In that statement Mr. Gilbert at once outlined the extent of his participation. He said:

"I thank you for your invitation to sit in your deliberations and to participate in your discussions, insofar as the Pact of Paris, to which my country is a party, is concerned."

Demarcation Is Expressed.

The line of demarcation, which will separate the American action from any commitments under the League Covenant was thus expressed:

"My Government does not seek to intrude with respect to such measures as you may propose under the covenant of the League of Nations; and is not in the position to participate with the members of the council in the formulation of any action envisaged under that instrument for the composing of differences existing between two members."

The final statement of Mr. Gilbert is believed to embody the suggestions which will finally emanate from the league in its solemn warning to the two disputants for the settlement of their differences. He said:

"In your deliberations as to the application of the machinery of the covenant of the League of Nations, I repeat, we can of course take no part. But the pact of Paris, bearing as it does the signature of the president of this meeting together with that of our former Secretary of State as joint proponents, represents to this extent in America an effective means of marshaling the public opinion of the world behind the use of pacific means only, in the solution of controversies between nations. We feel not only that this public opinion is a most potent force in the domestic affairs of every nation, but that it is of constantly growing importance and influence in the mutual relations of the members of the family of nations.

"The timely exercise of the power of such opinion may be effective to prevent a breach of international peace of world-wide consequences.

Harry B. Pitts, of Washington, Tells Solomons Sheriff Wilma Wiggington Threatened Suicide in Two Letters to Him.

Special to The Washington Post.

Solomons, Md., Oct. 16.—The body of the woman found floating in the Patuxent River off Millstone, opposite this place, early today, was identified tonight as Miss Wilma Wiggington, of Roslyn, Long Island.

The identification was made by Harry B. Pitts, 1433 K street northwest, Washington, who came to Solomons in response to two letters received by him from Miss Wiggington telling him of her intention to commit suicide.

When Pitts, who earlier in the afternoon had telephoned the garage of George W. Elliott, Solomons, asking him about an automobile which Miss Wiggington had stored there on Wednesday, arrived in Solomons, he was met by State's Attorney Arthur W. Dowell, of Calvert County, State's Attorney Philip Dorsey, of St. Marys County, and Sheriff Allan W. Ross, of Calvert County.

According to the authorities he declared that Miss Wiggington had been visiting in Washington. When she left there she had seemed despondent and fearing that she might do herself bodily harm he had gone first to Frederick to look for her and later had flown by airplane to Norfolk continuing his search.

His search was unavailing and, returning to Washington, he said he had received two letters written by Miss Wiggington from Solomons, inclosing some money and other valuables and informing him of her intention to kill herself.

In response to these letters, he declared he had hurried to Solomons. Miss Wiggington, he said, is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Walter Beecher, of near Louisville, Ky., and Miss May Wood Wiggington, of Denver, Colo. The wife of a lieutenant, Saunders, of Fort Humphreys, Va., he said, was a cousin. Lieut. Saunders was notified and is expected to come to Solomons tomorrow to claim the body.

The body of the woman who was found in the Patuxent River at Mill-

Jury Starts Deliberation On Capone's Fate Today

Federal Prosecutor Flays Defendant as Merciless Gangster While Defense Counsel Describes Him as Ordinary Citizen and "Good Friend."

Federal Building, Chicago, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Al Capone, merciless gangster and underworld power, and Al Capone, spirit of open-handed generosity and friend who never failed, were the contrasting pictures etched in oratory by attorneys for Government and defense in final pleas at the gangster's income tax trial today.

Through it all, Capone sat with sullen visage, his usual amile missing, moving from his slumped position only to hand notes or documents to his lawyers, and replying with noncommittal grunts to reporters' questions. Even his clothing was more somber, his suit a dark, grayish green, his tie quiet colored, his shoes a shade less yellow.

The case against the big, scar-faced gangster was completed today except for two hours remaining of the Government's final plea and Judge James H. Wilkerson's instructions to the jury. Attorneys on both sides said the twelve middle-aged farmers, merchants and tradesmen on the jury probably will begin deliberating the gangster's fate by tomorrow noon.

On the jurors' minds the Government has sought to impress with a mass of testimony the belief that Capone had a princely income, spent dollars by the thousands without care.

The only spoken evidence by the defense was the testimony of "bookies," whom Capone patronized that he lost $327,000 to them on horse racing bets.

"Even a child could not help after hearing our evidence but to believe that Capone had a fabulous income—and cheated his Government out of its rightful income tax," said Prosecutor Samuel Clawson.

"The Government has produced not one scintilla of evidence that Capone ever had any income," replied Attorney Albert Fink, in his address to the jury. "You can not convict him without evidence.

"Maybe Capone is the worst man who ever lived. Maybe he's as bad

BOLIVIA-PARAGUAY REPORT DUE TODAY

Announcement of Importance Will Be Made by Constituents.

(Associated Press.)

A meeting of high importance to the progress of Bolivian-Paraguayan nonaggression negotiations was held yesterday by the five neutral countries who are using their good offices to bring about a settlement of the boundary dispute.

It was the second time within three days representatives of the neutrals—Colombia, Cuba, Mexico, the United States and Uruguay—had assembled, but they guarded the nature of their discussions. The only announcement yesterday was that a formal statement would be made today.

It was learned, however, the announcement was considered of great importance, indicating the neutrals again were to take a decisive step toward bringing to materialization the nonaggression agreement, which is considered necessary to renewed negotiations suggested by the neutrals last June for the basic boundary question.

Met for Two Hours.

The fact that Wednesday's meeting lasted two hours and that the neutrals assembled yesterday for only a short time lent weight to the possibility that a new note may have been decided upon at the former meeting, since drafted and approved yesterday.

The neutrals recently set November 11 for the opening of the nonaggression conversations, which originally were proposed by Bolivia and recommended to the disputants by the neutrals. The November date was chosen after both Bolivia and Paraguay objected the October 1 date first set did not give them time to send or instruct their representatives for the nonaggression negotiations.

Paraguay has notified the neutrals of her acceptance of the date and has instructed her representatives to be here for the conversations.

Bolivia, however, has not been heard from formally since the neutrals invited her to send representatives for November 11, and in separate notes to Bolivia and Paraguay advised them to keep their Chaco troops within their respective forts "in order to avoid any further incidents or clashes and thus make easier the task of the representatives of the two governments when they meet in Washington to draw up a pact of nonaggression."

Negotiations Are Near.

Less than four weeks remain until the nonaggression negotiations are to begin. The neutrals from the start have shown their desire for the greatest possible dispatch in getting negotiations under way and consequently would be assumed to view with concern failure of either country promptly to announce her participation.

How far they might go in urging speed has not been disclosed. They made a strong move when they proposed confinement of troops to their own forts in the Chaco.

The neutral countries' interest in the Bolivian-Paraguayan difficulties so far has been limited to offering of their good offices. They were successful in 1929 in conciliating the two countries' differences, following a diplomatic rupture and fighting in the disputed region the preceding December.

Since renewing their good offices' proffer several months ago the neutrals have continued active efforts to avert another breakdown in the progress of the boundary negotiations.

Exchange Hurried.

The suggestion itself was hurried to La Paz and Asuncion when strained relations resulted from an exchange of statements by Bolivian Legation and the Paraguayan Charge d'Affaires here relative to each other's military establishment.

A break in relations was not avoided, however, although the neutrals have succeeded in bringing the disputants to the point of negotiating a nonaggression pact. Recent clashes in the Chaco added further to the apprehension of possible further delay, prompting the neutrals' outspoken suggestion against military activities there.

The neutral representatives have continued to express optimism over the progress of the Chaco negotiation developments and gave no indication today their attitude had been altered.

Missouri Reiterates Gas Rate Jurisdiction

Jefferson City, Mo., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The State Public Service Commission today denied the motion of the Cities Service Gas Co. and other companies for a rehearing on its order of July 31, requiring the Cities Service Gas Co. to file its schedule of rates for distribution of natural gas in Missouri for industrial consumption.

DETECTIVE LICENSE IS REFUSED ALLEN

Testimony Given by Former Policeman in McPherson Case Is Retroactive.

Robert J. Allen, erstwhile stormy petrel of the Metropolitan Police Department, was denied a license to practice as a private detective in Washington by the District Commissioners yesterday. The action, it was said, was based upon a recommendation of Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police.

The superintendent's recommendation is based upon a lengthy report of Capt. Frank S. W. Burke, assistant superintendent in charge of the headquarters detective bureau. This report reviews the reasons for Allen's dismissal during the McPherson case inquiry, and also quotes from his testimony in the trial of Assistant Superintendent W. S. Shelby and Lieut. Edward J. Kelly before a special board.

Among other things, Allen is quoted as saying that "up until the time I was discharged from the police force I was a conscientious, honest and thoroughly competent person. * * * I have learned that such an attitude was detrimental to my own good. I am looking after Robert J. Allen now, not the public, nor Mrs. McPherson, nor anybody else."

Upon being asked whether he was telling the truth, the former policeman said: "Yes, I am telling the truth, but when it comes to telling the truth I am going to do like the rest of the police force—I am going to forget it."

Detective Sergt. Charles Mullen, in another report, stated that Allen gave the names of Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, Oliver Owen Kuhn, managing editor of the Star, and J. Robert Esher, attorney, as references in presenting his application for a private license.

The report adds that Mr. Bride declined to make the recommendation on the ground that he is a public official, while Mr. Kuhn said that Allen is "a smart man, but did not apply his intelligence to any good end."

The only indorsement consequently came from Mr. Esher, who admitted that he was Allen's attorney.

Chain-Store Levy Hearing Refused

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court yesterday quickly shoved aside its almost daily case involving the validity of a State tax on chain stores.

It told Mississippi the time had not yet come when it could pass upon that State's special levy on such establishments.

The case is now pending in a three-judge Federal court at Jackson. When it has followed the usual course of such cases through the lower courts, then the highest tribunal will hear it.

Yesterday's was the third chain store tax case to receive court attention this week. On Monday, the tribunal declined to reconsider its famous 5-to-4 decision upholding Indiana's graduated tax on that type of store. Thursday it took the North Carolina chain store-tax under consideration for a decision on its validity.

18 POLICEMEN ARE SUSPENDED AFTER BRUTALITY INDICTMENTS

Cecil F. Mason, civilian, who is charged with attempting to influence a witness in the case against Barrett.

Four of the accused appeared at the Court House and posted bonds of $1,000 each. They were John Sirola, Vivian H. Landrum, Eugene D. Lambert, and Lewis E. Hazard. It was explained that none of those indicted would be arrested unless they failed to appear within a reasonable time to post their bond.

Shortly after the unprecedented action of the grand jury had become officially known at the District Building and at Police headquarters, all of the policemen were suspended. They will remain in that status until the charges against them have been disposed of. Five were under suspension already because of previous indictments that were later found to have been illegal because of an ineligible grand juror.

They were James Mostyn, William H. Laflin, William T. Burroughs, William C. Groomes, and George E. Perry. The first four were indicted for their alleged part in beating James H. Harker in the First Precinct several weeks ago.

Charges by Harker precipitated the investigation. He claimed that he had been unmercifully thrashed in a room adjoining the sergeant's room at the precinct, and a Post reporter and a Post cameraman were among the first to see him after he was released upon the insistance of S. McComas Hawken, his attorney.

Following publication of The Post's story, Inspector Louis J. Stoll was ordered by Maj. Henry G. Pratt to investigate the case, and he returned with statements from more than a score of members of the precinct that they knew nothing whatever of any one having struck Harker.

At this point, the charges of beating prisoners began accumulating, and Commissioner Luther Richelderfer, taking cognizance of the popular desire for a thorough investigation, asked the Department of Justice to carry on. When his request was turned down he went to the White House with Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride, where President Hoover, ever interested in the welfare of Washington, ordered that the necessary facilities of the Bureau of Investigation be placed at the disposal of the Commissioners.

Hoover Heads Probe.

J. Edgar Hoover, in charge of the bureau, brought on a score of his trained operatives and an investigation was launched. For many days the operatives were scurrying about the city, ferreting out persons capable of throwing light on the case. The whole investigation was based upon evidence they uncovered.

The summarized charges of the indictments are:

Barrett is charged with having assaulted, "with his hands," George G. Baer, on April 6, 1931; Fihelly is alleged to have assaulted, "with his hands," Joseph W. Birch, on September 6, 1931; Messer and Hasty are charged with having assaulted Ralph Ware with a wooden club, July 4, 1931, the indictment alleged that Hasty held the club.

Lambert and Hazard are charged with having assaulted Frederick Smith with a wooden club; Sorber is alleged to have assaulted Arthur T. Paul, "with his hands," on August 1, 1931; Landrum and Sirola are charged with having used a wooden club on Henry Johnson, on August 5, 1931; Hasty and Groves are accused of assaulting Ralph Ware (mentioned in previous case).

Charges Against Mostyn.

Mostyn, Laflin, Burroughs and Grooms are charged with assaulting James H. Harker with a rubber hose on August 22, 1931; Mostyn also is accused of having assaulted Preston A. Brooks on the same day, and with having assaulted Harry Johnson on August 3, 1931; Mostyn again is accused, this time with having assaulted Walter W. Johnson on August 22, 1931; Bremmerman and Clark are charged with having assaulted Thomas M. Williams with a wooden club on June 25, 1931, the indictment containing six counts.

Perry is charged with having assaulted John F. Miller on August 21, 1931, and Jones, on August 14, 1931, is accused of having assaulted Robert E. Gibbs.

The indictment against Mason charges that he "did unlawfully, willfully and corruptly" endeavor to influence George E. Baber as to Baber's testimony before the grand jury. The date is placed as September 16, 1931. In this connection the grand jury reported a failure to indict Maurice W. O'Connor, who had been arrested in connection with the attempt to influence Baber.

Three other indictments were ignored. Mostyn, named in four indictments, was held not liable in a fifth; Laflin also was let go in what would have been a second indictment for him, and William B. Kuhns was not indicated, although there was some testimony before the grand jury concerning him.

It is hardly possible that the cases against any of the policemen will be brought to trial for a month or more. They will have until Friday of next week to be arraigned and to enter a plea, and after that dilatory tactics, such as pleas in abatement and demurrers, can forestall immediate action.

The possibility exists, though, that some of the officers will be anxious for court action, in that they are positive they can acquit themselves of the charges.

Girl Scouts Hold Annual Banquet

National Council to Close Convention and Name 1932 City Today.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The annual convention of the National Council of Girl Scouts neared its close tonight with the banquet, presided over by Mrs. Conrad E. Wettlaufer, Buffalo. Mrs. Fred[illegible]ck Edy, national president, was toastmistress.

Tomorrow morning at the closing business session of the convention, resolutions will be adopted and the convention city for 1932 selected. In the afternoon there will be a grand rally of Girl and Boy Scouts. Mrs. Edy was reelected president today and will be installed tomorrow.

Dame Katherine Furse, director of the world bureau of Girl Scouts and Girl Guides, speaking at the banquet tonight, asserted that "politicians are talking, but women are working toward world peace."

4 More Champion Bovines Selected

Dairy "Who's Who" Now Completed for Year at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The roster of America's dairy aristocrats for another year was complete tonight with the selection of the grand champion Guernsey and brown Swiss cows.

Interest Rate Raised On Foreign Deposits

New York, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The committee of bankers on foreign deposits in New York advanced the maximum interest rates payable on foreign deposits today by one-half of 1 per cent. The new demand deposit rates are 1 per cent for balances of banks, bankers, corporations, firms and individuals and 1½ per cent on deposits of central banks and foreign governments. The new rate on time deposits is 2 per cent for all classes of accounts.

It is estimated that net foreign balances in New York, including short-term investments, aggregate $600,000,000 now.

HEARING SET TODAY FOR STAPLES CASE

Arguments in Expunction of Grand Jury Report Set for 10 o'Clock.

Arguments on a motion for the expunction of the grand jury report which recommended the reinstatement of former Policeman Orville Staples and the punishment of those responsible for his dismissal will be heard today before Justice Jesse C. Adkins.

The arguments are scheduled to begin at 10 o'clock this morning, with Henry I. Quinn, attorney for Louis J. Stoll, and Albert W. Jacobson, attorney for Patrolman Joseph H. Hunt, advocating the expunction and District Attorney Leo Rover opposing it.

Will Resist Efforts.

Austin P. Canfield, attorney for Staples, was expected to appear on behalf of Staples and, if the court will permit, to argue against the granting of the motion. Hunt is directly named and Stoll is indirectly mentioned in the grand jury report of participating in the "framing" of Staples.

The basis of the arguments for the motion, Mr. Jacobson said, will be that the "scope of the grand jury is either to indict or ignore and that it has no right, in the absence of an indictment, to maliciously slander any person without giving him a chance to defend himself." Both Stoll and Hunt have expressed their willingness to go before any court to defend their investigation of the Staples case.

Probe Is Complete.

The committee of lawyers investigating the grand jury report on the Staples case, is expected to complete its inquiry within a few days. Most of the witnesses in the case have been interviewed by the lawyers. Frederick A. Schenck, the former policeman who said that he helped "frame" Staples, has refused to testify before the group unless officials or newspapermen are present.

The committee will then advise the Commissioners whether there is any basis for prosecution of the policemen involved in the original Staples investigation.

Dismissed Professor May File Salary Suit

Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—President James M. Smith, of Louisiana State University, tonight withheld comment on a report that court action was to be taken here in a suit for salary by John Earle Uhler, former English professor, who was discharged because of the college life depicted in his novel, "Cane Juice."

The college campus was stirred today when it learned that Harry F. Ward, of Baltimore, chairman of the American Civil Liberties Union, had announced its support of a suit to recover the professor's salary under a year's contract to teach. The union chairman also suggested a mandamus action to compel the university board to grant Uhler a public hearing.

Fight With Swordfish Won by Julian Eltinge

Los Angeles, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Julian Eltinge won his battle with a 190-pound swordfish but the marlin got in several rapier-like thrusts which caused the famed female impersonator to undergo an intestinal operation.

Details of the sea fight were disclosed today at the hospital where Eltinge was recovering and Dr. Earl C. O'Donnell, a companion, was under treatment for an infected hand. James Jump, fisherman, received severe cuts on one hand.

Former Athletic Chief Of Y.M.C.A. Is Honored

C. Edward Beckett, formerly director of the physical department of the Washington Young Men's Christian Association, was given a farewell dinner in the Hotel Mayflower last night by a group of the city's business and professional men.

Beckett has just completed 31 years of service. Officials of the Y. M. C. A. took part in the testimonial. W. C. Hanson was chairman of the committee in charge. About 75 attended.

SPAIN PUTS DIVORCE ACT IN CONSTITUTION

National Assembly Places Men and Women on Equality Before Law.

Madrid, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The Spanish National Assembly voted today, 169 to 153, to authorize granting of divorces to men and women on equal terms. The action constituted a revision of the Assembly's decision yesterday, when it voted to leave the divorce question to be governed by special future legislation.

The new provision authorizes divorces "for just cause." Under the previous Spanish law divorces were not granted at all.

The Catholic deputies, who absented themselves from the Assembly as a protest against the passage of article 24 of the new constitution, limiting the rights of religious orders, characterized today's action on the divorce section as "another indication of the attempt of Leftists to revolutionize Spanish life entirely."

Situation Called Gravest.

Papal Nuncio Tedeschini characterized the present situation of the Church in Spain as "the gravest in the history of the republic," but he added that no immediate rupture of relations between Spain and the Vatican was contemplated.

Vatican City, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Pope Pius XI issued a call today for public prayers in Spain on Sunday, October 25, and announced he would offer a prayer for the Spanish people at a special mass in St. Peter's Cathedral on that date.

The pontiff wrote to Monsignor Tedeschini, the papal nuncio to Spain, that he would offer his prayer "with the special intention that the tribulations which afflict the church and the faithful of the beloved Spanish nation shall cease."

Rupture Rumors Dispelled.

The announcement was regarded here as dispelling rumors of an immediate rupture between the Catholic Church and the Spanish republic. It also was thought highly improbable that recall of the papal nuncio would be considered until after the Pope had seen the effect of his protest against recent anti-church legislation in Spain and until after the prayers had been offered.

"With all the energy of my apostolic ministry I have energetically protested against the multiple offenses inflicted on the sacrosanct rights of the church, which are the rights of God and of souls," said the Pope's message which was to be passed on to the Spanish people.

"I hope that with Divine aid, with the good assistance of men, and by just, legitimate methods, the wounds already suffered will be healed and something much worse avoided—the obscuring of the splendors of traditional faith which is the sole salvation from the perils which in Spain menace society itself."

Reynolds Assists Divorce at Reno

Tobacco Magnate's Heir Takes Wife to Nevada for Suit.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Ann Cannon Reynolds has taken up residence on a dude ranch near Reno for the purpose of obtaining a divorce from her wealthy 19-year-old husband, Smith Reynolds, son of the late tobacco magnate.

Mrs. Reynolds arrived here October 5, and it was learned today, was accompanied by her husband, who, after seeing that she was comfortably settled and details of her divorce arranged, returned to their Southern home. Reynolds was only 17 and Ann Cannon 19, when they married at York, S. C., on November 16, 1929. They have a year-old daughter.

While details of a property settlement were not revealed, it was indicated Mrs. Reynolds will receive a small monthly allowance, which will be increased several years hence when her husband comes in his full share of the estates of his father and mother.

U. S. AGENT TAKES COUNCIL SEAT TO AID PEACE EFFORTS

We assume that this may be the reason why the consideration of the relationship between the provisions of the pact of Paris and the present situation has been brought forward in this body; and the purpose which has moved my Government to accept your invitation is that thus we may most enthusiastically and effectively take common counsel with you on this subject."

This is the second major conflict where the Kellogg-Briand pact has been invoked. The circumstances of the present action, however, are believed to transcend any other crisis in which the peace-making machinery of the world was ever started.

To criticisms of the failure of Secretary Stimson to invoke the Kellogg pact himself, instead of permitting the league to do it, authorities close to the head of the department stated that to do so might have given the Chinese or the Japanese an opportunity of playing one peace agency off against the other. The cause of peace would be weakened by two competitive efforts for settlement of the Manchurian dispute.

Under the present arrangement the United States by its presence in the sessions of the league council can give an additional dignity and force to the decisions of the council. This Secretary Stimson promised to do when he cabled the sympathetic adhesion of the United States to any move the league might make to end the imminent conflict in the East.

Some confusion existed in diplomatic circles yesterday as to the full import of the action of Secretary Stimson. It was expressed that the inclusion of the Kellogg pact in the league, was, in fact, the much mooted "implementation" or "teeth" in the document.

Pact Appeals to World.

Secretary Stimson declared yesterday that "there was nothing to that extent in the papers that he had given to the press." The Kellogg pact was an appeal to all the nations of the world for an expression of their disapproval of any impending war-like move. The nations of the world would mobilize the army of public opinion to combat the influence of war. This was the express provision of the pact, which states:

"The nations declare that they condemn recourse to war for the solution of international controversies and renounce it as an instrument of national policy in their relations with one another."

At the time of an impending conflict on the same ground practically where China and Japan are now at bayonets' points, Russia and China were similarly involved in 1929. The Secretary of State solemnly warned the two countries then that "the American Government takes occasion to express its earnest hope that China and Russia will refrain or desist from measures of hostility and will find it possible in the near future to come to an agreement between themselves upon a method for resolving by peaceful means the issues over which they are at present in controversy."

Similar Action Likely.

Similar action will in all probability be taken by the league with the cooperation and approval of the United States. At the time of the Russian-Chinese incident, the support of the league was lacking because it was not then in session. Now practically every country is either a member of the league or a signatory of the pact of Paris. Such an impressive appeal, neither China nor Japan will be able to ignore.

The Kellogg Pact exists as an instrument of international polity and the League of Nations will continue to exercise its functions as an international clearing house on all matters, it was pointed out. The temperary incorporation of the one in the machinery of the other, is an expedient for a tremendously grave emergency.

The situation of Mr. Gilbert as American representative on the league will cease immediately on the achievement of peace between the two countries. Beyond that, the United States will resolutely refuse to go. How or in what manner the details of the settlement will be worked out is absolutely no concern of this Government and the United States will take no part in such negotiations.

U. S. TAKES COUNCIL SEAT TO END STRIFE

Gilbert Joins League Body's Conference for Peace in Manchuria.

Geneva, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—The United States formally took a place at the conference table of the League of Nations council tonight in an unprecedented effort to maintain world peace.

Prentiss B. Gilbert, American consul at Geneva, accepted the council seat, acting in behalf of the United States as a party to the Kellogg antiwar treaty, in an attempt to settle the conflict between China and Japan in Manchuria.

Aristide Briand, of France, presiding, and other council members enthusiastically welcomed Gilbert as a nonvoting participant in the peace negotiations. Only Kenchiki Yoshizawa, the diminutive, mild-mannered Japanese representative, failed to extend cordial greetings to the American.

Acting upon the definite instructions of his government, Yoshizawa continued his opposition to American participation as unconstitutional until the last. He was silent, inscrutable and manifestly uncomfortable as Gilbert was welcomed to the council table. Yoshizawa had repeatedly stressed that his government maintained the most friendly relation toward the United States but that it believed the presence of Gilbert in the negotiations was illegal juridically.

Before the council session at which Gilbert was seated had adjourned at 7:20 p. m., Briand was planning the start of final and intensive efforts toward a Manchurian settlement tomorrow. It was pointed out that the council, at its September session, had been weak and helpless in facing an outstanding test of its strength as a peace organization. Seeking to save itself from the most damaging situation ever faced by the league, Briand and other leaders brought about a unification of sentiment which they now believe will be able to exert the greatest moral pressure.

In Gilbert's speech the position of the United States as a purely consultative participant, without intruding on the prerogatives of the council, was emphasized. In the speeches of Briand, foreign Minister Dino Grandi, of Italy; Salvador de Madariaga, Spanish Ambassador to Washington; Dr. Alfred Sze, of China; Lord Reading, of Britain, and other council members who welcomed Gilbert, the significance of common collaboration on the most impressive scale in league history was stressed. They pointed out the concrete results to be obtained by common agreement which would unite the moral force of the world against warfare.

Gilbert Is Congratulated.

"The United States has closely followed the council efforts to settle the dispute between China and Japan," said Gilbert after thanking the council for the invitation to the United States. "My government does not desire to intrude in such measures as may be proposed under the league covenant and is not able to aid in forming any action under the covenant.

"My government, however, is sympathetic with your efforts and in accord with your objective and has expressed hope that the league machinery will be successful in reaching a satisfactory settlement."

Previously, Briand had officially welcomed Gilbert to the table, saying he congratulated himself "in expressing the sentiments of my colleagues that your presence is an indication of the loyal effort of the United States to cooperate with the league in enforcement of the pact of Paris (the anti-war treaty)."

Lord Reading declared that "it is with the greatest satisfaction that all members of the league see the United States associated with us in an effort to enforce the pact of Paris under the present difficult circumstances."

Madariaga, scholarly, smooth-faced diplomat, also welcomed Gilbert.

The Chinese delegate, Dr. Sze, said that "no nation can view with deeper approval than China the high hopes given by the presence of the United States representative here."

The German, Irish, Panaman Guatemalan, Jugoslavian, Peruvian and other representatives also joined in the welcome to Gilbert.

The formal invitation to the United States and the acceptance by the American State Department, which led to the appearance of Gilbert at the council table, climaxed a day of intense and oftentimes dramatic negotiation.

With Japan unalterably opposed to the invitation on purely legal grounds, Briand was eager to handle the delicate situation with the greatest possible tact. After recording all of Japan's legal objections, on which the council was unable to pass immediately, Lord Reading asked Yoshizawa to accept the majority viewpoint to make the vote unanimous, but the Japanese delegate was unable to accept.

Kern Assumes Office As Electrical Engineer

Several baskets of flowers were given to Walter E. Kern yesterday as he assumed the office of District electrical engineer to succeed Warren B. Hadley, who retired on account of age.

The new electrical engineer served as an assistant under Mr. Hadley and has been in the department since July 26, 1904. He was made an assistant on October 8, 1917.

JAPANESE CONCEDES MISTAKE AT GENEVA

Visiting Parliament Member Sees Error in Denying Consent to U. S.

New York, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The Japanese government is making a mistake, former Mayor Jukio Ozaki, of Tokyo, said today, in opposing the participation of the United States in consideration of the Manchurian dispute at Geneva.

Ozaki, a member of the Japanese Parliament since it was established 41 years ago, and Kensuke Horinouchi, Japanese consul in New York, spoke of the troubled situation in the Far East at a luncheon given by Herbert S. Houston to newspaper and magazine editors.

In 70 years of foreign relations, Ozaki said, the Japanese feel foreign diplomats always have outwitted them. He added that the Russians, backed by the Germans and French, prevented the Japanese from reaping the rewards they felt they should have had from the war of 1894-1895 with the Chinese.

German Militarism Blamed.

The foreign intervention which stopped the Russo-Japanese war in 1905, he said, greatly displeased the Japanese people, who felt they would have profited more by the war if left to deal alone with Russia.

Ozaki also explained that the Japanese, formerly not a warlike people, were trained in military science by the Germans and became militarists after Western models.

Horinouchi said Japan's very existence is dependent on peaceful relations with China and the United States, its two great customers, and expressed the opinion that neither China nor Japan wants war.

Asks Patience With China.

Patience must be used in dealing with China, he explained, and Western nations must not expect immediate results from the negotiations now going on. Just as a Chinese merchant loves to bargain and prolong deals, Horinouchi suggested, so Chinese officials are slow in their negotiations.

He expressed the opinion that the United States and Japan will eventually cooperate in the development of the great resources of China.

Ozaki is in the United States as a guest of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. An avowed pacifist, he said he generally finds himself in opposition to his government on defense problems.

JAPAN IS STIRRED OVER U. S. ACTION

ister of war, invited representatives of the vernacular newspapers to meet with him at noon, in view of "the gravity of the situation," apparently referring to the acton at Geneva in overriding Japan's objections.

The Rengo News Agency today carried a statement from army authorities characterizing America's attitude on the Manchurian situation as "extremely meddlesome."

The statement said army authorities explained that the government has repeatedly stated the recent difficulties in Manchuria should be settled directly between Japan and China without the intervention of a third party, therefore, the statement continued, "it is extremely meddlesome on the part of the United States to concern herself with a serious issue arising in the region where Japan has special, peculiar relations. Such a step would only irritate the sensitive feelings of the Japanese people, who are particularly susceptible regarding Manchuria."

Trial of Powers May Be in Theater

Clarksburg Lacks Court as New Building Is Under Way.

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 16.—The unusual spectacle of a criminal court session in a theater, with the trial of Harry F. Powers, self-confessed matrimonial agency murderer of five as the headliner, was under consideration today by the Harrison County Court.

The county will be obliged to find new quarters for the forthcoming term of criminal court as the custodian of the old Federal Building, now temporarily leased for court trials by the county, has forbade holding the Powers trial there. The county has no courthouse now, a new one being under construction on the site of the old one.

The county court obtained an option to lease the Moore Opera House, which has a seating capacity of 1,250, for the Powers trial. Decision to close the lease was held in abeyance, however, pending return to the city of Bruce Mason, a member of the court, who is on a hunting trip in the eastern part of the State.

NATION HAS INCREASE IN FOREIGN TRADE

America's Part in Helping World Shows Balance of $181,000,000.

(Associated Press.)

America's part in feeding and clothing the world has quickly returned to the United States the advantageous balance in foreign trade.

In contrast with an unfavorable balance of $1,847,716 in August, the Commerce Department yesterday reported the Nation's exports in September were $10,000,000 greater than its imports. Shipments of wheat and cotton largely accounted for the difference.

September exports totaled roughly $181,000,000 and imports $171,000,000. For August the figures were, respectively, $164,821,973 and $166,669,689, while for September, 1930, they were $312,207,000 and $236,352,000. The unfavorable balance in August was the first such since April, 1926.

Last month, Japan and Germany combined, took over half the exports of cotton. These totaled 558,000 bales, valued at $23,383,000, compared with 211,000 bales valued at $9,820,000 in August. Japan imported 162,000 bales and Germany 131,000, with the remainder scattered throughout the world.

Officials estimated that with Chinese and other oriental purchases added to those for Japan, the Orient would be found to have taken at least one-third of all the American cotton shipped during September.

The Orient added heavily to its officially recorded purchases in this country, buying 4,000,000 of the 9,000,000 bushels of wheat exported during the month. The department was without figures showing wheat values, but it was estimated roughly at around 50 cents a bushel making the total shipments worth approximately $4,500,000.

Shipments of wheat and flour to the Far East are expected to continue for the next month or two. Department officials said they had been advised by the Farm Board that wheat shipments during September did not include any sold by the Farm Board to the Chinese government.

This wheat, 15,000,000 bushels, is expected to begin to show in the October figures available about November 15.

Exports for the first nine months this year were $1,842,509,000, compared with $2,952,450,000 last year and imports of $1,619,281,000 against $2,401,312,000. This gave a favorable balance of $223,228,000 for the first nine months of 1931 and $551,138,000 for the same period in 1930.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 77

This picture was taken in July, 1896, when the Christian Endeavor Convention was in session in Washington. This group is part of the choir of 5,000 voices which featured the convention.

YORKTOWN PROGRAM IS READY FOR HOOVER

(Associated Press.)

The program for President Hoover's part in the Yorktown celebration—detailed even to the rumbling of 21-gun salutes from an assembled fleet—was completed yesterday by White House officials.

From the moment his battleship transport, the U. S. S. Arkansas, slows to a halt off Yorktown at 8:30 Monday morning until it weighs anchor, near sundown the same day, every detail of his activity has been mapped and scheduled.

Will Greet Petain.

One of his first acts of the day will be to greet aboard his warship Marshal Petain, of France. With him will come Rear Admiral Decsottes-Genon, of the French navy, and Capts. Brohan and Lacroix, of the French cruisers Duquesne and Suffren.

After the President goes ashore, heralded by a booming of guns, to be met by Gov. Pollard of Virginia and other notables, his day will move swiftly.

At 11 he will speak, an hour later he will sit at an official luncheon, at 1:30 he will receive visiting governors and others, and a few minutes later he will return to watch the pageant of the British surrender and review troops.

The presidential party aboard the Arkansas will include Mrs. Hoover, Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, wife of the Secretary of the Navy; Admiral W. V. Pratt, chief of naval operations; Mrs. Pratt, and Senator Moses of New Hampshire.

Personnel of President.

With them will be the President's three secretaries, the White House naval and military aids, the White House physician and about a score of newspaper correspondents. All will motor to Annapolis to board the ship some time today.

The President will do much traveling in small motor launches before his trip is ended. The 600-foot length and 27,990-ton weight of the Arkansas sometimes will make the ship anchor 3 or 4 miles from a landing.

He will travel at least that far in going ashore and returning from Fortress Monroe tomorrow night, where he will make a radio address in behalf of the unemployed.

GRAPE CONCENTRATE CONCERN GIVEN FINE

Federal Court Decides That Product Is Wine in Missouri Verdict.

Kansas City, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The sale and possession of grape concentrate for wine-making purposes was outlawed in a verdict today by United States District Judge Merrill E. Otis.

Judge Otis convicted the Ukiah Grape Products Co., Inc., of New York, distributors of a grape concentrate product, of violating the national prohibition laws.

The concern was fined $100 on each of seven counts, five for sale and two alleging possession.

A. E. Brunett, former Kansas City branch manager of the company, was fined $50 on each of five counts charging sale.

Counsel for the Ukiah Co. announced an appeal would be taken to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to test the decision, which struck a blow at the California grape industry, which has been aided by Federal Farm Board funds.

Judge Otis heard the case by agreement without the aid of a jury.

The indictments against the corporation and Brunett charged violation of the prohibitory law clause which states: "It shall be unlawful to advertise, manufacture, sell or possess for sale, any utensil, contrivance, machine, preparation, compound, tablet, substance, formula, direction or recipe, advertised, designed or intended for use in the unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquor."

In an attempt to prove the Ukiah product is a potential alcoholic beverage, the Government introduced the testimony of E. J. Gorman, president of the company, to the effect the preparation when properly processed contains 10 to 15 per cent alcohol.

Sold as Wine.

Customers and a prohibition agent who acted as a salesman for the company testified it was sold as a potential wine, not as a grape juice, and that specific directions as to processing accompanied the concentrate.

The court held that the word manufacture does not apply to any one phase alone in the process of wine making. The defense had contended the concentrate, having no alcoholic content at the time of sale, was a legal product.

Thomas J. Layson, assistant United States district attorney interpreted the decision as making illegal the sale of "wine bricks" and similar products, which he declared were the potential nucleus for wine.

The trial was termed "just another criminal case" in Washington today by the Prohibition Bureau.

(Associated Press.)

The conviction of the Ukiah Grape Products Co. in Kansas City for violating the prohibition law was characterized by the Prohibition Bureau yesterday as "just another criminal case."

The case against the company, which had sold grape concentrate which could be turned into wine, was worked up by the forces in the Kansas City district on their own initiative, it was said at headquarters, and not under instructions from Washington.

Howard T. Jones, assistant director of the bureau, said the decision did not indicate there would be any particular drive against grape concentrate, but that prohibition forces in every part of the country were expected to act against any law violation that came up within their jurisdiction.

U. S. and Italy Arrange Pact on Air Navigation

(Associated Press.)

By an exchange of notes with Italy the United States yesterday entered into its first air navigation agreement with a European power.

The arrangement is similar to that in effect between the United States and Canada. It provides for the navigation of civil aircraft of one country in the other, the issuance of pilot licenses to nationals of the other country and the reciprocal acceptance of certificates of airworthiness for aircraft exported to the other country as merchandise.

Ambassador Discusses Grandi's Hoover Visit

(Associated Press.)

The coming visit of Minister Grandi, of Italy, was discussed with President Hoover yesterday by John W. Garrett, American Ambassador to Italy.

Mr. Garrett has just returned from his Italian post. He called at the White House late yesterday afternoon and remained several minutes with the President.

CHICAGO AND BOSTON BANKS RAISE CHARGE

Reserve Institutions Advance Loan Rate for Members to 3½ Per Cent.

(Associated Press.)

Two more Federal Reserve Banks yesterday increased their rediscount rates, bringing to five the number of such changes made possible by the flow of gold from the United States.

The Chicago and Boston institutions raised from 2½ to 3½ per cent the charge they make on money loaned to member banks.

Official circles here generally accepted the change as an indication of a more optimistic business outlook. It means among other things, it was explained, that open money market rates will rise, making it more profitable for banks to lend money.

Late in 1929 the rates started downward to be lowered further in the hope of stopping the transfer of gold to the United States from Europe and South America. But the flow continued until this country's monetary gold stock reached its highest figure in history—$5,015,000,000.

About a month ago gold started leaving the country and foreign nations since that time have withdrawn $591,000,000. In the last ten days there have been five increases in the rates, including the two announced yesterday. Other charges throughout the system are: New York and Minneapolis, 3½ per cent; Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta, Kansas City and Dallas, 3 per cent; St. Louis and San Francisco, 2½ per cent.

Hoover Hears Plan For Shoals Leaflet

Brochure Would Set Out Ideas of Commission for Public.

(Associated Press.)

Plans for a brochure on Muscle Shoals, setting forth the ideas of the Muscle Shoals Commission, were laid before President Hoover yesterday by Judge S. F. Hobbs, of Selma, Ala., chairman of the commission.

After a flying trip to the Capital, Judge Hobbs required but a few minutes to lay his plans before the President. They were together only about 15 minutes.

The commission chairman said the report was intended to present to prospective leesees and to the public in an attractive form the entire situation surrounding Muscle Shoals. He said the proposed prospectus would not revise any of the conditions previously put forth by the commission, but if anything would make them stand out in sharp relief.

Senators Decline Coal Probe Posts

Norris Wires He Is Interested and Couzens Says Health Is Poor.

McCook, Nebr., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—United States Senator George W. Norris today telegraphed Theodore Drieser his regrets that because of previous engagements he would be unable to participate in a proposed investigation in the Harlan, Ky., mine area. "Am deeply interested in subject," he added.

He said in an interview that the next Congress probably would appoint a committee to investigate the situation. Senator Norris said he had made several speaking engagements in Nebraska.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Senator James Couzens today telegraphed Theodore Dreiser that his health will not permit him to serve on the committee Dresier is organizing. He said he was "entirely sympathetic with and interested in your proposal."

Farm Hand Slayer of 4 Tells Police Real Name

Baltimore, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Orphan Jones, 60-year-old Negro farm hand and confessed slayer of a Berlin, Md. family of four, told police here today his correct name is Yuel Lee.

Held in the city jail here, Lee said he was born in Virginia and reared there by a white family.

IN MEMORIAM

DAVIS—In sad and loving remembrance of our dear son, BRANDON BURT DAVIS, who departed this life four years ago today, October 17, 1927.
Brandon, we loved you dearly,
Better than can be told;
But God, He loved you better
And took you to His fold.

Brandon, our hearts long for you,
It's lonesome in many ways.
For life is not the same to us
Since you were called away.

Your cheering ways, your smiling face,
A pleasure to recall;
You had a friendly word for each
And died beloved by all.
DEVOTED PARENTS AND FAMILY.

Uncle Sam Wonders Who Hid Philosopher's Stone

By JOHN J. DALY

EVEN old Uncle Sam feels the pinch of poverty, looks for a way out, tries to make both ends meet, to balance the budget and keep expenditures within the bounds of income.

The old gentleman has just been told by his financial advisers that more gold is needed to run the Government, more going out than coming in, and that unless something is done, and soon, to remedy the situation he'll be marching ever the hills to the poorhouse.

It means that Uncle Sam has got to get out and dig for more gold, out where he got it before.

* * * *

ANCIENT alchemists believed there was something in the substratum of earth that would convert all baser metals into gold. This they called the Philosopher's Stone.

When it became known that a little bit of pay dirt would settle the bills of the butcher, the baker and the shirt makers, there was a world-wide scramble for the magical charm.

In the feverish search many important discoveries and inventions were made. In Germany, Bottger, the chemist, learned to make Dresden china. In a monastery in Merry England, Roger Bacon, the Admirable Doctor, concocted the composition of gunpowder. Geber, the Arabian, assorted the property of acids, and Helmont, the Flemish chemist, became familiar with the nature of gas. All this was done in quest of the Philosopher's Stone. While they failed to find the charm they came away with greater wealth.

* * * *

NOW, Uncle Sam starts out on the trail—and he does not go alone. There are about a hundred million nephews and nieces to help the old man, to keep him from walking the plank when the creditors call.

You can hear the old gentleman talking to himself, mumbling as he goes along, pondering the problem: "'Always taking out of the meal tub, and never putting in, soon comes to the bottom,' as poor Richard says."

It is, of course, the sure way from riches to rags—a road that the old gentleman has never traveled; for he has always been more or less provident. Again, he believes with Poor Richard that a plowman on his legs is higher than a gentleman on his knees; so Uncle Sam is going out into the country looking for the Philosopher's Stone or something that will be equally as satisfactory. And he is going to get it if he has to plow up the whole Nation.

* * * *

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY ADAMS, sea lord of the Nation, was over to see President Hoover, the landlord, the other day, and although the admirals and the midshipmites and the crews of the gigs and the yawls are about to make great sacrifices, still, this is not enough. Looked at through the smoked glasses of the bookkeeper, the Treasury is in the red. So the Secretary of the Navy wobbled a bit on his sea legs as he walked back to his office—for he knows that yachting off Newport is now but a memory.

Poor Richard!

Though they accused old Ben Franklin of teaching a "candle-end-saving philosophy" and preaching a pinch-penny practice, his wisdom was concerned mostly with frugality and economy. It has stood up under the years, its truth marked with all the values attributed to the Philosopher's Stone.

He said:

"Get what you can, and what you get hold;

"'Tis the stone that will turn all your lead into gold.

"And when you have got the Philosopher's Stone, sure you will no longer complain of bad times or the difficulty of paying taxes."

mistakes is the special task of the hour. To this end we must enlist soldiers of peace whose efforts, like those of the soldiers of war, must be marked by courage, skill, and unremitting toil."

Five Governors Present.

Five governors from the original thirteen colonies delivered short addresses as they were welcomed by Gov. Pollard, while seven sent representatives to speak for them.

Adjt. Gen. Davis of Pennsylvania brought a message from Gov. Pinchot that differed from those of the others.

"In a land overflowing with milk and honey," the Pennsylvania Governor said, "millions lack food. Our fight is not against princes and principalities, it is against hunger and cold and mammon and unrighteousness in high places."

The Colonial National Monument, embracing the historic territory of Jamestown, site of the first permanent English settlement; Williamsburg, the colonial capital of Virginia, and Yorktown, where the Declaration of Independence was made effective, became a reality. It was dedicated by Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior.

The great contributions of Virginia and Massachusetts to Yorktown were recited by John Stewart Bryan, of Richmond, and Robert Luce, Massachusetts member of Congress.

Part of Bay State.

Mr. Bryan said Virginia contributed the scene of action and the actors, and Representative Luce said Massachusetts showed her greatest patriotism in sacrificing her pride and voting to give George Washington command of the Continental troops. He recalled the contributions of Massachusetts to every form of American life, and reminded his hearers that many of those who came to Yorktown with Washington were Massachusetts men.

The final event of the first day of the four-day observance was a colorful pageant in the great celebration amphitheater, showing scene in the history of the colonies from the landing at Jamestown in 1607 to the signing of the Declaration of Independence at Philadelphia.

Gen. John J. Pershing and Marshal Petain are among the speakers tomorrow "Revolutionary Day." Tomorrow will bring forth, also, the reenactment of the battles immediately preceding the surrender itself. The brilliant colors of the military uniforms of that day, the scarlet of the British Redcoats, the white and blue of the French infantry, and the blue and buff of the Continentals, will make the reenactment at a massive animated picture of the stirring events.

Sunday will be largely a day of religious observance, preceding "Surrender Day" on Monday, when President Hoover will deliver the sesquicentennial address and review the pageant of the surrender itself.

Lord Stanley Wykeham Cornwallis, lineal descendant of the British general whose surrender marked the end of the American Revolution, will arrive at the Hotel Mayflower today following a sightseeing tour of battlefields and other points of interest in Virginia. He will be accompanied by Lady Cornwallis.

Lord Cornwallis participated yesterday in the dedication of a bust of the first Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown. This event, which was the first happening of the day at the scene of the memorial battle, did not appear on the official program for the Yorktown celebration. Lord and Lady Cornwallis departed immediately for Williamsburg.

War Generals Are Cheered By 10,000 in Hampton

Hampton, Va., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Yorktown had to wait today while 10,000 cheering residents and school children of this, the oldest continuous English-speaking settlement in America, welcomed Marshal Petain and Gen. Pershing.

Stopped in the middle of the intersection of the two principal streets of the town, the military heroes were given the official welcome of Hampton, Marshal Petain being presented with a scroll and flowers from the city and the D. A. R., and Gen. Pershing flowers.

Marshal Petain, in a brief speech, thanked Hampton for its hospitality, and Gen. Pershing said "Nowhere do flowers grow so sweet as in Virginia."

CUTS IN NAVY LEAVE VIRGINIA UNSCATHED

Activities at Hampton Roads to Continue as Before; Benefit to State.

(Associated Press.)

Vast naval activities in Virginia, centering about Hampton Roads, will suffer no material curtailment from the budget slashing ordered by President Hoover, unless present plans are altered.

It was indicated yesterday all the large shore stations in the State would remain intact, and the Hampton Roads base would profit by placing of the Newport, R. I., training station in an inoperative status. Hampton Roads would be the only training station left on the East Coast.

Reduction of the Navy's expenditures 50 to 60 millions of dollars would pass on to Virginia activities only reduced Navy and Marine Corps personnel, it was anticipated, and possibly the abandonment of some minor stations.

The Hampton Roads naval operating base, at which a training station, air station, receiving station, supply depot and other activities are located, Norfolk Navy Yard and Norfolk Naval Hospital, both at Portsmouth; the Quantico Marine Barracks and air station, Dahlgren proving grounds, Yorktown mine depot and several other smaller posts in Virginia, it was indicated, would be operated much as at present.

Reconditioning of the battleships Idaho and Mississippi at the Norfolk Navy Yard at a cost of $20,000,000 would be continued, although it was anticipated a 10 per cent savings might be accomplished on this work.

The Navy constitutes one of the largest industries in Virginia, the department report for the year ended June 30, 1930, the latest available, showing expenditures for the various stations in the State totaled more than $35,000,000. A total of more than 6,000 officers and men of the Navy and Marine Corps were on duty in Virginia on June 30, 1931.

ham, Conservative, and a Labor candidate.

Today was Sir Austen Chamberlain's sixty-eighth birthday, and he was nominated by the Conservatives in Birmingham.

Another prominent candidate is Edgar Wallace, writer of countless mystery stories, who is running as a Lloyd George Liberal against Capt. Erskine Bolft, Conservative, in Blackpool, amusement center of dance halls and movie theaters.

There are no men candidates in two constituencies, and the old-time slogan will have to become "May the best woman win." In one district the race is between Mrs. Leah Manning, Labor member in the last House, and Miss Thelma Cazalet, Conservative.

A Communist who is serving a prison sentence in Manchester, Christopher Flanagan, was one of the candidates nominated in Gorton.

Despite efforts of leaders to obtain unity, civil war between rival national government candidates will be waged in a few constituencies.

Snowden Letter Attacks Former Labor Comrades

London, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—In a personal letter to candidates of the National Labor party in Great Britain's general election campaign, Philip Snowden, retiring chancellor of the exchequer, tonight bitterly attacked his former colleagues of the Labor government.

"The issue," Mr. Snowden wrote, "is whether the country shall have a strong, stable government in this time of national peril, or whether its destinies shall be handed to men whose conduct in a serious national crisis has proved their unfitness to be trusted with responsibility.

"The choice which the Labor government had to make at the end of August was whether we should put the welfare of the country before other considerations and take the necessary unpleasant measures to protect the financial and economic stability of the nation or whether we would shirk our duty and bow to the dictates of the trade union congress.

"A few of us," his letter continues, "all of whom have a lifetime of service in the labor movement, decided without hesitation to put our duty to the country before party considerations. We did that also because we knew that unless we faced up to the crisis, all that we worked for and won in special amelioration would be lost and a further advance would be rendered impossible.

"The crisis is not passed," Mr. Snowden wrote, "but the worst dangers have been averted by the action which the national government has taken. Its efforts in Parliament were greatly hampered by the labor opposition, which gave the outside world the impression of national disunity and unwillingness to face up to the situation.

"The National Government is appealing to the country to show its condemnation of the cowardice and untrustworthiness of the men who ran away from their national duty in the hour of crisis."

Sherwood in Mexico; Federal Agents Investigate Bank, Stock Accounts.

New York, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Federal income tax investigators today were working on the bank and brokerage accounts of Russell T. Sherwood, accountant for Mayor James J. Walker.

Newspapers saw in the announcement a hint that Federal powers may be used to return Sherwood, who has been sought by the Hofstadter legislative committee for ten weeks. Samuel Seabury, counsel for the committee, said he was powerless to issue a subpena for Sherwood outside the State.

Mexico City, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Russell T. Sherwood, personal accountant of Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, who has been sought for questioning by the legislative committee investigating New York's municipal affairs, was at the Hotel Ritz here this afternoon. Sherwood said he was here on his honeymoon and might remain in Mexico indefinitely.

FAMOUS NAVY BAND MAY BE DISBANDED

ECONOMY AX HANGS OVER BEST IN MUSIC

Frigate Constitution, Also Threatened, Had One of First Navy Bands.

Proposal to scrap the United States Navy Band in order to cut expenses in the Navy Department—if carried out—will kill a 63-piece musical organization which ranks as one of the finest in the United States.

The present organization is comparatively new, having been formed in 1923 under the direction of its present commander, Lieut. Charles Benter. But the Navy Band, as do those of the other service organizations, can trace its beginning almost to the origin of the country itself.

Its earliest trace was a single musician, one James F. Draper, whose name appears on the log of the frigate Brandywine in July, 1825. For his services he received the high salary of $10 a month. Draper, with his fife, probably was the beginning of an organization which was to eliminate the chanteyman's songs as the only music the Navy knew.

However, it was not until 1838 that a real "band" was organized. In that year, the Navy Register shows, a bandmaster, four first-class musicians and one second-class musician, six members in all, comprised the "Navy Band."

It is interesting to note, however, that in 1826 there is a record of a 20-piece band aboard the famous Constitution. This organization apparently was not directly a Navy band. Another feature worth noting in the present situation is the fact that under recommendations the Constitution, which was recently refitted to its former glory, will again be shelved under the economy proposal, along with the Navy Band itself.

In the early days of battle Army musicians did duty as stretcher bearers. The Navy musicians played just as important parts when the fighting started. They were often used as ammunition passers, a job which is no sinecure.

The years of 1917 and 1918 brought rapid changes in the formation of service bands. The armistice brought just as rapid disintegration.

But the Navy Department of that particular era was determined to be represented by the best musical organization possible. It took rapid steps to this end, and, in 1923, the present band of 63-pieces was formed as the United States Navy Band, under the direction of Lieut. Charles Bentler. It was a development of a meager group of eighteen men of the 1918 war period.

Under Lieut. Benter the band rapidly gained fame in Washington, and on several tours played its way into the hearts of Americans in the leading cities. Just at present the band is performing at the sesquicentennial celebration at Yorktown.

Institution Heads Urged To StudyYouth Problem

Baltimore, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—A proposal that heads of juvenile corrective institutions study the problems confronting Federal authorities in dealing with boys and girls who come under their jurisdiction was made today before the national conference of juvenile agencies by Sanford Bates, directors of the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

Mr. Bates declared that while Attorney General Mitchell and other Federal officials have, for more than a year, been working to perfect a system for dealing with juveniles, the aid of heads of the various institutions would go a long way toward solving the problems.

4 Die in Mid-Air Crash Of Mexican Airplanes

Mexico City, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Three Mexican military aviators and one cadet were killed today when two training planes collided here and crashed. The wings of both planes became entangled and were torn off.

It was the second such accident at Valbuena Field in the past 15 months.

HOOVER ASKS PUBLIC BACKING IN DRIVE FOR BUDGET SLASHES

appropriated $100,000 for preparation of plans.

The economy program, it became known yesterday, is even more drastic than was believed. The frigate Constitution (Old Ironsides), a craft rebuilt with the pennies of school children, is to be laid up, and the famous Navy Band, located here, together with bands at other navy yards, is to be abolished.

7,000 Jobs to Be Cut.

Personnel of the Navy and Marine Corps is to be reduced more than 4,000, and more than 3,000 civilians are to be laid off.

Knowing that there would be cries of protest, President Hoover was prepared to stifle them when he opened his 4 o'clock press conference yesterday. Reading from a typed statement, he said:

"I have received the proposals of the high officials of the Navy of plans for reduction of expenditures. They are being considered in the full light of maintained efficiency of the department. Such studies and revisions are equally in progress in every other department of the Government.

No Conclusions Yet Final.

"The proposals of all the departments will require study and consideration. No conclusions have been reached on any particular proposed expenditure or economy. Final decision will not be reached until the final budget is presented to Congress. All of the principal officers of the Government are cooperating to bring about reductions.

"In times when the income of the people is reduced and when taxes or loans may stifle economic recovery there is only one course of sound fiscal policy, and that is to reduce the expenditure of the Government to the last cent consonant with the obligations of the Government.

"There are two great difficulties which confront us in programs of reduced expenditures. The first is the very large proportion of Federal expenditures that are irreduceable. We must meet interest payments on the statutory redemption of the public debt; we must pay allowances and pensions to veterans and pensions to civil servants, &c. Thus over $2,000,000,000 of the Federal budget is in fixed obligations, and such reductions as we can bring about must need be concentrated on less than one-half of the budget.

Special Interests Cited.

"The second difficulty is that the Federal Government must make its contribution to expanded employment so long as the present situation continues.

"I fully realize that while governmental economy as a whole is strongly desired by the public, yet every variety of expenditure has its adherents throughout the country, all of whom are naturally solicitous that their special project should be continued even in times of national difficulty, and they are impatient of reduction or deferment or delays of their projects. Public opinion in support of drastic economies will need to reach into these directions. It must extend also to discouragement of special interests desirous of securing new expenditures for the special projects. The essential services of the Government must and will be maintained, but these are times when with the large deficit facing the country even meritorious projects can, must and will be deferred."

Navy Not to Stand Alone.

The President, as can be seen, was aiming not alone at the Navy Department, but at every department in the Government. He is determined that each shall cut its expenditures. The Navy simply happens to be the first one to have its budget pruned.

Protests can be expected as the cuts in each departmental budget become known.

When the Navy budget for the fiscal year of 1933 (July 1, 1932, to June 30, 1933) was first placed on President Hoover's desk, it called for an appropriation of $401,000,000. The President sent it back to Secretary of the Navy Adams with a request that it be reduced by $61,000,000, or to $340,000,000.

Requested Saving Seen.

Secretary Adams and the bureau chiefs in the Navy have not estimated exactly how much of a saving will be effected as a result of the changes they have made in the budget, but they believe it will be close to the figure suggested by the President.

In addition to the Boston and Charleston yards and the Newport Training Station, the operating base at New Orleans and the naval ammunition depot at Lake Denmark, N. J., are to be closed. The Marine Corps Training Station at Parris Island, S. C., is to go into a "reduced mission" status, which is just another way of saying that it, too, will be closed.

Fleet changes proposed include decommissioning of the battleship Wyoming and the cruiser Rochester, and laying up of the battleship New York, two 8-inch-gun cruisers and six S class submarines.

3 Radio Stations to Go.

The sum it was planned to spend on modernization of the battleships Idaho, New Mexico and Mississippi will be cut more than $3,000,000, if the recommendations are carried out.

Activities of the Naval Reserves and of the aviation units of the fleet are to be sharply reduced.

Recruiting Stations Hit.

One-half of the Navy and Marine Corps recruiting stations are to be closed. The ammunition station at Fort Lafayette, N. Y., and the Naval Hospitals at Charleston and in the Virgin Islands likewise are to be abandoned.

Work of constructing the Naval Hospital at Philadelphia will be postponed, and manufacturing at the Philadelphia Aircraft Factory will be slowed down.

The armor plant at Charleston, W. Va., a structure costing $24,000,000, will be disposed of. It is now idle.

Board Sanctions Park Transaction

Plan for Port Authority to Be Studied; Nolan Is Assigned to Job.

The agreement between the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and Maryland agencies for purchase of the first unit of the Rock Creek Park extension was approved yesterday by the planning body with several amendments suggested by the Department of Justice. The text of the agreement probably will be made public today.

The commission also approved one of three railroad routes to Buzzards Point, which is to be developed as an industrial community, after the plans were explained by William Heisser, railroad consultant. Its engineering staff was instructed also to make a study of regional railway lines leading into the District, chiefly from Virginia.

Indiana Robbers Flee With $25,000

Four Bank Bandits Force Crew and Customers to Lie on Floor.

Kendallville, Ind., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Four bandits held up the Citizens National Bank here this afternoon and escaped with approximately $25,000.

A fifth man waited in an automobile about half a block from the bank.

The robbers compelled Bert Schlabach, cashier; E. C. Vanderburg, assistant cashier, and other employes and three customers to lie on the floor while they looted cash drawers and the vault. A bank patron was slapped by one of the robbers when he failed to lie down quickly.

The robbers threw the money into a sack and then ran down the street, calling to the driver to get the car going. They dashed out of town in a westerly direction. Schlabach said the amount stolen might be more than $25,000 and that it was covered by insurance.

Vienna Issues Warrant For Banker's Arrest

Vienna, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The State attorney today issued a warrant for arrest of Dr. Fritz Enrenfest, former director of the Creditanstalt, which got into difficulties last summer.

It is charged he speculated with funds of the bank, pocketing his winnings but charging his losses to the institution, and also issued checks without cover. Extradition will be asked of the French government, since Dr. Enrenfest is residing in France.

5 New Destroyers to Bear Names of Famous Heroes

The great names of naval history will live again, embodied in the lithe, first-line destroyers of the United States fleet.

Farragut, Dewey, Hull, MacDonough and Worden were the names given yesterday by Secretary Adams to the five new ships under contract or construction at the present time.

Twice before Admiral Farragut has been honored by naval vessel namesakes, but both ships have gone to the scrap heap. The hero of Manila Bay never had this honor paid him. The Hull will commemorate the commander of the Constitution in her victory over the British Guerriere in the War of 112, Commodore Isaac Hull, who has been honored previously.

Commodore Thomas MacDonough won a brilliant victory over a British squadron on Lake Champlain in 1814, while Read Admiral John Lorimer Worden commanded the Monitor in her battle with the Merrimac.

DRYS CHARGE MONEY BOUGHT LEGION VOTE

Strategy Secretary Alleges $100,000 Was Spent in Detroit Drive.

(Associated Press.)

The American Legion's stand for a prohibition referendum and the Federation of Labor's vote against repeal brought comment yesterday from two quarters among the organized drys.

Edwin C. Dinwiddie, executive secretary of the National Prohibition Board of Strategy, said in a letter to Harry L. Stevens, national commander of the legion, that a campaign by a wet organization with a $100,000 budget had been highly influential in the Detroit vote.

The Antisaloon League hailed the Labor Federation's action as definitely topping "the repeal stampede the liquor forces attempted to stage." The league added it was "unfortunate" that the federation went on record for beer.

Legion Sentiment Denied.

Dinwiddie said the action of the legion was not "an accurate reflection of sentiment among veterans as a whole," but resulted from the "lavish use of money."

He forwarded to Stevens a copy of a letter sent out by the American Veterans Association for repeal of the eighteenth amendment in March, 1931, setting its budget at $128,265 "for organizing veterans in every precinct. * * *"

"It is manifest from this fact," Dinwiddie wrote, "that the legion action at Detroit can not be considered as a spontaneous expression of sentiment. Without this lavish use of money to excite and exploit wet sentiment among veterans there is no likelihood that the legion ever would pass a resolution adverse to prohibition."

Warns Democrats on Liquor.

For the sake of the party, Senator Morrison, of North Carolina, is advising fellow Democrats to forget Prohibition planks when they build the 1932 platform.

A Prohibitionist himself, he said yesterday the South "is anxious to have an election on the vital economic issues." Likewise, he added, it wants to avoid the wet and dry question "which by its very nature obscures all others."

North Carolina, he said, likely will send an uninstructed delegation to the party convention although the South in general "has very high regard for both Gov. Roosevelt and Newton D. Baker."

Disaster Seen in Wet Issue.

"I think either Gov. Roosevelt or Mr. Baker," he said, "would carry the South if nominated, but if there is any effort by the wets to nominate a wet candidate and to bind the Democratic members of Congress by party decree to force them to vote against the sentiments of their States the results will be most disastrous."

Senator Morrison was one of those who led the attack upon Chairman Raskob of the Democratic National Committee at its meeting here last March on his proposal for State liquor control.

"I am both a Democrat and a Prohibitionist and propose to remain so," Morrison warned yesterday. "I will fight to the limit against any restriction of or any interference with the Prohibition laws."

Meeting Tonight Set By Nominating Group

The nominating committee appointed at the last meting of the Montgomery County Civic Federation will meet tonight in the office of Col. Thomas Hampton in the Montgomery County Building, at Bethesda, Md. The meeting tonight, which will start at 8 o'clock, is for the purpose of organizing, and it is not believed that the committee will reach selection of a slate for the annual federation election.

Members of the committee are E. H. Bogley, Friendship Heights Citizens Association; J. Harry Welch, Leland Citizens Association; W. B. Horne, Somerset Citizens Association; Dr. George L. Edmonds, Rockville Chamber of Commerce; Col. Hampton, Bethesda Chamber of Commerce; W. I. Cleveland, Kensington Chamber of Commerce, and Robert E. Bondy, Edgemoor Citizens Association.

LABOR WILL IGNORE GANGS IN BEER FIGHT

A. F. of L. Group to Shun Dry Fanatics and Racketeers in Laying Plans.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The modification committee of the American Federation of Labor announced today it would ignore "threats of the army of gangsters and abuse of dry fanatics" in a drive for 2.75 per cent brew.

Meeting a day after adjournment of the federation convention, the modification of Volstead act committee laid plans for carrying out the demand of the convention for legalization of beer without the return of the saloon.

Chairman Matthew Woll and Secretary F. N. Ornburn, of the committee, said they accepted the convention's beer resolution as "an order to work harder for real temperance, for law and order and the protection of public morals and health."

Little Opposition.

The committee statement said there were but "one or two votes" opposing its work and that the "beer band wagon" included men of all shades of thought, ranging from "sincere upholders of theory of prohibition" to eighteenth amendment repealists, but that all had "submerged their opinions for the common good."

Many letters approving the work have been received, the committee said, declaring hundreds to be from those who formerly advocated and supported the program of the Antisaloon League.

"It is significant that persons and organizations who were primarily interested in repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act are advising us that we have offered the only practical method of returning to sanity and the road to real temperance, blocked by the law as it now stands, and opening the way to providing work for hundreds of thousands of men and hundreds of millions of dollars for the Treasury, at the same time increasing respect for law and order."

State Control Urged.

Mild beer would not bring back the saloon, Woll declared, adding that even if it did, conditions would be "100 per cent better" than those now prevailing. States and communities should control beer licensing, the committee said.

"We realize we will face great opposition, much of it from honest men and women who do not realize what prohibition means, who do not know its fearful effect upon public morals. We respect that opposition for we can reason with it.

"Much more will come from professional and fanatical drys who will seek to injure us with abuse. Yet more will come from the army of gangsters whose sources of wealth our activities endanger.

"We will not reply in kind to the fanatic; we can not reply in kind to his more fanatical associate."

Mother Faces Jury In Girl's Poisoning

Child's Recitation of Sixth Commandment Stressed for Defense.

Lebanon, Ind., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Ten-year-old Alice Jean Simmons, a few weeks before she was poisoned, brought tears to the eyes of neighbors by reciting the Ten Commandments, the sixth of which is "Thow Shalt Not Kill," a witness testified today at the murder trial of the child's mother, Mrs. Carrie Simmons.

The child is alleged to have been the victim of poison-filled capsules which the State contends Mrs. Simmons placed in food she prepared for the Simmons-Pollard family reunion here last June.

Mrs. Simmons' attorneys brought before the jurors today an array of character witnesses from the Nameless Creek community in Hancock County, Ind., where the Simmons family had lived for many years. Mrs. Lillian Olden, one of these witnesses, told of Jean appearing on a program of the Nameless Creek Literary Society and, by a dramatic recitation of the Ten Commandments, causing her audience to weep.

Senator Moses Sees Nation As Opposed to Beer Law

New Hampshire Republican Declares 2.75 Per Cent Beverage Has No Kick and Says Country Would Not Vote to Legalize It.

(Associated Press.)

Chuckles mixed with cyptic observations on what's what let Washington know yesterday that George H. Moses is back on the job as senator from New Hampshire.

He pooh-poohed the possibility of beer soon being legalized. He had no good word for the foamy beverage with only 2.75 per cent alcohol, saying it "won't telegraph back after you drink it."

"Most of the people now," he went on laughingly, "want something of about the strength of muriatic acid. Why, you might as well drink a soft drink as 2.75 beer."

The cheerfully brusque New Englander seemed to enjoy the give and take of question and answer with newspaper reporters. He lost none of his characteristic extraordinary frankness over the summer, as he showed in shooting rejoinders to the remarks of men who surrounded the long table on which he sat.

Sees Nation Against Liquor.

Talk of altering the dry amendment he dismissed as futile.

"There's not the slightest hope," he said. "If the country voted tomorrow, on the naked question of wet or dry, it would vote dry."

The 62-year-old legislator, who rebels at the thought of the United States joining the League of Nations, had no objections to this country participating in the league's present endeavors for peace between Japan and China.

"No involvement there," as he expressed it.

As to which party is going to organize the House of Representatives, Moses confided he was not confident that the Republicans would be able to dominate either House or Senate. But he wasn't weeping over it.

He shied from elaborating his celebrated remark of some time back about the Independent Republican senators being "sons of the wild jackass," in this way:

Quit Speculation, He Says.

"I've quit speculation, including the stock market, and that includes statements by me as a biologist."

At the same time, he set himself up as member No. 1 of any bloc formed to thwart the independents of his party in the Senate. This, too, was with a smile and twinkle of the eye.

A rough-and-ready battler in State and national politics for years, the senator specified he had a "political moratorium" on for now. He lifted it long enough to hazard a few remarks about Democratic matters, but nothing came on the Republican side.

New Hampshire has a lot of sentiment for Franklin D. Roosevelt as President, he said. At the same time, he believes "New England, with the possible exception of Maine and Vermont, would be for Al Smith if he were in any sense a candidate."

During the day he visited with President Hoover. Asked whether any matter of news interest was discussed, he shot back. "Well, I just can't quite recollect now."

To Study Fiscal Situation.

Between now and December, he's going to study the Government's fiscal situation and follow the football fortunes of Dartmouth College. He was graduated there in 1890.

A thick-set, heavy-browed man, the senator appeared healthy after the vacation. He spent much of the summer building a library onto his home at Concord.

"You can't tell," he said, "I might need some place like that to retire to after March 5, 1933."

Asked if there was anything else to the building of his library, he returned:

"Well, there's a cellar under it, but it hasn't got anything in it yet."

CANNON DECLARES HE IS NOT SURPRISED

Bishop Telegraphs Lawyer in Capital for Copy of Indictment.

Atlanta, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Bishop James Cannon, jr., said he was "not surprised" at his indictment today by a Federal grand jury in Washington on charges of violating the corrupt practices act through his participation in the anti-Smith presidential campaign of 1928.

"I am not surprised at anything that Roman Catholic district attorney might do," he commented when informed of the indictment. He was attending an executive session of the College of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, of which he is a member.

Bishop Cannon was among the last members of the college to leave the conference room and photographers who sought to have him pose were told that while he did not object to being photographed, he would "not be a party" to further taking of photographs by posing.

There was a slight smile on his face as newspapermen gathered round and he answered a few of the barrage of questions as he walked with the aid of a crutch to an elevator door.

Asked About Indictment.

"Have you anything to say about your indictment, Bishop?" he was asked.

"I haven't seen the newspapers yet," was his reply.

Contents of press dispatches were explained to him briefly.

"Wasn't any one else indicted?" he asked.

A newspaperman said there was another person, a woman, and as he faltered on the name, the bishop supplied it—"Miss Burroughs, you mean."

Miss Ada L. Burroughs, treasurer of the anti-Smith campaign, was named in the indictment with the bishop.

"No one else indicted?" he questioned further.

When told there were no others, he said he would not have been surprised if there were others.

"Do you expect any others to be indicted?" came a query.

"Oh, no," he said, "but I wouldn't be surprised."

The bishop then entered the elevator to go to his room in the hotel where the college met, saying that he would have a statement as soon as he had studied the newspaper report, a copy of which was handed him.

Telegraphs for Copy.

A short time later, however, he said he had telegraphed his attorney at Washington for a copy of the indictment and he would have no statement until he had received the copy.

"I never rely on newspaper accounts of matters of this kind," he said, "and I won't comment further until I have received a copy of the indictment."

The ecumenical conference of Methodism opened here tonight. Asked whether he would remain for the sessions, the bishop said it depended on circumstances.

Forgery "Expert" Loses His Appeal for Freedom

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Hayes Van Gorder, long-term forgery prisoner at the Atlanta Federal Prison, was denied a writt of habeas corpus for his release today after Federal prosecutors charged documents used in the writ were forgeries.

Assistant District Attorney Hal Lindsay said Van Gorder, who is serving a sentence here for forging his way out of the Fort Leavenworth, Kans., prison on March 2, 1929, had forged documents upon which his appeal for the writ were based. Federal Judge Marvin Underwood dismissed the petition and ordered him back to prison.

Tide Water Oil Merger Effort Is Abandoned

New York, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—A joint statement was issued today by officials of Sinclair Consolidated Oil Co. and Tidewater Associated Oil Co., stating that efforts to merge Tidewater with three other companies had been abandoned.

The statement follows a similar announcement made yesterday by Prairie officials that Tidewater had dropped out of the negotiations.

CANNON AND AID INDICTED

clerk of the House of Representatives. Four others charged technical failure to report.

The 66-year-old clergyman was charged with abetting the eight violations, while two additional counts named him for conspiring with Miss Burroughs to commit the offenses. Under the law an abettor is made equally responsible.

Fine and Prison Provided.

For each wilful violation and conspiracy to violate wilfully the maximum penalty upon conviction is not more than $10,000 fine and two years imprisonment. For the four technical violations and other conspiracy charges the law provides a maximum of $1,000 fine or one year imprisonment each.

The jury's report came with a suddenness that caught even the district attorney's office unaware. Almost immediately after it convened, the 23 jurors filed into Justice James Proctor's court and interrupted a sparsely attended criminal trial to deliver the indictment.

Because of a misunderstanding, the jury acted more than two hours before the time fixed for the report. District Attorney Rover was busy in his office on police brutality cases.

Mr. Wilson, self-announced Protestant, Republican and "personal dry," who is conducting the case, was at his desk awaiting the hour fixed for the report when a newspaperman rushed in with word "They've indicted Cannon."

Theodore B. Gittings, youthful grand jury foreman, presented the finding to Justice Proctor.

It was at Mr. Gittings' request last week that Justice Proctor ordered William Tyler Page, clerk of the House, to produce the bishop's original campaign reports after that official refused, claiming such action was contrary to House rules.

Overt Acts Are Listed.

Eight overt acts were listed by the grand jury to sustain each conspiracy count. They included the campaign reports filed by Miss Burroughs, but allegedly not accounting for all the Jameson contributions; the receipt by Bishop Cannon of $10,000 from Mr. Jameson and subsequent payment of $2,832 by the clergyman to his committee and a telegram said to have been sent by the bishop to Mr. Jameson on February 12, 1[illegible], three months after the election.

Until then, Mr. Jameson's gifts had not been included in reports of contributions, but the New Yorker had told the Senate campaign funds committee of his donations. The telegram said:

"Tried to talk to New York, but office closed, Lincoln's Birthday. After careful examination records, think statement should be 'paid headquarters committee anti-Smith Democrats, $17,300, paid Virginia committee anti-Smith Democrats, $48,000, making total $65,300.'

"This will correspond exactly with our official reports. Call Lincoln 2946, Washington, any time after 8:30 until midnight tonight when leaving for New York. Sailing Thursday."

Belated Report Made.

Later, after the time limit allowed by law, Miss Burroughs made a report to the clerk of the House detailing the $17,300 contribution. Bishop Cannon contended before the Senate campaign funds committee, headed by Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, that the other $48,000 was for a State campaign and did not require a report.

The indictments recited the corrupt practice laws required campaign fund reports between the tenth and fifteenth days preceding the 1928 election of November 6; on the fifth day preceding this election; on the first day of January, 1929, and between first and tenth days of March, 1929.

The sections of the indictment dealing with overt acts said Miss Burroughs was shown to have filed regular reports listing other contributions to the anti-Smith committee within the designated periods, namely, October 30, November 3 and January 2.

The indictment did not mention contributions of $20,000 which former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, New Jersey Republican, has said he gave the bishop. Contributions by Mr. Jameson were listed as September 18, 1928, $10,000; September 28, $10,000; October 9, $10,000; October 16, $5,000; October 16, $5,000; October 19, $18,000; December 6, $4,300; January 14, 1929, $3,000.

SEDITION RULE BILL IS PASSED BY DAIL

Session in Uproar as Measure Providing Military Courts Is Passed.

Dublin, Irish Free State, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—In the midst of uproar and blasts of bellicose debate, the Dail Eireann today passed the Irish public safety bill, which establishes military courts to try persons charged with sedition against the government.

The bill, which is an amendment to the constitution, was passed in the Dail by a vote of 83 to 65. Saorstat soldiers with fixed bayonets and a number of detectives stood guard while the fiery debate proceeded.

After it passed third reading in the Dail it was sent to the Senate, where it passed on first and second reading by a vote of 46 to 16. It is slated for final passage in the Senate tomorrow, and if it is voted through it will become effective immediately.

During today's debate Eamon de Valera, Republican leader, withdrew cowardice charges against President Cosgrave which he had previously made, whereupon Gerald Boland, whose brother fell in the Irish civil war, shouted to Richard Mulcahy, minister of health:

"I know you well, Mulcahy! You organized the Irish Republican brotherhood, and when you were interned at Fronloch, in Wales, with the bunch you had around you, you suggested poisoning British soldiers!"

Answering the charge, Gen. Mulcahy asked the Dail: "Shall we give way to those who murdered Police Chief Curtin and young Ryan in Tipperary?"

Martin Corry, Dail member, joined in with:

"The less said about murders by the minister the better."

Capital Woman Hurt In Lee Highway Crash

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Theon, 1809 G street northwest, narrowly escaped serious injury when their automobile skidded into a car operated by Adolphus Hyson, colored, of Halls Hill, on the Lee highway, near Lyon Village, Arlington County, yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Theon was treated at Emergency Hospital for lacerations about the head. Mr. Lewis escaped injury. Hyson was treated at Georgetown Hospital for lacerations about the head and face. County police said last night both automobiles are being held for further investigation.

LAVAL SENDS BRIAND RADIO URGING PEACE

Premier, at Sea, in Message to Geneva, Gives Pledge of Collaboration.

Aboard the S. S. Ile de France, at Sea, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Premier Pierre Laval, en route to Washington to confer with President Hoover on world problems, sent a radio message to Foreign Minister Aristide Briand at Geneva tonight urging him to do his utmost to terminate the conflict between China and Japan in Manchuria.

Laval sailed from Havre after a farewell ceremony at the Town Hall.

"I want to collaborate with the United States only to consolidate peace," the premier said.

Mlle. Josette Laval, 19-year-old daughter of the premier who overcame her father's objections to accompanying him on the journey, was the happiest member of the party, which included the premier's assistants, 30 newspapermen and several prominent French officials.

Laval had his daughter travel in the passenger coach en route to Havre from Paris and she did not appear with the official party. On board ship the premier immediately went to work, insisting that Mlle. Josette join his secretarial staff for English translations.

Laval was accompanied by one woman secretary, two secret service men and eight other aids. He had no valet.

The mission will be joined by the undergovernor of the Bank of France and the director of commercial studies of the bank who are now in New York.

Hospital Discharges Victim of Poisoning

Phillip Partridge, 22, a former Marine, who was rushed to Emergency Hospital, Thursday night for treatment for poison he casually informed friends he had taken 10 tablets of, was discharged from Emergency Hospital yesterday.

It was indicated at the hospital that no traces of poison seemed to be evident in diagnosing Partridge's condition. Partridge is the son of Dr. George E. Partridge, noted psychologist, of Towson, Md., and was discharged because of a mental disability from the Marine Corps, last month's records showed.

NAVY REDUCTIONS.

President Hoover makes it known that no decision has been reached concerning particular items to be cut from the budget of the Navy Department. All departments are pruning and revising their estimates, following the instructions of the President to eliminate all unnecessary items. He gives notice that even meritorious projects must be deferred, in view of the reduced income of the people and the Government and the desirability of avoiding increased taxes or debts.

The Navy must be expected to contribute its share in the reduction of expenditures, but some of the cuts proposed in the preliminary estimates are so drastic as to give rise to widespread protest. No doubt the President's statement is intended to reassure the public that the cuts will not be so severe as to cripple the Navy.

In view of the persistent and ingenious efforts of foreign powers to avoid reduction of naval armament, the peace and security of the United States seem to require that the Navy shall be as strong as any other. This thesis is at the bottom of the London naval treaty, and it was upon this understanding that the treaty was ratified. Hence it may be expected that Congress will look askance at reductions in the naval estimates if these reductions would have the effect of impairing the actual and constantly available fighting strength of the Navy. Mr. Hoover's assurance that the reductions will be made in the full light of maintained efficiency will be reinforced by the determination of Congress to keep the national safety beyond all question.

PINCHOT IN REVERSE.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot has called a special session of the Pennsylvania Legislature to deal with unemployment relief. A few months ago Gov. Pinchot was pleading poverty in behalf of Pennsylvania and calling upon the Federal Government to appropriate a few billion dollars to feed the unemployed. Why this sudden change of heart?

While he was demanding a Federal dole, Gov. Pinchot declared that Pennsylvania could not look after its own unemployed because the State constitution did not authorize the issuance of bonds for such purposes. Now apparently he has found a way whereby a $10,000,000 issue of "prosperity bonds" can be used to finance a relief program. The present elaborate plan to provide work and relief emphasizes the shallowness of his arguments for a Federal dole.

In view of what has taken place in most of the States, it is not difficult to understand why Gov. Pinchot had to reverse his policy. President Hoover launched a Nation-wide relief program based on the self-reliance of each community. Governors and mayors from all over the country voiced their cooperation. One after another they informed the President that they would take responsibility for the administration of relief within the political divisions over which they presided. Democrats and Republicans alike joined in a movement to preserve the self-respect of the States.

Gov. Pinchot was left alone in the wilderness, crying for a dole like a lost sheep. Pennsylvania rapidly acquired the stigma of a bankrupt State in the minds of the people. Senator Reed protested against Gov. Pinchot's whining and was overwhelmingly supported by the press and public opinion in the Keystone State. After irreparable damage had been done the governor apparently came to a realization that he had been calumniating the State that he was elected to serve.

It may be assumed that the Legislature will respond to the emergency and take whatever steps are necessary to relieve suffering and to provide work through the acceleration of public improvements, but Gov. Pinchot will find it difficult to undo the damage he has done to the reputation of Pennsylvania and its people.

MENTAL STABILITY.

Human endurance, says Dr. Charles H. Mayo, is not keeping pace with the march of civilization. Man is changing his environment so rapidly that the human body and brain find adaptation to the new conditions extremely difficult. As a result, Dr. Mayo says, half of the hospital beds in the United States are occupied by mentally afflicted or senile persons. He intimates that the world is paying for its advance in civilization by a greater toll of insanity and feeble-mindedness.

It would be interesting to know whether mental instability has really increased during the last few decades within the various age groups. The increase in senility is well established. The average individual lives much longer today than he did at the turn of the century. Hence, a greater degree of dependency and mental deterioration resulting from old age can be expected. But has insanity among persons below 40 years of age, for example, increased?

One other factor must be taken into consideration. Psychiatry has been studied extensively in recent years. Today science considers mentally unbalanced thousands who would not have been so classed a few years ago. The increased ability of medical men to recognize and diagnose the many forms of insanity gives the appearance of increasing mental instability whether or not any actual change has taken place.

Even if it is proved that the strain put upon the nervous system by modern civilization has increased insanity, science will hesitate to condemn civilization. For centuries man has struggled against physical obstacles, learning to adapt himself to new foods, new forms of shelter, clothing, work, &c. The chief strain has been upon his physical body. Now he must endure mental strain. If the theories of science are correct, that test of endurance should strengthen the nervous system of the race. Evolution proceeds with the adaptation of man to his environment. Is it not possible that the stimulation of the mentality and the nervous system which comes from current modes of living may ultimately result in greater mental stability and higher intellectual development?

THIRD DEGREE INDICTMENTS.

The indictment of eighteen members of the Police Department on third degree charges is the outcome of exposures made by The Post in the case of James Henry Harker. Four police officers are charged with brutality in Harker's case. Investigation by the Department of Justice by direction of President Hoover brought forth evidence which convinced the grand jury that many other brutal assaults had been committed by police officers.

The accused officers have been suspended, awaiting trial. Possibly some of them will be acquitted, but it seems quite evident that third degree practices have been common, and that the higher authorities have either condoned these practices or have been neglectful in enforcing discipline.

The first effect of the grand jury's action should be a tightening up of discipline in the Police Department. Whether accused officers are convicted or not, third degree brutality must be stamped out, even if the department must be reorganized from top to bottom.

The eyes of the Government and the community are upon the Police Department. Good and faithful men need have no fear that they will be involved in the impending clean-up. The force as a whole is law-abiding and efficient. Unfortunately a few bad characters have been clothed with the uniform from time to time, and their misdeeds have cast discredit upon the department. Among the reforms that are imperatively required is a better system of choosing policemen. Crooked men can be excluded. A more vigilant supervision of police officers is necessary.

AL SMITH VS. ROOSEVELT.

Al Smith has brought himself into the political limelight again by caustically denouncing a proposed amendment to the New York State constitution to which Gov. Roosevelt is committed. This measure was passed by both the 1930 and 1931 Legislatures and signed by Gov. Roosevelt. Arrangements are being made to have it submitted to the people. Prior to his address at Tammany Hall this week former Gov. Smith had never raised his voice against the proposed amendment. But on that occasion he found it to be full of "wicked features."

The amendment in question deals with reforestation. Outside of New York it attracts little interest. But the clash between Al Smith and Franklin Roosevelt over the issue reverberates throughout the country. Gov. Roosevelt has made the reforestation measure one of his favorite projects. He can not avoid defending it without a damaging reversal of policy. Former Gov. Smith has promised "to deal at greater length" with the proposed amendment, and there is every indication that he will actively campaign against it.

It appears that the standard bearer of the Democratic party in 1928 has taken this means of making known that he is not in sympathy with the Roosevelt presidential boom. Gov. Smith has been quick to deny all reports that he is out of the 1932 race. Furthermore, he has intrenched himself in Tammany Hall and it appears that the wigwam is ready to oppose Gov. Roosevelt if the Happy Warrior but says the word. When Al appeared on the speakers' platform he was hailed as "the next President of the United States" and enthusiastically acclaimed. No such demonstration was made when the governor's name was mentioned.

Throughout his speech Gov. Smith refrained from criticizing Tammany, in spite of the revelations of the Hofstadter committee that is investigating New York City's government. He is supporting the Tammany candidates. On the other hand, Gov. Roosevelt came close to a rupture with the leaders of the wigwam over the legislative investigation in New York City, and their relations are still strained. In fact, Daniel F. Colahan, former State supreme court justice and a member of Tammany's board of strategy, has just charged the governor with conspiracy in connection with the enactment of a law creating twelve new justiceships.

If Tammany Hall withholds its support from Gov. Roosevelt in the Democratic convention the whole situation will be changed. In that event it is quite conceivable that the fight over the nomination will become a free-for-all. The recent developments in Tammany Hall indicate how flimsy are the claims that Gov. Roosevelt already has the nomination in his knapsack.

THE WORLD'S FAVORED.

Quite aside from the studied exaggerations of Bernard Shaw with regard to conditions in the United States, the lurid tales in Russian propaganda of American crime and starvation, or even the futile whispering campaign in France to upset the value of the dollar, it is not surprising that many Europeans have an incorrect view of this country. That is because the American people parade their troubles so prominently before the eyes of all the world. Industrial, financial, economic and political afflictions are heralded in the newspapers by politicians, Government officials and reformers. In fact, America's dirtiest linen is always laundered in public.

Comparatively few persons abroad are in a position to discriminate between the trivial and important American news. Sensational stories of crime, unemployment and financial stringency find more frequent place in foreign cables than reports concerning big crops and the comparative comfort of the great majority of the American people, even in these times of depression. Exaggerations of misfortune are not limited to statements from other lands. A number of American politicians have demonstrated their willingness to befoul the home nest for political reasons.

Any impartial observer who has traveled abroad and any European visitor who really sees the United States know that this country is in immeasurably better condition today than other nations. That the depression has accentuated maladjustments no one can deny, but with vast resources unimpaired this Nation is in a position to resume operations more readily than any other country. The American people are both able and willing to care for all who are out of work, and measures are being taken to make certain that no one will go hungry or cold this winter.

Americans are so accustomed to a high standard of living they are unaware of the fact that many things have become everyday necessities here which are still inaccessible luxuries for most people in the Old World.

There is no excuse today for any lack of faith in America. This country has the wealth of every kind at hand sufficient to assure a return of normal business and prosperity. It is so much more self-contained than any other nation that it can lead the world in recovery. The efforts that are being made today by the ablest men and women of the country will prevent want and suffering among the unemployed, and by restoring a proper measure of credit will restore confidence and open the road to a resumption of industrial activity.

THE MONEY-GO-ROUND.

By SAMUEL RUSSELL.

The gold standard has not been abrogated in Great Britain. Twenty-four grains of gold are 100 cents in every quarter and corner of the globe.

The gold standard measures the sterling debts of the Bank of England at 380 cents. It measures the 5-franc notes of the Bank of France at 19.7 cents. It measures peso debts of Mexico at 36 cents. It measures Canadian dollar debts at 95 cents. It measures silver at 28 cents per ounce. And it is the gold standard which ultimately measures the contractual credit and debt valuation of every barrel, bushel and bale that moves in the commerce of nations.

American bank paper fell to nothing in 1837. We had free coinage of silver then. Government greenbacks went down to 35 cents on July 11, 1864. Greenbacks stood at about 60 cents at the close of the Confederate war. We had free coinage of silver then. And there are among us now men whose paper is not worth the traditional 30 cents. Volubility on the subject of silver does not make men solvent.

The most erudite elocutionist and ready reader and repeater on Capitol Hill recently gave a radio recital from Coin Harvey's book on silver which he had learned by heart 36 years ago. And this was put out as a contemporary argument for the "rehabilitation" of silver, whatever that means.

Now what do the silverites mean by rehabilitation? If they mean stabilization, the answer is that silver is being stabilized at around 30 cents. If the silverites mean "free coinage," let us have the details of their project for remonetization. If there is to be unlimited coinage of silver, it will have to be on the basis of the stabilized price. If we take the bullion ounce at 30 cents and deduct 10 per cent for the difference between the bullion ounce and the trade ounce and then deduct 10 per cent more for alloy, we produce a cartwheel quarter of standard mint silver which weighs 25 grains more than the standard silver dollar. The question is, do we want such cartwheel quarters, even if we could sell them for a shilling in London?

If we could establish the custom of coins on the counter in every trade, then silver would be the thing. But silver can not become the standard for contractual credit and debt and of the vast domestic and international accounting mechanism which the gold standard supports. A bimetallic or double standard for credit and their reciprocal debts is not to be thought of. And that is the end of the argument.

Credit and debt are but the obverse and reverse faces of the same thing. The nominal standard for credit and debts is gold, but the thing actually accomplished by the credit and debt process is the exchange of equivalent values in goods. The great mass of trade transactions are closed and cleared without redemption of credits or payment of debts in gold. There is seldom recourse to gold transfers, and the call for such recourse should be reduced to the lowest possible proportions by the progressive perfection of the clearing process. That is the one way of monetary reform.

The act of April 2, 1792, defined the American dollar as 24.75 grains of pure gold. The act of June 28, 1834, cut the gold in the dollar to 23.22 grains in order to "doctor" the ratio to silver. The act of March 14, 1900, provided gold parity for the silver dollar, thus effectively abolishing the coinage ratio and providing for but one kind of money in the United States. If recurring changes in the coin weights were made in order to stabilize the ratio, we would have a stabilization about as crazy as Prof. Irving Fisher's scheme to "fix" the dollar by changing its gold grain weight with every change in the price of Fisher's composite commodities.

Honor Where Due.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

President Hoover's statement, made by air to the International Association of Chiefs of Police, meeting at St. Petersburg, Fla., deserves more than passing attention. He calls upon the public to be sentimental about the policeman, who protects it, rather than the gangster and criminal, who prey upon it. Glorify the forces of the law, not the forces that war against it.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN

My dear Louise: Outlaw wolves usually are shrewd old fellows made wary by many contacts with traps and ambuscades.

They are wiser than humans. People tend to make the same mistakes again and again, as though their minds were enslaved by habit and unable to quit or change a method after once employing it. Most of the foolish and costly mistakes made by people in middle age result from the inability to profit by experience.

You are a long way from middle age; but you are in the midst of an era that is making strange history, and the time is ripe to store up wisdom for the years to come.

The present affords you a rare opportunity to observe the workings of a trap. I want you to see it clearly and realize that it is a trap, so that in future you may recognize and avoid it.

You are happily free of superstition and scornful of fortune tellers, crystal gazers and spooks, so I can call your attention to a strange phenomenon without alarming you.

Observe, then, how far from normal the world is and how strangely it is behaving.

In all lands there is persecution or scorn of religion, resentment and flouting of established authority, unrest, fear of impending disaster, unreasonable behavior. Almost nowhere can you find peace of mind, contentment and a feeling of security.

Strange and revolutionary occurrences, like the mutiny of England's navy, the effort by American States to exclude one another's products, the use of public money to combat the law of supply and demand, the use of martial law to fix prices—all these are accepted as mere items of the day's news.

A man who had been out of the world for 20 years would think it mad—and mad it is. Men are again addled by the same sinister something that made witch hunters of our forefathers.

What is it? No man knows. Possibly some new atmosphere picked up in the earth's travels; possibly a bombardment by unknown rays; possibly a supernatural influence beyond our ken. In any case, it is something world wide, periodic and treacherous.

There will be other such periods, when the herd stampedes and runs wild for a time. Watch for them. Watch yourself. Make no lifetime decisions. Don't trust your judgment until the world is sane again. You can't shoot straight in a fog. Love, DAD.

PRO AND CON

Half the Battle.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Senator James J. Davis, in his speech before the national convention of the American Federation of Labor this week, touched the sensitive nerve of the present condition of economic depression when he declared, in substance, that the destruction of fear in the public mind would mean the winning of half, if not more, the battle in the cause of business and industrial prosperity.

Senator Davis is against the dole, or anything like it. He would eliminate "wildcat financing and stock juggling." But it is fear that more than anything else is clogging the wheels of progress. The fear that reduces buying power—the fear of the gainfully employed; the fear of bankers and men of wealth. We have an abundance of national reserve wealth. Can we get over our calamitous fright long enough to exercise wisdom in the use of this wealth—to use it while we still have it? This is Senator Davis' query. If that could be done the problem of unemployment would become of negligible importance and normal economic activity again would profit business and labor.

Warm Welcome.

Sure Sign.

Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Fall is indeed here. The lists of indorsed candidates begin to bloom by the roadside.

Hydra-Headed State.

Baltimore Sun.

Louisiana, which has been afflicted since March 4 by the spectacle of one man trying to hold on to two important public offices, is now forced to submit to the indignity of having two men trying at the same time to hold one office. The latter exhibition is the direct outgrowth of the former. Angered by Huey Long's continuance in the gubernatorial chair after his term in the United States Senate had begun, Paul N. Cyr, lieutenant governor, has undertaken a coup d'etat for the purpose of translating Huey from the gubernatorial chair to the Senate in order to leave the former office for his own (Cyr's) occupancy.

Long's obstinate determination to hold on to the gubernatorial office while leaving the State of Louisiana without its just representation in the Senate is of a piece with the dictatorial processes of a Nicaraguan filibuster. Cyr's opposing tactics are equally outlandish.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Confusion Arising From Depression Should Not Induce People to Try Quack Remedies.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Disgusted Housewife" and "Housewife" have written you relative to their bewilderment about making contribution to help the unemployed. They are only experiencing what some of us have puzzled over for a long time.

The truth is that bewilderment is the prevailing condition all around us. The big financiers are so much at sea that many of them are in large measure standing by, waiting for the atmosphere to clear. This statement is proved by the fact that bank holdings are steadily on the increase.

There are plenty of ready suggesters, telling us the way out, but when we undertake to follow their advice we find the way blocked, or that the remedy is worse than the disease. Some legislators have opened the way for race-track gambling, or petitioned for "beer and wine" to help out of the depression. These proposals are far worse than the ills for which they are prescribed.

But with all the difficulties in the way, we must not forget that on each of us is the obligation to help relieve the suffering which is all around us.

In our confusion we must not lose our heads nor our consciences. We should not buy vile literature or bootleg liquor, just because the solicitor needs the money.

W. B. WITHERSPOON.

Motorist Complains About Obliterated Signs and Lack of Traffic Regulations.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I called at the traffic department the same day that Mr. Van Duzen got his ticket. I am sure he didn't pay anything, but I did and so did some others. I looked around for "No parking" signs; did not observe any, so parked in what looked like a good place, went to the offices to get my title and also to get a copy of the traffic regulations. I was told they didn't have any official copies, but received a folder showing some of the more important rules. I came back to where my car was parked and an officer was waiting. I had parked in a restricted place. I asked the officer where was the sign. He took me around to the curbside of my car, and there, in faint letters on the curb, was "No Parking." I put up my $5.

The next day I went to court. I must say the officer was very honest. He told the judge he could hardly read the words himself, but that at the time I parked Mr. Van Duzen was watching my car and he had tagged others in the same place and had to tag mine, too. I got my money back, after promising "Not to do it again." But I lost $4 in time, as I am a worker who is paid by the hour. Why don't they have signs up on posts or trees where people can see them?

This is a fine state of affairs, a director of traffic who doesn't know where he can't park, citizens being arrested for the same reason, and no one to tell us what we can or can not do. And last, but not least, no official books on traffic rules.

ONE WHO GOT CAUGHT.

Wine and Beer Industry Employed Only 78,592 Persons Before Prohibition.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Urged by the exaggerated claim of the wets that the return of light wines and beer would put $2,000,000,000 additional money in circulation and provide employment for 1,500,000 persons, I have consulted the Government records for the manufacturing of these products in the year 1914, a period when these industries were practically normal, and I find the cold facts as follows:

| | No. of Estab. | Salaried Em-ployes | Wage Earners | Total Per-sons |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Malt liquors Beer, &c.... | 1,250 | 12,823 | 62,070 | 75,404 |
| Vinous liquors Wines, &c... | 318 | 594 | 2,292 | 3,188 |
| Total .... | 1,568 | 13,417 | 64,362 | 78,592 |

Am I to understand from this that the wets are going to drink sufficient additional liquor to provide employment for the other 1,420,000 persons, or do they think that many legalized "bootleggers" will be needed to sell the stuff?

The total wholesale value of products of wine and beer in 1914 was as follows:

|---|---|
| Malt, beer, &c. | $442,148,597 |
| Wines, &c. | 16,618,378 |

This is about 23 per cent of the figure used by the wets. I must confess I'm curious to know how they propose to make up the other 77 per cent. Surely they would not demand a profit of 400 or 500 per cent.

UNPURCHASABLE.

In spite of market rise or fall
And all the woes that panics bring,
There still returns for one and all
The verdant glory of the spring.
The gold of autumn never fails.
Though rich or poor the man may be
October spreads along the trails
A wealth of charm for him to see.

Strange thought that comes in tragic years,
When loss is everywhere deplored,
That man should shed so many tears
For pleasures which he can't afford.
That he who seems so strong and wise
Still fancies he can purchase mirth,
And, lacking money, blinds his eyes
To all the other joys of earth.

Yet never has he bought a friend
With silver worthy of the name.
The comrade, faithful to the end,
Not in the ways of barter came.
The love which strengthens him in care,
The beauty of the world at large,
And all that makes life's pathway fair

CALLES SAYS CRISIS IS PAST IN MEXICO

General Declares It Is His Duty to Sacrifice Rest and Health.

Mexico City, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, Mexico's "strong man," declared it his duty to the nation to sacrifice "rest and health" when he formally took over the post of minister of war today.

The general, who recently was ordered to undergo a course of treatment for his health in the United States, assumed the office at a brief ceremony attended by all the high military officers in central Mexico, including Gen. Amaro, whom he succeeded.

Meanwhile President Ortiz Rubio continued his attempt to form a cabinet to replace the resigned ministry. Newspapers reported that Manuel C. Tellez, former Ambassador to the United States, was being considered for the post of foreign minister.

"I have come to head the ministry of war because of the political crisis which was presented within the government," Gen. Calles said in taking over his new post.

"The crisis has now been avoided, thanks to the patriotism shown by members of the army, principally by Gen. Amaro."

Gen. Calles again thanked Gen. Amaro for "aiding the federal government to resolve this political crisis. In addition to Gen. Amaro, three other military men withdrew from cabinet posts. They are Gens. Almazan, Cardenas and Cedillo.

Newspaper commentators said that Gen. Estrada, who resigned as foreign minister, would be offered the education portfolio, and that Aaron Saenz, who was secretary of industry, commerce and labor, would be included in the new cabinet.

Collegians Give Hoover Football for Grandson

(Associated Press.)

A shiny new football was accepted yesterday by President Hoover from the hands of the University of Kentucky football squad. It is intended for his young grandson, Herbert Hoover 3d.

As the President accepted the ball, he showed he had held one before. Returning to his office after being photographed with the university group, he tossed it expertly to one of his secretaries, Lawrence Richey, who walked a few steps ahead of him.

The ball bore the inscription: "To Herbert Hoover 3d, from the University of Kentucky Football Squad—1931."

The Kentuckians will play the University of Maryland this afternoon.

Dr. W. J. Cooper Is Better.

Youngstown, Ohio, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The condition of Dr. William John Cooper, United States Commissioner of Education, who suffered a slight stroke of apoplexy two weeks ago, was sufficiently improved to permit him to leave a hospital here today. He left here for Washington.

$115,000 Interest Default Charged

Court Asked to Appoint Receivers for McKinley Apartment House.

Charging that there had been a default in interest payments on the $115,000 first trust of the McKinley Apartments, 1832 Second street northeast, C. Matilda Menke, through Attorneys Peele, Ogilby & Lesh, yesterday filed suit in the District Supreme Court seeking to have an "equity jurisdiction" assumed by the court on the building.

The suit alleges that there are back taxes amounting to $2,857.32 owing, besides back interest on the trust, and also that the water bill has not been paid and that there is danger of the water supply being cut off. Appointment of receivers to conserve the property under jurisdiction of the court is asked. The bill is titled for the "appointment of receivers and for judicial forecloasure." Sale of the property was not asked.

Those named as defendants are Henry P. Blair, Martin F. O'Donoghue, Henry F. Woodard, and Frank P. Harman as trustees; Frank Tomlinson, 1537 Ogden street northwest; Anton A. Koerber, 1451 Park road northwest; the Federal-American National Bank, and the McKinley Apartments.

1930 German Arms Cost $176,930,655

Geneva, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The League of Nations secretariat today published Germany's statement on armaments expenditures in 1930, showing an outlay of 520,728,331 marks ($130,182,082) for land forces; 186,994,294 marks ($46,728,331) for naval forces, and nothing at all for air forces.

Magician Says New Light Will Revolutionize Theater

Alexander Strobl Makes Chorus Girls, Tables and Chairs Disappear With His Ultra-Violet Rays; Sees Illumination of Future Changed.

New York, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Alexander Strobl, who makes whole stages full of chorus girls vanish with his magical black light, predicted today ultra-violet rays soon will revolutionize the theater, movies, advertising and interior decorating.

The dynamic little Hungarian chemist, who labored for twelve years trying to perfect invisible lighting, is working on an experiment which will enable theatergoers to sit in darkness and read their programs as if they were illuminated by a spotlight.

His plan to flood theaters with hundreds of thousands of watts of this "U. V." light will cause stairways and exits to glow; seat numbers will stand out, eliminating the need of ushers' flashlights, and still the house will be black.

"In this new era there will be no intermissions," the chemist said, "for the ultra-violet light will shift the scenery and even change the actors' costumes."

Standing in front of his miniature stage, Strobl snapped buttons, causing chairs, tables and figures to vanish, and making invisible colors glow, as he explained "U. V." lighting.

"Light from an ordinary globe contains 95 per cent visible light and 5 per cent U. V.," he said. "By filtering out the 95 per cent we get a beam of the invisible light.

"I spent years before I discovered the first chemical. When the U. V. beam hit it, it gave off a red glow. Then followed more years of experimenting."

These chemicals, although they produce a rainbow of color under the black light, are nearly all white or pale yellow in ordinary light.

Figures walking up and down unpainted ladders appear to float in the air. A girl in a red dress and a man in a business suit are transformed into an ogre and a peacock under U. V. light. Without benefit of makeup, an actor can jump into a Negro role, for unless he used chemicals on his face it appears as black as ink.

VOTE STUDY SHOWS REPUBLICANS ACTIVE

Arlington County Chronicle Announces Result of Straw Ballot.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The straw ballot as taken by the Chronicle, an Arlington County newspaper, the result of which will appear in its columns today, shows that the county Republican organization was more active than any one of the several candidates.

An analysis of the vote shows that many voters were interested in the heads of the ticket, such as Commonwealth's attorney, sheriff, and State officers, while others were interested only in candidates for the county board. The vote shows that out of more than 900 votes cast, more than 80 per cent were correctly marked.

Change of Venue Given in 2 Cases

$20,000 Damage Suit to Go on Trial at Harford, Md.

The suit for $20,000 damages for injuries suffered in an auto accident, filed against Kent R. Mullikin, chairman of the Prince Georges County delegation in the State Legislature, has been ordered removed to Harford County for trial.

Attorneys for the plaintiffs asked the move, alleging that they could not obtain a fair trial in Prince Georges County, where the suit was filed. The plaintiffs are Maxine Landes, Cecil Landes, Staten Landes and Eugene P. Hubbell, who were injured in a collision between their auto and one driven by Mr. Mullikin on the Baltimore boulevard. The Circuit Court at Marlboro also approved a change of venue for the suit of Alfred Wells, of Marlboro, against the American Oil Co.

Credit Concern's Notes Approved

U. S. Treasury Will Accept Paper as Collateral for Deposits.

(Associated Press.)

Gold notes of the National Credit Corporation will be accepted by the Treasury as collateral on deposits of public money in designated institutions.

The announcement was made yesterday by Secretary Mellon. It gives to the notes of the corporation created at the suggestion of President Hoover the same collateral value now accorded to commercial paper and bankers' acceptances. Under existing regulations governing deposits, those securities are accepted at 90 per cent of their face value.

Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, yesterday asked that the credit corporation extend its activities to banks which have closed but are solvent.

He said he had been informed by officers of the corporation that it can not aid closed banks until its board of directors has approved.

Visiting Germans See Nations Ending War

New York, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Two German industrial magnates, who arrived here today, predicted that through closer cooperation of the nations of the world will come international peace and more prosperous times.

They are Wilhelm Guno, former chancellor of Germany and now chairman of the board of the Hamburg American Steamship Co., and Dr. Carl von Siemens, head of the Siemens Electrical Works, of Germany. Both came to the United States to attend the eighth conference of major industries to meet in New York City Wednesday.

Two Caught by Cave-in.

Two colored men, Gary Corley and Erskine Kidd, while working yesterday on the Alexandria City street force, were caught in a cave-in of a gravel bank at Mount Ida, and partly buried. They were extricated by fellow workmen and taken to the Alexandria Hospital where they were treated for cuts and bruises.

Great Women Writers Are Chosen by Phelps

Chicago, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Dr. William Lyon Phelps, Yale professor of literature, declined today to predict a score of the Yale and Chicago football game tomorrow, but obliged reporters instead with his selection of the "six foremost living women novelists of the United States."

They were:

Edith Wharton, Willa Cather, Edna Ferber, Anne Sedgwick, Zona Gale and Dorothy Canfield. To Fannie Hurst and Mary Roberts Rhinehart he awarded honorable mention.

Clarendon Chest Plan Is Opposed

County Not Yet Ready for Step Is Contention at Meeting.

The plan to establish in Arlington County a Community Chest was abandoned at a mass meeting of delegates of interested organizations held at Clarendon last night.

It was the view of those opposed to the Chest that Arlington County is not yet ready for such a move and also that it would be too late to organize a Chest for this year should it be approved in principle.

The meeting was presided over by John C. Gall, of Aurora Hills. Among the organizations represented were: The Board of Public Welfare, Arlington County Monarch Club, American Legion Auxiliary, Rosslyn Business Men's Association, Boys and Girls Scouts of Arlington County, Daughters of Isabella, American Red Cross, Arlington County Civic Federation and Catholic Charities.

Large Estate Shared By Chevy Chase Man

James Edward Ditson, of Chevy Chase, Md., a nephew, is named as one of the beneficiaries in the will of Charles H. Ditson, of New York, who controlled the Oliver Ditson Co., music publishers, probated yesterday in New York City. The estate amounted to approximately $6,935,938 with debts of $501,909.

Mr. Ditson left $800,000 to various musical schools and most of the estate was left his widow, Mrs. Alice Maud Ditson, of New York. The nephew was left a life interest in a $200,000 fund. The local directories do not list a James Edward Ditson.

Montgomery Players Open Season Tonight

The Montgomery Players will present their first offering of the season tonight at 8 o'clock in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School. They will present "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh," a three-act comedy dealing with the love affair of an aristocratic young man and the daughter of a patent medicine king.

Louise Massey and Lea Wilson carry the title rolls, assisted by Capt. Guy Kinman, Margaret Stimson, Austin Swarthout Irving Day and Doris Day, Robert Horne, Mary Swarthout, Thomas P. Dowd, Allene Sanford and Martha Roberts. The play is directed by Ralph Fowler and Dennis O'Connell.

Shoplifting and Pistol Charges Convict Man

Bub Suchcki, alias Jim Quinn, claiming Illinois at his home, was arraigned in Police Court in Alexandria yesterday morning on a charge of shoplifting from a local store and fined $10 and given a six months' suspended jail sentence. On a charge of carrying a pistol he was fined $100 and given a six months' sentence.

A man giving the name of James Kanski, with a number of aliases, was fined $100 for shoplifting and $14 for being drunk. The police obtained the records of the men from the Department of Justice and the District of Columbia police.

Church Group Planning Tour of World Tonight

The members of the Lewinsville Presbyterian Church, near McLean, Va., will conduct a "tour around the world" this evening with stops in seven different countries for refreshments.

The final pageant of the nations will take place in Dunham Hall, at the church. The Rev. J. Harvey Dunham is pastor of the church.

Maryland to Inspect All Autos for Safety

As a feature of the annual "Save a Life" campaign, Maryland State officials are making preparations for safety inspections of all cars. Two free inspection stations have been established in Baltimore and others will be set up throughout the State.

The inspection is compulsory, and registration tags will not be issued next year to uninspected cars. The examination covers the brakes, lights, horn, steering gear, rear-view mirrors, and driver's credentials. The inspection must be completed by November 1, and cars not bearing windshield stickers in proof of it are liable to be stopped by police.

ROCKVILLE TALKS RED CROSS PLANS

Nutrition Program in Schools Is Discussed by County Superintendent.

Plans for the approaching annual roll call in November were discussed at a meeting of the Montgomery County Chapter of the American Red Cross yesterday at the Rockville, Md., High School. Mrs. Mina Church Brann, county chairman, presided.

Mrs. Ivan Weld, of Sandy Spring, and Dr. Edwin W. Broome, county superintendent of schools, spoke on the nutrition program in the county schools, which is under the supervision of Miss Margaret Ansdell, county nutrition expert. Miss Ansdell answered questions about her work. Mrs. Margaret Whitcomb, national field executive for the Eastern area of the National Red Cross, also spoke and answered questions.

Mrs. Roger Whiteford, Chevy Chase; Mrs. Howell Forsyth, Silver Spring, and Mrs. Robert D. Hagner, Bethesda, reported on their branch activities. Mrs. Elliott Middleton, treasurer, reported that the chapter's finances are in good shape.

Mrs. Katherine Alvord, production committee chairman, reported that 97 Christmas bags have been made and filled with gifts and forwarded to national headquarters for distribution in veteran hospitals. More than 100 new garments and a dozen sweaters have been prepared by the branches, she reported.

Plans for unemployment relief for this winter were presented in a letter from Frank B. Severance, of Gaithersburg, relief chairman. The letter was read by Mrs. Hagner, who is secretary of the chapter.

Manassas Kiwanis Club Has Officers' Election

The annual business meeting of the Manassas, Va., Kiwanis Club was held last night. Officers for the coming year were elected. They are A. A. Hoof, president; R. S. Hynson, vice president; C. R. C. Johnson, trustee; L. Ledman, treasurer.

Together with the following, the officers comprise the board of directors: W. L. Lloyd, C. C. Lynn, R. C. Haydon, M. M. Ellis, O. D. Waters, Hunton Tiffany and G. Raymond Ratcliffe.

Hauling Supplies Held Dry Offense

Man Must Face Baltimore Court for Aiding Operation of Still.

Maintaining that he was not guilty of a liquor law violation because he was only hauling supplies to a still raided by Federal dry agents, George W. Armstrong was given a hearing yesterday before U. S. Commissioner J. Frank Parran in Marlboro, Md. Mr. Parran ruled that supplying a still was aiding in its operation, and held Armstrong for the Federal court in Baltimore.

Armstrong was arrested several days ago in a raid on a still near his home in Forestville, Md. He is charged with possession, manufacturing, and possession of articles for manufacture.

Chester P. Buckler and his brother, Thomas L. Buckler, were brought before Mr. Parran yesterday as the result of a raid on a still near Patuxent City, Md. Agents who arrested the pair said they found a 500-gallon copper still, 5,000 gallons of mash, 16 cases of whisky, and 25 gallons of whisky in a tub. The brothers, who live at Mechanicsville, were charged with possession and manufacture.

Grand Jury Indicts On 13 Dry Charges

2 Women Named in Findings of Body in Prince Georges County, Md.

Two indictments for possession against Langhorne S. Rorer, proprietor of the Garden Club at Meadows, Md., and two against C. W. Sheaffer are contained in the lot of thirteen returned yesterday by the Prince Georges County grand jury.

The unusual number of liquor indictments results from the new practice of sending appeals from the police court and pleas for a jury trial to the grand jury before trial by the circuit court. The practice was inaugurated by State's Attorney Alan Bowie at the spring term.

Indictment Holds Man Accused in Horse Theft

Adding a touch of the riotous, rollicking West of the dime novel and movie era to the staid proceedings of the Circuit Court, the Prince Georges County grand jury has returned an indictment charging Benny Butler with stealing "one black horse."

According to the indictment, Butler took the horse, valued at $150, from Clarence E. Dickerson. He will stand trial for larceny and receiving stolen goods.

VIRGINIA ASKS BIDS ON FAIRFAX CUT-OFF

3-Mile Concrete Road Will Detour Traffic Around Town on Highway.

Virginia State highway department has asked for bids for construction of the proposed cut-off around the town of Fairfax, according to a report received yesterday from Richmond.

Bids call for 3 miles of concrete roadway east from the junction of the Little River turnpike and the Lee highway, one mile west of the Fairfax County Courthouse.

The cut-off has been subject of controversy for several years. First difficulty was encountered in obtaining right of way through the county fair grounds. The present road through the town is only 16 feet wide and accommodates traffic of Lee highway, Little River pike and Chain Bridge highway.

In the last summer the State offered to widen this road through the town if the town council would contribute $5,000. The money was raised by private subscription, but when the State commission received protests against cutting of the large trees along the right of way in the town the plan was abandoned.

The last several months workmen from the highway department have been surveying several proposed routes of the new cut-off. At a recent meeting of the highway commission $82,000 was tentatively allocated for construction of the road which will detour traffic on the Lee highway around the town.

Arlington Hears Many Candidates

Aspirants for Three Offices Speak at Patrick Henry School.

Candidates for the office of Sheriff, Commonwealth's attorney and trial justice of the new Arlington County Court addressed a mass meeting held last night in the auditorium of the Patrick Henry School before an audience that filled the auditorium to its capacity.

Those speaking for the office of sheriff were: Howard B. Fields, incumbent who seeks his third term; Edward Duncan, supervisor from Jefferson District, and A. C. Clements. Z. O. Kines and Carl A. Schulze failed to answer to their names when called.

Those for the office of Commonwealth's attorney who spoke were: William C. Gloth, incumbent, who seeks his third term; Lawrence W. Douglas, Amos C. Crounse, Emery N. Hosmer and Clarence R. Ahalt.

Those speaking for the office of trial justice were: B. M. Hedrick, Walter U. Varney, J. Hammond Brewer, jr., W. Thomas French, Bryan Gordon, M. G. Ely and H. W. Dudley.

831 Fairfax Cows Tested in Month

Average Production of Association Was 544.17 Pounds of Milk.

The report of C. F. Muddiman, tester in the Fairfax County Dairy Herd Improvement Association No. 2, showed that 831 cows were tested in September. Of this number 160 cows were dry, 43 produced 40 pounds or more of butter fat and 6 cows were sold to the butcher. The average production of the association was 544.17 pounds of milk and 21.62 pounds of butter fat.

Only two cows produced more than 60 pounds of butter fat. Honors were won by a graded Holstein owned by Jenkins and Wilson, with an average production of 1,371 pounds of milk and 67.1 pounds of butter fat. The second individual cow honor was won by a Guernsey owned by Kenilworth Farm, with an average production of 1,165 pounds of milk and 62.9 pounds of butter fat.

The highest herd record was made by a herd of 30 graded and pure-bred cows owned by C. T. Rice of Oakton. This herd's record was 942.8 pounds of milk and 37.31 pounds of butter fat.

Masons of Alexandria To Visit Philadelphia

Members of Alexandria-Washington Lodge of Masons will visit Philadelphia on Monday, attending the ceremonies incident to the twenty-fifth anniversary of William L. Elkin Lodge No. 646. The following are expected to compose the local party: E. J. Skidmore, Dr. S. Nelson Gray, Dr. Robert South Barrett, J. E. Shinn, C. Page Waller, R. M. Reeve, S. C. Cross, George W. Zachary, Claude W. Fletcher, and C. Philip Heishley.

Percy E. Clift, secretary of Washington Lodge of Perfection, was the head of a delegation of Scottish Rite Masons from this city who visited Quantico last night and attended a dinner given in preparation for the Scottish Rite reunion to begin in this city on October 26.

Oxon Hill Club Elects Officers.

Election of president for the Progress Club of Oxon Hill, Md., resulted in the selection of Mrs. Walter M. Grimes, wife of the president of the board of county commissioners of Prince Georges County. Other officers elected were Mrs. Jesse Heiskell, vice president; Mrs. William Green, recording secretary; Mrs. J. Murrey Dean, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Stanley Hagan, treasurer, and Mrs. Clarence L. Fowler, director.

Capital Girl's Car Robbed.

Miss Ruth Molineaux, of 3164 O street northwest, Washington, reported to the Alexandria police that her automobile was robbed while parked on the roadside near Hybla Valley early Thursday night. Her pocketbook, which had been left in the car, was searched and $3 and her driver's license taken.

Oakmont Street Improved.

The citizens committee of Oakmont, Md., has had Oak place tarred and chipped at a cost of approximately $150, the roads committee, George F. Hane and Henry A. Latimer, reported to County Commissioner Robert D. Hagner, in charge of the western suburban district of Montgomery County, Md. The cost will be cared for in the town's annual tax budget.

Arlington Candidates Speak.

Fifteen of 51 candidates for membership on the new Arlington County Board addressed a mass meeting last night in the auditorium of Fort Myer Heights School under auspices of Rosslyn Precinct Civic Association.

Yacht's Captain and Three Of Crew Held in Rum Ring

Philadelphia, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The captain of the yacht Winnie was released under $15,000 bail today and three of his crew under $10,000 bond after arraignment on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. The boat was said by Federal agents to have been used by a $5,000,000 rum ring believed broken by raids Wednesday.

Capt. William Byrnes, 35, of New York, and Carl C. Drenkhahn, 30, Astoria, N. Y.; Frank Bailey, 35, New York, and Herbert C. Blanchard, 25, no home, crew members, were questioned for two hours before being arraigned before United States Commissioner Patterson.

The prisoners refused to say anything in court and had no counsel. Heavy guards were maintained about the men. Federal agents said they planned to investigate Blanchard further in Detroit, where he said he formerly lived.

Agents said after examining the Winnie that it was a "big shell," capable of holding 1,000 cases of liquor.

Authorities were seeking to serve fifteen warrants issued for other men and women believed to have been involved in the liquor ring. Two radio stations, alleged to have been used to direct rum boats, were found by Government agents. Twenty men and women were released on bail Wednesday night.

Authorities intimated today that hundreds of persons, some high in Philadelphia society, would be called upon to testify against the suspected rumrunners at the trial, which will start November 17.

HOARDING OF COTTON PRAISED BY HOOVER

(Associated Press.)

The cooperative move of Southern bankers and the Farm Board to bolster cotton prices by storing 7,000,000 bales was lauded yesterday by President Hoover.

He termed it "constructive action of the type the country needs," and added he hoped it would "meet with success."

The bankers, Chairman Stone and Carl Williams, of the Farm Board, and officers of the American Cotton Cooperative Association reached a conditional agreement in New Orleans Monday after a series of conferences. Details of the arrangement were given Mr. Hoover yesterday.

It provides for bankers to make or renew loans enabling farmers to withhold from markets 3,500,000 bales until July 31, 1932. The Farm Board and the A. C. C. A., on their part, agree to retain approximately 3,500,000 bales they control.

State banking associations will meet October 20 to ratify the agreements.

If Southern legislatures approve laws for "substantial reduction" in acreage next year, the Farm Board further agreed to hold its cotton stocks for another year, the year ending July 31, 1933.

Five legislatures have acted to reduce cotton acreage next year. Louisiana and South Carolina have banned all planting, while Texas, Mississippi and Arkansas have cut it to 30 per cent of this year's cultivation. The States' action is contingent upon similar laws in States containing 75 per cent of all acreage.

Major Hurts Cost Industry 350,000 Men's Work a Year

Time Toll of Minor Accidents Placed at 3,000,000 Weeks' Work Annually by Speaker at Session of College of Surgeons.

New York, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Annual loss of "350,000 man-years" in the United States was ascribed to serious industrial accidents at the American College of Surgeons' final session today.

Nothing of the toll of automobile injuries, which outnumber industrial accidents, was included in this loss; neither were most of industry's minor injuries nor illnesses.

Laymen headed by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith joined the surgeons in discussing means of reducing this toll.

"I have seen the devastating effect of illness on a worker's family," said Mr. Smith. "We still compensate inadequately because we have not yet succeeded in compensating for all diseases incurred in the course of occupation which are directly traceable to the occupation or industry itself.

"I would like to see some system whereby health information and proper medical treatment would be available to every man, woman and child, regardless of his position in the world, whether this is to be done through some form of health insurance or through a widely established system of public health clinics, acceptable to every type of community, rural as well as city."

Edward F. McGrady, representative of the American Federation of Labor, said that "cold figures show the huge danger the worker faces."

"It is estimated," he said, "that 3,000,000 industrial accidents occur each year, 24,000 of which are fatal. Loss of work time from the yearly toll of serious permanent disabilities has been estimated at 350,000 man-years, while the less serious injuries probably cause a loss of 3,000,000 weeks' work per year."

Frederick A. Besley, M. D., of Waukegan, Ill., chairman of the Board on Industrial Medicine and Traumatic Surgery, estimated last year's industrial accident deaths at 20,000 and auto accident deaths at 30,000.

Court Overrules 13 of Pitts' Pleas

Legality of Grand Jury in Embezzlement Case Is Upheld.

Attorneys for G. Bryan Pitts in the fight he is making to escape trial on a charge of embezzlement yesterday argued before Justice F. D. Letts nineteen pleas in abatement in connection with the indictment.

Justice Letts overruled thirteen of the pleas after the Government counsel, Neil Burkinshaw, had replied to charges that the grand jury members were illegal. On six pleas left testimony is to be taken next week.

Pitts is in jail on a conviction of embezzlement. He was sentenced to serve fourteen years, and his appeal is now before the Court of Appeals. The two attorneys for Pitts, D. A. De Vane and Leon Tobriner, who appeared yesetrday, explained some time ago that they are only representing him in this particular move.

Court Reserves Decision As Terris Sues Mother

New York, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Supreme Court Justice Charles J. Dodd reserved decision today in Sid Terris' suit against his mother for recovery of money estimated at between $83,000 and $150,000.

Terris, a boxer, testified he turned over his ring earnings to his mother to be placed in a trust fund. His mother, however, contended the funds were a gift to her.

REICHSTAG GIVES BRUENING HEAVY VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

Adolph Hitler's militant Fascist-Nationalist combination, composed of almost 150 irreconcilable foes of the chancellor, admitted defeat in the Reichstag by marching out of the chamber in a body, shouting the Fascist war slogan. They announced they would boycott the Parliament as they did last winter and carry a campaign to the country to force dissolution and new elections, which they believe would give them a majority.

The announced intention of the Fascists to overthrow the Democratic regime in Germany made the session a tense one, with the government uncertain of its strength in the first vote of confidence since the Reichstag was reconvened on Tuesday. The firm hand of Bruening at the helm apparently had aroused confidence, and the first resolution of misconfidence in the cabinet, backed by the Fascist-Nationalist coalition, was defeated, 295 to 270, in a surprising victory for the government. There were three abstentions, but the vote was unprecedently heavy, as 567 of the 577 deputies participated.

A Communist motion of misconfidence in Wilhelm Groener, minister of defense and of interior, and holding the key position in maintaining peace in Germany this winter, was defeated, 321 to 233, with 16 abstentions. A Nationalist opposition motion for dissolution of Parliament was defeated, 320 to 252, and a Communist motion of misconfidence against Minister of Agriculture Martin Schiele was defeated, 337 to 233, with no abstentions.

Bruening's majority of 24 on a vote of misconfidence which combined the Fascist-Nationalist coalition with the Communists, foes of the Fascists in ordinary affairs, was due to support of the Catholic, Socialist, Constitutionalist, Bavarian Folks Party, Bavarian Farmers League, Christian Socialists, Conservatives and Economic factions.

JURY TO HOLD FATE OF CAPONE TODAY

as the newspapers have made him out to be. But you can't convict him of income tax violation and send him to prison just because the public believes he's a bad man."

Points Out Limelight.

Both Fink and his associate attorney, Michael Ahern, made much of the fact that the name Capone has come to be associated in the public mind with gangdom, the underworld and lawlessness. Ahern said the ancient reformers' cry "Carthage must be destroyed" has been changed to "Capone must be destroyed." And Fink told the jury not to be persuaded into returning a verdict of guilty because of supposed public clamor over the case."

Clawson, young assistant district attorney, resumed the Government's arguments at the opening of the court today, one hour of the prosecution's time having been consumed yesterday.

The Government's plea will be completed tomorrow by District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, who directed gathering evidence against Capone over a three-year period.

A sketch of Capone driving from his $40,000 Florida home in a $12,500 motor car, wearing $700 worth of fine clothing, a diamond-flecked watch chain extended across his vest, was drawn by Clawson today.

Makes Much of Letter.

"Could any one look upon this man, knowing his private life, and not be positive that he enjoyed a huge income?" Clawson asked.

The prosecution made much also of the letter which Lawrence P. Mattingly, Capone's former attorney, wrote to Government officials in an attempt to settle the big gangster's income tax troubles. Mattingly estimated in that letter that Capone's income over a four-year period was $266,000.

"And Capone knew Mattingly wrote that letter," Clawson said. "Your other evidence includes that Capone had money enough to lose from $25,000 to $100,000 a year on the horse races, and still have enough, as Mattingly said in the letter, to pay the Government its tax. But he did not pay it."

Cites Nonpayment of Tax.

"Water, water everywhere and not a drop to drink. Money, money everywhere, and not a dime for the Government," Clawson continued. "Rolls of $100 bills in his pockets, receipts of thousands by telegraphic money orders, but none to pay taxes."

Then came Attorney Fink to declare that the Government "has not one scintilla of evidence on which to convict this man." He explained also to the jurors that they may find him guilty on one or more of the 24 counts in the two indictments, but not necessarily on all of the counts.

"This defendant wanted to settle up with his Government if he had any income tax liability," Ahern said. "He was released from prison in Philadelphia on March 17, 1930, two days after his income tax was due.

"He immediately retained an attorney and tried his best to pay the Government its due. But the revenue department wouldn't take it. The desire to put Capone away for a year or two was uppermost in the Government's mind.

"As for the Mattingly letter, is there any evidence that Capone ever read it, or gave the attorney authority to make such statements?"

Criticizes Money Spent.

Resuming the closing plea after the noon recess, Defense Attorney Ahern criticized the amount of money spent by the Government in bringing Capone to trial, saying "it would be better to have used the money for unemployment relief.

"Capone is not the mythical Robin Hood of the public's mind, not the glamorous character the newspapers make of him," Ahern declared. "He is just an ordinary citizen and the Government has provided no evidence to indicate otherwise.

"Has the Government proved that Capone did not get the money he is alleged to have spent so lavishly through inheritance, life insurance, gifts, or other sources free from income tax? If you can convict Capone on these charges then you can convict every spendthrift son of a wealthy father in America.

"The Government has proved only one thing—that Capone was a spendthrift, and that evidence probably is enough to warrant a probate court appointing a conservator over him."

Ahern declared the Government has been occupied "for three years in devising ways and means to put Al Capone in a cell." He said that orders for his punishment came direct from Washington and were carried out both in Miami, Fla., and in Chicago.

Junior League Activity Begins Monday Next

Regional Conference Will Be Held at Akron in November.

Activity in the Junior League, to which young women throughout the country devote much time and effort, will start anew in Washington with the annual fall meeting Monday. Numerous events will comprise the season's program. Preparing to depart for the West early next month are Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, Miss Anne Carter Greene, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Louis S. Greene, and Miss Sallie Hews Phillips, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Ze Barney Phillips, who will represent Washington at the regional conference in Akron, Ohio. The meeting will be held for three days, November 10, 11 and 12. Reports on the work of the local league will be submitted by the Washington delegation.

The Association of Junior Leagues of America is divided into several regions, each region having a director. Washington is in region 3, the director of which is Mrs. John Giles Mohler, of Columbus, Ohio. The assistant director and regional treasurer is Mrs. Wilford Mason, of Flint, Mich. The other cities in region No. 3 are Akron, Baltimore, Charleston, W. Va., Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, Detroit, Erie, Pa., Fairmont, W. Va., Flint, Grand Rapids, Harrisburg, Lancaster, Pa., Parkersburg, W. Va., Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Reading, Williamsport, Pa., and Wilmington, Del.

In years gone by, names of candidates for membership to the Washington League were proposed by one of the members and seconded by several others. Now, however, admission to the league is by invitation only. Girls may be suggested for membership, and their names are subject to the approval or disapproval of members of the governing board. Miss Laura Tuckerman is chairman of admissions.

Other chairmen this year are Mrs. Warwick Montgomery, hospital clinic; Mrs. Marshall Orme Exnicios, shop committee; Mrs. Donald McKnew, also shop committee; Miss Cecil Lester Jones, blind; Mrs. Jean Delattre-Seguy, magazine, city editor; Miss Alice Graeme, arts and interests; Mrs. William Mackall, jr., placement; Mrs. Benjamin Thoron, adjustment; Mrs. Theodore Noyes, publicity; Miss Olive Sherley, Associated Charities; Miss Sallie Hews Phillips, miscellaneous; Miss Mary Louise Johnson, gray ladies; Mrs. H. # Claudels Plan Dance in Honor Of Mlle. Laval ## Function at Embassy to Take Place Thursday Evening Next.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Paul Claudel will entertain at a small dinner followed by dancing on October 22, for their daughter, Mlle. Reine Claudel, in honor of Mlle. Josette Laval, daughter of the premier of France, who, with her distinguished father, will arrive in Washington that afternoon. While the premier, with the Ambassador and Mme. Claudel, are dining with the President and Mrs. Hoover, the younger members of the party, with a small group of Washington's younger set, will be entertained by charming Mlle. Reine at the embassy.

The small party will serve, too, for a welcome to Mlle. Renee Claudel, younger daughter of the ambassador, who, with another friend of Mlle. Laval, Mlle. Jacqueleine Guimer, daughter of the publisher of Le Journal, forms the trio of girls who are making a gay crossing on the Ile de France for M. Laval and the group of statesmen accompanying him. With the fete announced at the French Embassy and another by the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Castle for Saturday evening, October 24, gayeties are "looking up" for the two young Parisians during their brief four-day visit in Washington.

Mlle. Renee Claudel spent the summer in France with the Ambassador and Mme. Claudel, who preceded their younger daughter to this country, accompanied by Mlle. Reine Claudel.

Miss Dorothy Faith Fowler has set October 28 for the day of her wedding. She will be married to Lieut. Edward Kenley Purnell, son of Col. and Mrs. Harry S. Purnell, at 8 o'clock in Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, the Rev. Forest J. Prettyman, of Fredericksburg, Va., performing the ceremony. Miss Fowler is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Fowler.

Lieut. Fowler is stationed at Fort Benning, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Bueppner and daughter, Miss Dorothea Bueppner, have returned to their house on Park road after three months spent on the Pacific Coast.

Miss Leila Mechlin will speak on "American Federation of Arts" on Monday at the art section of the Twentieth Century Club; Mrs. Thora Hinshaw Seaton, chairman, at the Y. W. C. A. at 2:15 p. m.

Poland Will Dedicate Statue to Col. House

Warsaw, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Tiny Paderewski Park here has been selected as the site for a statue to be erected to Col. E. M. House, the Texas political leader who held a place of world prominence in war days.

Because of the esteem in which Poles hold Col. House—they believe him responsible for Poland's independence through his intercession in their behalf with President Wilson—the suggestion of a statue to him caused immediate gratification. It is through the generosity of Ignace Paderewski, who recently gave his nation the Wilson memorial at Posen, that the House statue is to be erected.

Virginia Police Chiefs Meet Monday in Norfolk

Salem, Va., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Handling of traffic violations and securing convictions, prevention of increasing numbers of automobile thefts, and services of the Bureau of Criminal Identification, at Washington, will be among the subjects discussed at the Virginia Police Executives Association meeting, to be held next Monday in Norfolk.

Chief of Police W. A. Vest, of Salem, president of the association, announced here that arrangements have been completed for a program expected to be of interest and value to attending police executives.

Lincoln Heirs Win Appeal on Gift Tax

Ruling by Woman Member of Appellate Board Follows Court.

(Associated Press.)

The estate of Robert Todd Lincoln, son of President Lincoln, yesterday won before the Board of Tax Appeals its case to prevent the Government collecting taxes on $1,250,195 in securities he presented his wife to lower his own income.

It will have to pay estate tax, however, on a joint bank account and an automobile presented to Lincoln by Mrs. Lincoln.

The board, in an opinion by Miss Anabel Matthews, the school teacher member from Gainesville, Ga., held that the revenue law, holding all gifts made within two years of death to have been presented in contravention of death, was unconstitutional. This followed decisions of the Supreme Court.

Lincoln died in 1926 at Manchester, Vt.

The wedding will take place in St. Margaret's Episcopal Church at 4 o'clock. A reception will follow in the Chinese room at the Mayflower.

Miss Bolling has selected Miss Elvira Johnson for her maid of honor and Miss Johnson will arrive in town today from her home in Long Beach, Calif. She will be the guest until after the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Bolling, who are now established in their new house, 1840 Twenty-fourth street.

Martinsburg Bank Closes Its Doors

Poor Collections Cited as Banking Department Takes Charge.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 16—The Peoples Trust Co., a State bank, was closed here today by its directors. A notice posted on the door said it had been placed in the hands of the State banking department.

An official statement issued by the directors cited serious withdrawals during the past two weeks, and said the bank had been unable, on account of the business depression, to collect loans made to farmers, home owners and business men with whom it had a heavy business. The bank was closed, the statement said, to prevent loss to the depositors. It added: "It is the unanimous opinion of the board of directors that the assets of the bank are sufficient to pay all of its liabilities in full."

Peoples Trust Co. has a capital stock of $250,000. Its most recent published statement showed demand and time deposits of $2,151,905.69 and resources of $2,852,389.78.

Goffs Tomorrow Will Be Luncheon Guests of Dr. Chandler.

Official and residential society continues to flock to Yorktown, scene of the Sesquicentennial celebration. The German Ambassador and Frau von Prittwitz will join Maj. and Frau von Steuben at the Chamberlin on Monday, leaving here tomorrow evening.

Former Senator and Mrs. Guy D. Goff left at noon yesterday by motor. Tomorrow they will be guests at the luncheon to be given by Dr. Chandler, president of William and Mary College. Dr. Chandler will entertain in honor of the French delegation. The Goffs will leave Yorktown on Tuesday, going to their home in West Virginia before opening their residence in Washington for the winter. They are representing Gov. and Mrs. Conley of West Virginia at the celebration.

Graham from East Falls Church, Va.

Fish Display Planned As Cat Show Feature

Among the novel exhibits at the Washington Cat Club show to be held at the Raleigh Hotel, November 13 and 14, is a tropical and native aquarium exhibit, with two silver cups offered as prizes for the most unusual entries respectively. All fish entries are accepted free of charge.

Another feature of the coming exhibition will be the holding of two sanctioned cat shows at the same time, one under auspices of the American Cat Association, with Mrs. A. W. Hardy, of Chicago, as judge, and the other under auspices of the Cat Fanciers Federation, with Mrs. Olive Mathis, of Connecticut, as judge. Over 200 prizes are offered. John H. Jennings is the show manager.

Intervention Is Allowed In Coal Rate Complaint

(Associated Press.)

The Tobacco By-Products & Chemical Corporation, of Louisville, Ky., was authorized yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission to intervene in the complaint of L. D. Wingfield-Hatcher Coal Co., of Richmond, that rates on coal from West Virginia mines to Virginia destinations are unreasonable.

Crab Stuffed Tomato Salads
Creamed Chicken and Mushrooms in Patty Cases
Buttered Lima Beans
Hot Rolls Currant Jelly
Pickle Relish
Peach Tarts Whipped Cream
Coffee
Salted Nuts

Crab Stuffed Tomato Salad.

6 large, firm, ripe tomatoes
1 cup crab flakes
2 hard-cooked eggs, diced
½ cup diced celery
2 tablespoons chopped green peppers.
2 tablespoons chopped pimento stuffed olives
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
2-3 cup stiff mayonnaise

Wash and peel tomatoes, and with spoon scoop out part of pulp. Mix 3 tablespoons of mayonnaise with rest of ingredients. Chill. Stuff tomato cases. Serve on lettuce and surround with remaining mayonnaise.

Chicken and Mushrooms.

4 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon celery salt
2 cups milk
½ cup cream
1½ cups diced cooked chicken
2-3 cup mushrooms

Melt butter and add the flour, salt, paprika and celery salt. Add the milk and cream. Cook slowly and stir constantly until mixture becomes thick and creamy. Add rest of ingredients and cook 2 minutes. Serve in patty cases or poured over baking powder biscuit.

Peach Tarts.

3 cups flour
6 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons lard
1¼ cups milk

Mix the flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in butter and lard with knife. Mixing with knife, add the milk. When soft dough forms, divide it into 6 parts. Roll out each part and fit into deep muffin pan. Prick well and bake until the cases are very brown. Remove and add peaches.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE sensible announcement of Bill Hay Thursday night that Amos had been, and still is, seriously ill, but persisted in playing his parts though at times his fever had registered as high as 103, scotched rumors flying about that some one was doubling for Amos, that Amos' part was being played by means of phonograph records, and so on.

Any one who knows how seriously the boys take their work—and the way Amos is sticking to his role is evidence of it—will realize that the last thing they would do would be to resort to any subterfuge whatever with the public.

One of the last conversations this writer had with Amos 'n' Andy was on the subject of phonograph records. They were very much disturbed because listeners claimed they heard the scratching of phonograph needles and believed the boys were putting one over on them. However, nothing like that need be feared from performers as honest and conscientious as these two.

Here's hoping the "depi-emic" soon ends and that Amos may have a speedy recovery.

Three eminent educators, inaugurating a series of radio discussions by authorities in the fields of economics and psychology, will be heard over WRC and a Nation-wide network tonight.

The speakers will be President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University; Dr. Ernest L. Bogart, of Illinois University, and President James R. Angell, of Yale. They are presented by the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education, which will bring foremost spokesmen to the microphone each Saturday.

President Butler will introduce the series, discussing its significance and the vital need of economic and social understanding in affairs of today.

The Lith-A-Liners, usually heard over WRC at 8:30 p. m., will not be heard tonight but will be on the air next Saturday night.

RIGHT off the press is the first issue of Broadcasting, the new bimonthly national magazine, devoted to the radio industry and published in Washington. Its editors are Martin Codel and Sol Taishoff, veterans in radio writing, and their first issue is very much to their credit.

Broadcasting is similar in appearance to the Editor and Publisher and expects to cover about the same field for the "Fifth Estate," as it designates radio, as Editor and Publisher does for the "Fourth Estate."

Felicia Rybier, concert pianist, will be featured in a program from WRC at 6:45 o'clock. Although this is Miss Rybier's first performance from a Washington radio station, she has appeared twice in concert locally. Miss Rybier is a native of Warsaw and received her musical education in Berlin. She made her American debut in Boston.

When H. G. Wells, English author and, journalist, faces a microphone tonight (WRC, 7:30 p. m.), he will talk on "What Is Happening in the World Today."

"CERTAIN rumors have been brought to my attention," said F. A. Merrick, president of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., "that Westinghouse is contemplating disposing of its interest in radio stations KDKA, Pittsburgh; WBZ, Boston; WBZA, Springfield, Mass.; and KYW, Chicago. Westinghouse has no intention of divesting itself of ownership, operation or control of its broadcasting stations or any one of them. These stations have been and we expect to continue them as pioneers in the business of broadcasting and its continued development and progress."

And still the protests come in from the Phil Cook fans. One reader declares:

"I have heard the explanation offered by station WRC for its cancellation of the Phil Cook feature. Despite that, I think they should put him back on the air locally. Certainly the program they declare they are obliged to offer in its stead because of their affiliation with the WEAF network, can in no way be compared with Phil Cook. To my mind Phil Cook is a genius, and one of the few really entertaining persons on the air."

THE first meeting of the Tall Story Club, attended by Count von Luckner, Rafael Sabatini, Sir Hubert Wilkins and Bob Ripley, may be heard over WRC tonight at 9 o'clock. Each speaker will be allowed two or three minutes to tell the biggest whopper he can think of.

Incidentally, a new wrinkle in the presentation of several speakers will be tried during this broadcast. The microphone has been installed on a revolving table. This will be swung around in front of each speaker in his turn. The speaker will remain seated.

Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, chairman of the special Senate committee studying the silver money situation, will discuss "The Need of Monetary Stabilization" today (WRC, 12:30 p. m.).

Radio listeners will be taken figuratively to a reception and dinner in honor of Marshal Henri Petain, at Fortress Monroe, Va., tonight (WRC, 10 o'clock).

A MESSAGE to radio listeners is "have your set examined semi-annually."

"No piece of equipment in the American home will so richly repay care and attention as will the radio receiver," the Paschall Co. advises. "Every set, therefore, should be examined by a service expert semiannually to make certain not only that all its tubes are perfect but that connections are tight, condensers and transformers okeh and generally that it is operating at its highest point of efficiency. Order a complete examination at once, and be ready for the many programs now going on the air."

Dare Interprets the Mode

New York, Oct. 16.

WELL, now it's time to think of Halloween, for it's barely two weeks off, and you have to send out your invitations early or accept others instead of giving a party—and one has to think somewhat about the costume. Especially for the children is the Halloween party costume important, and especially for them should mother either try to have or arrange a party with some other mother.

That's an idea, by the way. Several mothers can get together in one neighborhood and arrange one party, or even arrange to "come over and help clean up" after the party! Speaking of parties for children, of course.

And as to a party for grown-ups, no one minds nowadays if you invite friends to a party and specify what each is to bring in the way of refreshments. The men can bring the smokes and each lady guest one item of the menu—but the hostess must specify what each is to bring, so that the whole party won't bring, say, potato chips.

And as to costumes, making your own costume is better than going to the bother and expense of renting one. Often you can find most of the costume "ingredients" right in the wardrobe, and simply adding this or that makes a complete costume. Or glazed muslin, or sateen, even crepe paper, makes splendid costumes, and very, very cheaply.

The witch's costume, of course, is by far the most appropriate, and this costume is particularly good for the party that is rather formal, as you can simply wear a big and picturesque hat and a black evening gown, and be a perfect witch. Cotton curls sewn to the under brim of your hat if you wish, and a rag broom—there you are, a modern witch in all her charm and naughtiness!

* * * *

And if you would like to know how to make this witch's hat, or her cloth broom, which looks so formidable yet is so light to carry—or to have ideas for several other easily made and economical Halloween costumes, you just have to send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Post for an illustrated leaflet, which tells you about the making of the witch's hat and broom, the pirate's costume, a Peter Pan costume which costs a dollar, how to hang wings for a fairy queen, &c. Better send for the leaflet right away, so you can get started on costume making!

Hints From a Happy Housewife.

Writes Sister Dionne, wisely:

"After L'le Lovebug upset the bottle of black shoe polish all over my new apron, it didn't do much good to scold her! But it took me lots of time and experimenting to find out that if I covered the spot with lard or grease and then washed it out with warm water and common brown soap, the spot would disappear, and the cloth wouldn't be harmed a bit. And when I did find out, I told my neighbors about it, until L'le Lovebug is firmly convinced that she did a very cunning thing in the first place!

Au revoir!

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"Libera."

IF October 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:45 a. m. to 10 a. m., from noon to 3 p. m., from 5:10 p. m. to 7:15 p. m., and from 9:05 p. m. to 11 p. m. The only danger period is from 3:10 p. m. to 5 p. m.

The morning of October 17 will be, according to the signs, favorable for all honest effort, although nothing will be gained by speculation. There will be experienced an urge to do and to accomplish something worth while, and the necessary opportunity will not be lacking. In the afternoon, there will be sensed a desire for recreation and relaxation. An excellent day for marriage.

Imagination will play an important part in the lives of children born on this October 17. In early years, they will always be picturing themselves in unexpected and thrilling situations. In later years, the desire to fill important roles will serve as an incentive to egg them on to accomplishment. Their horoscopes denote success, unless handicapped by too early marriage.

You, if born on October 17, are rather reserved in manner and do not easily make friends. Your ambition to rise in the world—both socially and financially—is very strong and, as you have great perseverance, as well as a logical mind, the chances of success are all in your favor. No back seat will ever suit you. Leadership in whatever you attempt, independence of thought and liberty of action are essential to bring out the best that is in you.

Your nature is a devotional one and you hold original views about religion. You do not at heart subscribe to the tenets or beliefs of any sect or creed. Although determined to prosper as an individual, you are conscious of the difficulties and sufferings of others and do your utmost to ease and alleviate them. You are very prone to champion the cause of the minority and to espouse the claims of the underdog. Such an attitude does not make you popular with the general public.

Like all those whose thinking is not done for them and who are courageous enough to hold and express opinions contrary to those professed by the masses, you at times feel lonely and isolated. You also, chafing at hypocrisy or indifference, become suspicious and melancholy. It will be very difficult for you to find an "understanding mate."

Successful people born on October 17:

Robert Lansing, former Secretary of State.
Thomas Fortune Ryan, capitalist.
Jean Arthur, movie actress.
Erle Pape, artist-painter.
William R. Marshall, soldier and governor.
F. Childe Hassam, artist.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

122.

FORCING TAKEOUTS.

I HAVE frequently referred to the Forcing Takeouts as the backbone of the Forcing System. There are other principles of almost equal importance, but the foundation of the system and the reasons for its success are the principles of approaching with low suit bids so that as many roads as possible to game may be explored, responding with Forcing Takeouts when the Responding Hand, in view of the strength already shown by his partner's Opening bid, feels sure that game is a near certainty, and using the minimum notrump for the purpose of disclosing that the full story of honor and distributional strength has been told in regard to the hand.

Contrasted with the Opening bid of two in a suit, the Forcing Takeout is based on known facts. The Opening bid of two in a suit, no matter how well safeguarded it may be, is a leap in the dark. Partner may hold the dreaded bust, and it is for this reason that an Opening bid of two in a suit, which requires partner to respond until a game contract is reached, must have a very firm foundation in honor and playing tricks to justify its use. On the other hand, the Forcing Takeout, if wisely used, should rarely be a losing bid. It is based upon known facts—first, that partner has the honor-trick strength to make an Opening bid. This discloses a minimum of 2½ honor-tricks. When partner of the Opening bidder holds three or slightly more than three honor-tricks, he knows that game is almost certain, provided the partners can ascertain the best road to game. A Forcing Takeout is a bid of more than necessary in a suit to overcall the last previous bid, provided partner and not opponents has opened the bidding.

The hand below, which was sent to me by a friend in Vancouver, British Columbia, illustrates how safely not only game, but a Slam contract was reached through its use.

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1◇ | Pass | 2♡(1) | Pass |
| 2NT(2) | Pass | 3♣ | Pass |
| 3NT(3) | Pass | 4◇(4) | Pass |
| 4NT(5) | Pass | 6◇(6) | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

1—"Keep the bidding open, partner. We have game here somewhere. It is either in diamonds, in hearts, in no-trumps, or in a suit yet to be disclosed."
2—South's hand is practically a minimum, although there is ½ honor-trick above a bare Opening bid.
3—Again enying rebid values.
4—For the first time disclosing assistance for the diamond suit.
5—When South hears North's strong bidding and knows that part of it is based on diamond strength, he for the first time becomes interested in Slam possibilities. The bid of four notrump discloses additional strength as contrasted with his former bids of notrump which denied them.
6—South's last bid emboldened North to bid for Slam.

There is nothing at all dimcult in the play of the hand. West opened the Ace of spades and if he had not done so South would have made an overtrick, as all suits except the spades were solid in the North and South hands.

TODAY'S POINTER.

There are 39 types or patterns of suit and hand distributions. Some patterns like the 4-4-3-2 will occur in almost every deal; others such as the 10-1-1-1 are like the rarest of comets and gravitate on the outermost bounds of suit constellations.

(Copyright, 1931.)

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a 2-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

GARDENS

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

NEXT season I want to set out about 50 roses. Is there anything I should do at this time to help the good work along? Could I manure the ground or do anything along that line so I could plant as early as possible in the spring? I shall be ready to begin garden operations in late March.

MRS. JOSEPH T. R.

Yes, it will be well to prepare your beds at once for spring planting. Dig the beds and cover them with 4 inches of well-rotted manure, if you can obtain it. If not, use leafmold and bonemeal in generous quantities.

Please tell me whether if I lift some low-growing snapdragons and bring them into the house, they will bloom. My florist suggests this to me.

ELLA F.

Yes, they will bloom for several weeks, but you must cut them back a little at the time you lift them. After potting, keep them shaded for a few days and give them a great deal of moisture.

Will pansies that have bloomed in open all summer be of any further use for house plants?

MRS. WILLIAM B. L.

No, I honestly think it would be a waste of time to bring them into the house. They are cool-weather plants and are not apt to do well in a warm room. If you cover them with dead leaves and evergreen boughs, they may winter well in the open. If not in too exposed a place, pansies frequently winter well.

I have in the past always been successful with English ivy in water, but my friends tell me it is much better to root the cuttings in soil. What do you think? I am so fond of English ivy. MRS. HENRY F. T.

English ivy does equally well in soil or water. I prefer it in water because when planted in a clear glass container the stems and roots add to the decorative effect. It is really a matter of choice.

I have a window box, a decorative affair, which I am anxious to use in my living room. The window in this room faces the east, so whatever I plant there will receive the morning sun. What do you suggest that is likely to do well, as well as look well?

MARGORY E. R.

Begonias should do well and will be most attractive in such a location. Of course, you must go over the plants each day and collect any faded flowers or leaves. Begonias, seemingly, even when apparently healthy, drop both flowers and leaves and for that reason are likely to become unsightly unless cared for systematically.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

AN UNWISE WIFE.

Dear Frances McDonald:

I have been reading your column for some time and have a lot of respect for your judgment. So I have made up my mind to seek your advice in my case.

I have been married for almost five years and am as much in love with my wife now as I was the day we were married. About a year and a half ago I found out that my wife had been allowing another man to make love to her and she was returning his affections. The man was supposed to be a friend to both of us. When I let my wife know that I was aware of what was going on she admitted it. I told her that I would just leave quietly because there was no use having a big scene. She was very much broken up and being just wild about her I could not see her feel so badly. She said it was just an infatuation and that she realized it was only me she was in love with. I told her I was glad to forgive her and I would never mention it again.

During our courtship and until this thing happened I had never known my wife to tell an untruth or do anything deceitful. Since my discovery I have found she has deceived me on several occasions. She has also been seeing quite a bit of the man, often to my knowledge, saying that it is nothing more than friendship and I try to feel the same way about it, but somehow I always find myself being suspicious and I do not feel that I can trust my wife as I should and I certainly want to.

Now I don't want to be unfair or overbearing with my only love, but I do want some advice as to what I should do in justice to her and to myself. The thing is constantly on my mind. What do you think is the thing for me to do? JIMMY.

Under the circumstances it is not too much to ask that she stop seeing the man entirely. Her failure to do this voluntarily is an imposition upon good nature, and almost an indication that she misinterprets your forgiveness as an evidence of weakness. There is nothing that so soon causes a woman to lose all respect for a man and his love, as the suspicion that he is not quite able to protect his rights as a husband. No woman wants a man who cannot dominate her. The more spirit she has, the more she demands that a man have spirit to meet and rule hers. Probably this other man would never have had a chance in the first place had you displayed a little more of what it takes to make a woman know what's what. I could shake you for your meek attitude when you so tamely offered to back out through the alley to save them embarrassment and leave the field to the interloper. The other man must have looked like the only hero around the place at that moment.

You begin to assert yourself as a human being, if not as a husband. Tell your wife what you expect and what is good taste and what is not. Tell her a few things that she seems not to have been taught at the proper time. Among them that no man worthy of the name will tamely submit to a situation in which his wife is making life interesting for some other man. Tell her to choose whether she wishes to be a wife, or a pastime. At present she is combining the roles—and that is pretty cheap. So step in and proclaim yourself, for at present neither the girl or the man takes you very seriously. Remedy that immediately. And that is probably all that is needed to end this rather tawdry episode which need never have begun.

Martinsburg Jury Calls 125.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 16 (Special).—A record number of 125 witnesses has been summoned for grand jury hearing at opening of the fall term of Berkeley County circuit court here Tuesday. There will be an unusually heavy criminal docket, including two cases alleging murder, one manslaughter and two or more assaults with intent to kill.

Martinsburg Pledges Apples to Aid Miners

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 16—Two carloads of apples have been pledged, one by Martinsburg Fruit Exchange and one by Rothwell-Gatrell Co., free for relief of destitute coal miners. Other sales agencies give assurance that more carloads would be forthcoming as needed.

Plans tentatively accepted here call for five carloads. Logan County court has offered to pay freight on a carload to that county. Freight for the other cars has not been arranged.

BISHOP FROM JAPAN TO MAKE ADDRESSES

Dr. Binsted, to Be Heard in City Churches, Formerly Vicar Here.

The Right Rev. Norman S. Binsted, Bishop of Tohoku, one of the districts operated by the Episcopal Church in the far north of Japan, will deliver a series of addresses in Washington beginning tomorrow, until Friday, in connection with a brief tour of the country, following his attendance at the general convention of the church in Denver.

Bishop Binsted is a former Washingtonian who, prior to volunteering for missionary service in Japan in 1922, had served as vicar of St. David's and St. Patrick's Chapel. A native of Canada, born in Toronto, October 2, 1890, he removed with his parents in early youth to the United States, and was graduated from St. John's College, Uniontown, Ky., and later, in 1915, from the Virginia Theological Seminary, from which he has received his degree of D. D.

Ordained successively deason and priest by the late Bishop Harding in 1916, after his service at St. David's and St. Patrick's Chapel, he entered the missionary service of the church in Japan, where, for the ensuing ten years he was chaplain to the American congregation and St. Luke's International Hospital in Tokyo, in addition to having under his charge missionary work in the outlying sections of the Japanese capital.

Bishop Binsted's work was marked by such distinguished success that when he returned to Washington in 1928 as a delegate from the Japanese Episcopal Church to the general convention of that year, he was elected Bishop of the District of Tohoku, where he is now serving.

Tohoku district comprises the six northeastern provinces of the main island of Tokyo. There are nineteen separate stations over which Bishop Binsted exercises jurisdiction, all of which are moving rapidly toward self-support.

This is Bishop Binsted's first visit to America since his elevation to the episcopate. His first speaking engagement in Washington will be at St Alban's Church at the morning service tomorrow. In the evening he will speak at St. David's Chapel, in which church the bishop saw his first service as a priest.

On Tuesday afternoon Bishop Binsted will address a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary in St. Timothy's Church, Catonsville, Md.

At 11 o'clock Wednesday morning he will speak at a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary in Epiphany Church, and on Thursday and Friday he will deliver addresses at the convocation of the Woman's Auxiliary in Winchester, Va.

Baptist Students Plan Conference

3-Day Sessions to Be First Held in Washington or Maryland.

The first conference of Baptist college students to be held in Washington or Maryland will open Friday night, November 6, at Maryland University, continuing with sessions at College Park on Saturday and closing with a meeting Sunday afternoon in National Memorial Baptist Church in Washington.

Speakers have been secured who are in active contact with students in both the Northern and Southern Baptist conventions. Dr. Kyle Yates, of Louisville, Ky., will be the principal speaker at College Park. The Rev. R. Igler, a student pastor at the University of Pennsylvania, will speak on Sunday afternoon. Dr. Frank H. Leavell, secretary of Southern Baptist student work and editor of the Baptist Student Magazine, will assist at all the meetings.

Students are expected from most of the universities and colleges in Washington and Maryland, including Johns-Hopkins and Goucher College in Baltimore, and Hood College, at Frederick.

Sermons Announced For Trinity Methodist

At Trinity M. E. Church, Fifth street and Seward square southeast, the minister, Dr. Dan L. Ennis, will begin on Sunday two series of sermons. At 11 a. m. "The Gospel According to Mark." The topics for the next five Sundays are "The Man Sent From God," "Spiritual Endurance," "The Gospel for Today," "The Swift-Footed Saviour" and "Partners in Forgiveness."

At 8 p. m. a series on "Stories of the Kingdom" will begin: "The Sower —A Study of Souls." "The Unmerciful Servant—A Stunted Soul," "The Rich Fool—A Surfeited Soul," "The Good Samaritan—A Spacious Soul" and "The Prodigal Son—Servant or Son. Which?"

Evangelism Official At Calvary Methodist

Dr. George Dean, superintendent of the department of evangelism of the Board of Home Missions, will preach at the Calvary Methodist Church, on Columbia road, near Fifteenth street, tomorrow morning. Dr. Dean is in the city attending the conference on evangelism held under the auspices of the Washington Federation of Churches. At the evening worship service Dr. H. M. Dudley will preach on the theme, "Jesus, the Master Builder."

The Young People's meeting will be held at 7 o'clock in the Philathea class room. Miss Virginia Hammerly will be in charge of devotions, and Louis Potter will speak on "The Director of Church Music."

Organist at National Christian.

The National City Christian Church announces the engagement of Robert Ruckman as organist and J. Horace Smithey as barytone soloist. Mr. Ruckman is a pupil of the late Lynnwood Farnam, who was recognized as one of America's greatest organists. He is also a graduate of Peabody Conservatory and is now teaching piano at the Institute of Musical Art of this city. Mr. Ruckman will specialize on a fifteen-minute organ recital preceding the evening services.

Union Service In Chevy Chase.

The Rev. John Turnbull Spicknall, pastor of the Chevy Chase Methodist Episcopal Church, will preach the sermon at the union evening service at 8 o'clock in the All Saints Episcopal Church, Chevy Chase Circle. Other churches cooperating in these community services include the Presbyterian, Baptist and Wesley M. E.

EVANGELIC PARLEY BEGINS TOMORROW

Out-of-Town Clergymen to Make Addresses in Various Churches.

A conference of evangelism, sponsored by the evangelistic committee of the Washington Federation of Churches under the leadership of the chairman, Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, pastor of Luther Place Memorial Church, will begin tomorrow at the various Washington churches and last through Tuesday night.

A number of out-of-town ministers and laymen have been invited to participate in the program. Dr. Charles S. Detweiler, of New York, will take charge tomorrow at the regular morning services of the First Baptist Church. At night he will address the congregation at the Metropolitan Baptist Church. Dr. F. L. Fagley, also of New York City, will speak to the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church in the morning, and in the evening to the union services of all Congregational churches in the city, to be held at the First Congregational Church located at the corner of Tenth and G streets northwest.

Other speakers on tomorrow's program will include Dr. George B. Dean, of Philadelphia, who will be at the Calvary Methodist Church in the morning, and at the Foundry Methodist Church at night; Dr. J. H. Rowland, of Richmond, at the Epworth Methodist Episcopal Church in the morning, and the Francis Asbury Methodist Church at night; and Dr. Arthur H. Limouze, of New York City, who will address the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church in the morning and the Eastern Presbyterian Church at night.

Monday morning there will be a minister's meeting for the speakers representing these various denominations, to which all ministers are invited. The meeting will be followed by a luncheon and speeches.

On Monday and Tuesday nights there will be services and popular meetings, of especial value to those interested in Evangelical effort. These meetings, to be held at the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church, will be in the form of brief addresses and open forums. Various churches and speakers will take charge. The theme for both nights will be "Successful Evangelistic Methods in the Local Church."

Central Union Mission Will Hear Evangelist

Evangelist C. G. Johnson, of the Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church South, will be the speaker tomorrow night at 7:45 in the chapel of the Central Union Mission at 613 C street northwest. Mrs. Dora Payne, of Epworth M. E. Church, will be the guest soloist.

Services during each night of the coming week will be under the direction, Monday night, of the B. Y. P. U. of Kendall Baptist Church; Tuesday night, the A. B. Pugh class of Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church South; Wednesday night, the Christian Endeavor of Calvary Baptist Church; Thursday night, the American Home Bible Institute; Friday night, the Christian Endeavor of the Church of the Pilgrims, and Saturday night, the adult Bible class of the Fourth Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Braskamp to Preach In Gunton Memorial

Dr. Bernard Braskamp, pastor of the Gunton-Temple Memorial Presbyterian Church, will preach at the 11 o'clock service. His sermon is entitled, "An Epistle of Christ."

The Christian Endeavor Societies will meet at 6:45 in the Gurley Memorial Chapel. The topic for the Senior Young Peoples' Society is, "City Life—Its Effect on Religion," led by Firman Wilson; the intermediate society, considering the third of a series on the "Search for God" will be led by Austin Milans; the junior topic is "What We Have Learned From Our Friends in India," led by Nancy Lee Redman.

Five-Day Week Topic in Church

Agriculture Also to Be Discussed in Mt. Pleasant Congregational.

Agriculture and the five-day week are the two subjects of immediate general interest on the programs of two of the active organizations of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church tomorrow. In a talk to the adult discussion group at 10 o'clock in the morning Dr. C. L. Holmes of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in the Department of Agriculture, will speak of "Agriculture in a Period of Economic Depression."

At the evening session of the young people's discussion group, made up of young business and professional men and women, young married couples and college students, the advantages and disadvantages of the five-day week will be discussed, after arguments for and against it have been made by Miss Martha Ward and Mr. Irving Cleveland.

Miss Jessie La Salle, assistant superintendent of schools, will deliver the first in a series of child guidance lectures on the "Growth of Personality and Character" in the church school auditorium of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church next Thursday night.

ST. ALBAN'S BISHOP EVENSONG PREACHER

English Prelate Conducting Conferences at College of Preachers.

The Right Rev. Michael Bolton Furse, Bishop of St. Albans, England, will be the preacher at the people's evensong service tomorrow at Washington Cathedral at 4 o'clock in the Bethlehem Chapel. This service will be broadcast by radio over Station WMAL. Dr. Furse will preach in the place of Bishop James E. Freeman, who will be in Yorktown to deliver the sermon at the sesquicentennial celebration.

The Bishop of St. Albans came to this country early in September to deliver the sermon at the opening session of the general convention of the Episcopal Church held in Denver, Colo. He will spend some weeks in this country before returning to England. At present he is in residence at the College of Preachers, where he is conducting conferences for clergy from various parts of the country.

At the celebration of the holy communion at 11 a. m. in the Bethlehem Chapel, the sermon will be preached by the Rev. G. Freeland Peter, Canon and Chancellor of Washington Cathedral.

Other services tomorrow will include celebration of the holy communion at 7:30 a. m. and morning prayer and litany at 10 a. m. The Cathedral choir of men and boys, under the direction of Edgar Priest, organist and choirmaster, will furnish the music at the 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. services.

The Rev. John W. Gunmere, of the Cathedral staff, will conduct two pilgrimages to the Cathedral crypt chapels and to objects of religious interest and devotion within the close tomorrow. The pilgrimage will start in the Bethlehem Chapel at the close of the 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. services.

Not Ashamed, Topic Of Rev. E. O. Clark

Chevy Chase Baptist Woman's Society Has Annual Meeting Monday.

"Not Ashamed" will be the title of the sermon by the Rev. Edward O. Clark, pastor, at the Chevy Chase Baptist Church tomorrow at the morning service. The junior choir and church meets with the adult congregation for the first portion of the service. The subject of the junior sermon will be "Twice as Much."

The church participates in the union evening service held at 8 o'clock in All Saints' Episcopal Church. The B. Y. P. U. meets at 6:45 p. m., with a program centering around Dr. Grenfall and his Labrador mission. Miss Lucille Forbes is the group captain. The intermediate young people will meet at 4:30 at the home of the leader, Mrs. Curtis Shields, 3525 Davenport street. The annual meeting of the woman's society will be held Monday at the church. White Cross activities begin at 11 a. m., followed by a luncheon. Mrs. H. M. Test is president of the society.

A class for mothers studying problems of child welfare and the home has been started. It meets at 9:45 a. m., in the Sunday school.

Supper Is Announced By Domer Bible Class

The Dr. Samuel Domer Bible class of the St. Paul's Lutheran Church will give a supper at the church on Thursday, and on Saturday night will hold the monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Kenneth McRae, 5 West Thornapple street, Chevy Chase, Md. This is "new member" night, when the newly received members will be the special guests of the class. On Tuesday, from 11 to 3 o'clock, the women will meet at the church to sew for the local missions.

Dr. Limouze to Speak In Chevy Chase Church

Dr. Arthur H. Limouze, secretary of the Board of National Missions of the Presbyterian Church, will speak at the 11 o'clock morning worship service. His subject will be "How the Church Is Meeting the Crisis Within Our Own Country."

The fireside discussion group will again meet at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Hollister, 3913 Ingomar street, at 7:30 Sunday evening. Dr. Hollister will lead the discussion. The union service will be held at All Saints' Episcopal Church Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Rev. J. Turnbull Spicknall will preach.

"Abiding Love" Topic At Volunteers' Service

"Abiding Love" will be the subject of the sermon Capt. Clyde Parker will deliver at the religious services of the Volunteers of America tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the mission at 471 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

North Carolinian to Preach.

The Rev. Marshall Mott, of North Carolina, will preach at the West Washington Baptist Church tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The pastor, Rev. C. B. Austin, will speak at the evening service. Mr. Austin will talk at the church prayer meeting Thursday evening on "Our Lord and Ours."

HOLY NAME GROUPS PLAN CELEBRATION

Feast to Be Observed October 25 in Church of Immaculate Conception.

The annual celebration of the Feast of the Kingship of Christ and public profession of faith on the part of the Washington section of the Baltimore Archdiocesan Union of Holy Name Societies will be held on Sunday evening, October 25, at 7:30 o'clock in the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Eighth and N streets northwest.

The Right Rev. Eugene J. Connelly, pastor of St. Peter's Church and spiritual director of the Washington Holy Name Union, will celebrate the benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

A great outpouring such as has been seldom seen in the city, is expected to gather for the occasion, to give public manifestation of the Catholic faith and to honor the Kingship of Christ in a special Holy Name manner.

A large representation from Baltimore will attend. To many it will be the occasion for a first visit to the new Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes, located in the Immaculate Conception Church, which has attracted Nation-wide attention, and to all it will be an opportunity of attracting many men who are not already members of the Holy Name Society.

Holy Name Societies have been organized in 53 local parishes. Delegations from all these parishes, together with the clergy and spiritual directors, will attend the celebration. Invitations have also been extended to those non-Catholic men who may wish to witness the demonstration. There will be no cards of admission and no reserved seats.

Caesar L. Aiello, of Hyattsville, is president of the Washington Union.

Mt. Pleasant Church To Hear Dr. Fagley

Answering the question, "What Can a Reasonable Man Know About God?" the Rev. Frederick L. Fagley, associate secretary of the general council of Congregational and Christian Churches, will preach at the morning service in the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church tomorrow.

Dr. Fagley will be in Washington next week in connection with the city-wide observance arranged by the Federation of Churches on the subject of evangelism.

Capital Students Join Glee Clubs at Oberlin

Oberlin, Ohio, Oct. 17.—Miss Evelyn Ault, 3731 Kanawha street, Washington, has been elected to the Freshman Girls' Glee Club of Oberlin College, it was announced this week. Miss Ault, the daughter of Mrs. James Percy Ault, graduated from Western High School in June, 1931, and entered Oberlin as a freshman this fall.

John Henry Cassady, jr., 5712 Conduit road, Washington, was elected to membership in the Freshman Boys' Glee Club in the recent tryouts.

Salvation Is Theme At Union Methodist

"The Christian Way of Salvation" is the theme for the morning service of worship in Union Methodist Episcopal Church, Twentieth street near Pennsylvania avenue, Herman McKay, minister. At the evening service at 8 o'clock Mr. McKay will speak on "The Church and Recreation."

A study is being made at the Thursday night devotional meetings of the church of a recent book by Toyohiko Kagawa, the Japanese leader of the Kingdom of God Movement. Mr. Kagawa's book is "The Religion of Jesus and Love of the Law of Life."

Dr. Smith Will Preach At St. Margaret's Church

Dr. Herbert Scott Smith, rector of St. Margaret's Church, will preach at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow, St. Luke's Day. The Rev. Robert S. Shores will speak at the 11 a. m. service at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church.

At a meeting of the Senior Brotherhood of St. Andrew on Wednesday plans were made for the winter. Two men were admitted this week to the brotherhood, Harold Kertz and Robert Officer. In the Sunday school a new course, "Creed and Christian Convictions," has been introduced for the graduating class. The school now has a staff of 28 teachers and officers.

England Is Called Temperate Nation

Briton Tells Methodists Country Has No Need for Prohibition.

Atlanta, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Dr. Herbert B. Workman, member of the British delegation to the Methodist Ecumenical Conference here, said today that England is a temperate nation, has little drunkenness and "does not need prohibition."

"By high taxation and government regulation," he said, "we keep the situation under control. I am sure we shall not have prohibition." Dr. Workman would not be quoted in the interview on his views about prohibition in the United States.

"That is not for me to say," he said. "I will say, however, that I saw quite a few drunken people in New York during my recent stay there. It is a condition you rarely see in England."

Harvest Home Service Tomorrow at Albright

The annual Harvest Home Services will be held at Albright Memorial Evangelical Church tomorrow. The church will be decorated with harvest provisions from the country. The Rev. George E. Schnabel, the minister of Albright Church, has chosen for his sermon subject, "Home-Made Religion." This will also be family day and awards will be made to the largest family in attendance at the service.

The evening service will begin at 8 p. m. with a service of song, led by the chorus choir, under the direction of Mrs. J. Patterson Perry. The sermon subject will be "The Seeking Soul and the Seeking Saviour."

Long Test Flight Started by Akron

Giant Airship to Be Delivered to Navy After 48-Hour Ohio Trip.

Akron, Ohio, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—The Akron, giant new airship, was aloft tonight on the longest cruise it has yet undertaken. The flight started at 6:50 a. m. today and was to continue for 48 hours and for a distance of 2,000 miles. Officers said the flight was planned as the final test before ownership of the great airship is tranferred to the United States Navy.

Most of today, the Akron spent cruising over Ohio, but its officers planned to extend the flight to neighboring States before its scheduled return to the Akron airport Sunday. The present flight was to complete 100 hours of tests required by the Government.

It was understood that if the tests started today proved successful, the Akron would be delivered to the Navy at Lakehurst, N. J., possibly as early as next week.

1,000 to Resume Work in Wisconsin.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—About 1,000 men will resume work in the West Milwaukee shops of the Milwaukee Road it was announced today. Half the number will be used in the freight car repair department and the others will report to the locomotive shops. They will bring the shop force up to about 2,000. At Minneapolis 350 went back to work in the locomotive shops.

RCA-Victor Head Resigns.

SCHOOL INSTITUTE OPENS WEDNESDAY

Episcopalians to Discuss Religious Education in Diocese.

The thirty-fourth annual convention of the Sunday School Institute of the department of religious education of the diocese of Washington will be held at the Epiphany Church on Wednesday next.

The purpose of the department of religious education is to improve the quality of religious education in the church; to conduct research and supply information; to guide and encourage leaders; to make available to one part of the country the good news of successful education work carried on in another part, and to further the publication of better educational materials.

The order of business will begin at 4 o'clock in the Willard room. The welcome will be by the Rev. William R. Moody, chairman of the department of religious education. There will be an address by the Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, subject, "The Culture of the Kingdom." The business session will cover the reports of committees and include the election of five members of the Sunday School Institute of the department of religious education.

At 6 o'clock there will be a dinner in the auditorium and an address at dinner by the Rev. Don Frank Fenn, of Baltimore, Md., rector of St. Michaels and All Angels Church. His subject will be "The Mechanics of the Church School." At 8 o'clock there will be a public meeting and the speaker will be the Rev. ZeBarney Phillips, rector of Epiphany Church. The title of his address will be "The Things That Matter."

Blind Will Be Guests Of Westminster Choir

Washington churches are taking a keen interest in the forthcoming appearance here in Constitution Hall on November 4, of the Westminster Choir, formerly of Dayton, Ohio, and now of Ithaca, N. Y. Many of the large vested choirs will take part in the concert to be given by the choir, forming a pageant processional in honor of the visiting "ministers of music."

Following a long-established custom, the blind of the city will be honored guests of the choir, on the occasion of the concert, upon the invitation of Dr. John Finley Williamson, director, and Mrs. H. E. Talbott, sponsor of the choir, who for a number of years have made a point of inviting music lovers who may be blind to attend the concert.

Choir to Give Tenth Anniversary Program

The tenth anniversary program of the Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church South, chorus of 60 voices, will be given tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the church auditorium. During the past few months, Deane Shure, the director has requested the members of the congregation to vote for the numbers to be used on this program.

The following selection have been chosen: "Pierce Was the Wild Billow," Noble; "Listen to the Lambs," Dett; "Going Home," Dvorak; "Shadow of the Great Protection," Dickinson; "Peace at Eventide," Gaul, and "Twenty-third Psalm," Shure.

Yoking Hostile Forces Topic of Dr. Phillips

At the Church of the Epiphany, there will be the morning prayer, litany and sermon by the rector, the Rev. Z. B. Phillips. The subject of Dr. Phillips' sermon will be "Yoking Life's Hostile Forces to the Purposes of God."

At the evening service the Rev. Mr. Wills will preach on "Religion as Adventure." This will be the last sermon in a series on "Religion as Personal Experience."

The Young People's Society will meet at 6:30.

Rev. G. D. Stratemeier Catholic Hour Preacher

The Rev. George D. Stratemeier of the Dominican House of Studies, Brookland, will be the preacher tomorrow at the Immaculate Conception radio hour at 5 p. m. at the Immaculate Conception Church. The talk will be broadcast over station WOL.

The Rev. Joseph B. Sheehan spoke last Sunday afternoon on the subject of "Divine Providence."

Artificial Lightning Shown By Electrical Engineers

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Using a lightning generator on wheels that looks like a hook and ladder truck, and a camera that actually works as fast as lightning, General Electric engineers at Willseyville today shot a million and a half volts of artificial lightning into a power line like the electric service systems that run along city streets.

The lightning "struck" in a millionth of a second, and was caught by the camera so that engineers could study the photograph, or oscillogram in their crusade to handcuff natural lightning, which Steinmetz termed the great "criminal" of modern electrical systems.

Today's experiments represented a continuation of work in which Steinmetz pioneered. The purpose is to curb or prevent entirely interruptions to electric service that occur when lightning strikes electric systems.

The artificial lightning that flashed over the 10-mile experimental line today had tremendous wrecking power, but it was tamed to the last degree. It was even harnessed to the dial of an electric clock which told it when to start, and it obeyed to the fraction of a second.

THE SATURDAY FOOD AND HOME ECONOMICS PAGE

POST FOOD PAGE WINNERS NAMED

"Why I Like Saturday Food Page" Race Adds Many Awards.

The weekly $5 prize for the best recipe received, including ingredients published on this page, will be continued until further notice.

Special book prizes have been awarded for the best essays on "Why I Like the Saturday Food Page of The Washington Post" to Mrs. Hattie P. Tolson, 3646 Park place northwest, and to Mrs. Helen Loomis, 107 Seventh street southeast.

Two Winning Essays.

Mrs. Tolson's essay follows:

"To me the Saturday Food Page of The Washington Post seems like a continued story—each week it seems to grow more and more interesting—in fact, I can hardly wait for Saturday morning to come to read all about the new dishes so carefull gotten up by our own Washington cooks. Let me tell you what I do with my Saturday pages:

"First I read each recipe to see which sounds most alluring to the appetite, and those which appeal to me especially I cut out and try. Some days I cut them all out, but by this I do not mean to say that I try them all in one day. Oh, no; but as soon as conveniently possible I experiment with them. At first I tried writing them on cards for a card file cabinet, but saw that soon my cabinet would be at 'it's wit's ends' to house them all, for there was no means of expansion, and so I immediately bought a loose-leaf book and by means of index tabs for the different headings such as breads, beverages, desserts, meats, vegetables, &c., I soon will have a very exclusive cook book and one that can grow indefinitely.

"As a general rule the cook books I buy are of course filled with all kinds of wonderful recipes, but the expense of making them is entirely too great to do much experimenting with, while the recipes on the Saturday Food Page have all been tried and found exactly as 'mother made them,' and very often the ideas are entirely new. Then, also, every one has her own little way of putting extra touches to certain dishes, to make them just a little more inviting, and these little individual touches are all thrown in with her own familiar recipe, making the page still more interesting.

"The Saturday Food Page also brings to my notice brands of goods I probably had not used before, and possibilities with each brand that I had never dreamed of trying. Then there is always the 'Today's Food Buys' list from the Sanitary and Piggly Wiggly stores, making my marketing easy, and right away I am interested in entering a recipe for next week, so get out my paper and pencil and start figuring to get a recipe which will be most economical, nourishing and appetizing, at the same time including all I can of the articles advertised on that page—then when that is all done, I find myself again waiting for the next Saturday's Post Food Page."

Mrs. Loomis' essay follows:

"There are various reasons why I like the Saturday Food Page of The Washington Post. Perhaps, best of all, that through it I was enabled to cash in on my hobby as a housekeeper—new recipes—and win a book and cash prize in the cooking contest. But even without this incentive I find the Saturday Food Page a dependable guide to supplies for Sunday dinner and also week-day meals, as well as a help in preparing new and appetizing dishes from the food advertised by dealers through its medium.

"Then, too, as competition is the life of trade, so competition among the good cooks of Washington results in superior recipes being published from which I expect a high-grade cooking scrap book to materialize for future use, which will always keep a most interesting contest fresh in my mind and solve the homemaker's everlasting question—what shall I cook today that every one will like?

"I inclose as my contribution for this week a recipe that children will like as well as their elders and which will keep well—if locked up."

The winners of recipe book prizes and honorable mentions this week are:

LEMON BUTTER.
(Awarded Book Prize.)

3 cups sugar
3 eggs, yoke of only 1 (beaten)
½ pound Jumbo butter
5 lemons

MISS M'WILLIAMS WINS FOOD PRIZE

Silver Spring Woman Given Award for Apple Sauce Cookies' Recipe.

Economical cookies which the children will enjoy in their school lunches can be prepared with the recipe of Miss Florence McWilliams, 802 Philadelphia avenue, Silver Spring, Md., the winner of this week's prize offered by The Post for the best recipe.

"Apple Sauce Cookies" is the name of this dainty, described by Miss McWilliams. The cookies are rich and wholesome and easy to prepare. They are economical because no eggs are needed to make them, and a vegetable shortening may be used in place of butter.

Miss McWilliams' recipe follows:

½ cup butter (Sanitary)
1 cup brown sugar
1½ cup apple sauce
2½ cups Washington self-rising flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup raisins
½ cup nut meats

Cream the sugar and shortening. Add the apple sauce and beat to mix well. Add cinnamon to flour. Sift about ½ cup flour over nuts and raisins. Add the rest to first mixture, beat to blend well, then add the flour, raisins and nuts. Drop onto a greased cookey sheet and bake in a slow oven about 15 minutes. These are excellent for school luncheons and are economical, since no eggs are required, and a vegetable shortening may be used instead of butter.

FLORENCE M'WILLIAMS.
802 Philadelphia avenue, Silver Spring, Md.

CHOCOLATE WALNUT CAKE.
(Honorable Mention.)

¼ pound Land o' Lakes butter
2 cups sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
3 cups Gold Medal flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon almond extract
½ cup of cream
2 cups sugar
4 ounces of melted chocolate
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup of grated Frazier's English walnuts

Cream butter with sugar and add beaten eggs. Mix salt, flour and baking powder. Add third of this to butter mixture, then a third of milk, repeating until both are used. Flavor and bake.

Riverdale, Md.

Braised Squab.

6 squabs
3 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons cooking fat
1 onion, cut in small pieces
2 tablespoons flour
5 tablespoons cold water

Cut squabs in half. Fry squabs with onion in hot fat until browned. Add giblets, water and salt and cover tightly and simmer one hour or until tender. Remove squabs, skim off excess fat and add flour which has been mixed to a smooth paste with three tablespoons cold water, stirring constantly to keep smooth. Serve on toast with the gravy or arrange on platter, decorate with paraley or water cress and serve gravy separately. Makes twelve small or six generous serving. For delicious gravy, add ½ cup chopped, stuffed olive just before serving. If served at bridge or party luncheon, half a squab on toast with the gravy poured over it is ample.

Chocolate BavariaCream

2 cups whipping cream
1-3 cup sugar
1 cup milk
2 squares (ounces) chocolate
1 tablespoon gelatin
¼ cup cold water
Vanilla and cinnamon.

Grate or cut the chocolate in small pieces and add it to the milk. Place in a double boiler until the chocolate is melted. Beat the mixture until smooth, with an egg beater. Soak the gelatin in cold water, add it to the milk mixture and when dissolved add the sugar. Place in pan of an automatic refrigerator until it begins to thicken; then add the whipped cream and the flavorings. Return to refrigerator for two hours. It can also be made by putting it into a single mold and packing it in cracked ice and salt.

COFFEE FROZEN CUSTARD.
(Honorable Mention.)

2 cups milk
4 tablespoons corn starch
1 cup single cream
Pinch of salt
1½ cups sugar
4 egg yolks, fresh eggs
4 egg whites, fresh eggs
2 cups double cream
6 tablespoons Wilkins' coffee.

Add coffee to milk, place in top of double boiler and cook for 10 minutes, then strain through cheese cloth and slightly cool. Mix sugar and corn starch. Add strained milk and coffee mixture gradually, stirring constantly. Pour in top of double boiler and cook for 25 minutes, stirring well several times during this cooking. Remove from fire and add well-beaten yolks of eggs, then return to fire to cook for 5 minutes more. If mixture appears to lump, beat well with egg beater or strain through sieve. Add single cream and allow to cool, then fold in stiffly beaten whites of eggs, to which pinch of salt has been added, and place in ice box to chill. Whip cream and fold into chilled custard and pour into tray of electric ice box and let remain 1 hour; then remove and stir well. Return to box and let set until frozen. This will require about 2½ hours if box is equipped with cold control, otherwise it will take about 4 hours. Of course, this can be also frozen in ordinary freezer, in which case it will require no extra stirring.

Cocoa Roll.

5 eggs, separated
½ cup confectioner's sugar.
1-3 cup cocoa
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup whipping cream

Beat the yolks slightly, add sugar and beat very well. Add the cocoa and vanilla, and lastly fold in the whites, beaten stiff. Grease a shallow pan well. Spread the batter into the pan, let it bake 10 to 15 minutes in a moderate oven, about 350 F. Turn out on a towel which has been sprinkled with powdered sugar, roll while still hot, and cover with a damp cloth. Let cool and when ready to serve unroll the cake, spread with the sweetened whipped cream and reroll. May be served with a chocolate sauce or plain.

Encarpus.

On a bed of lettuce, place three sections of orange in a pyramid; two sections on bottom, one on top; three sections of grapefruit, and three of pears, same arrangement. Pears to be cut like oranges, these fruits to make a triangular affair or festoon, radiating from center. In center on a large rosette of cream cheese place a red, ripe cherry and on top in center of each festoon a slice of red ripe cherry. French dressing. Top section of fruit should be smaller than bottom pieces.

Stuffed Tomato Surprise

1 tomato, large
3 ounces genuine roquefort cheese
1 tablespoon of cream
1 stalk celery
1 ounce cream cheese

Mix chopped roquefort cheese with chopped celery, add a little French dressing to make it creamy, scoop out the tomato that had been blanched, that is the outside skin removed, fill with roquefort cheese and celery. When cutting the top out in cone shape so that it can be placed back on the tomato in an upright position, decorate the edges with cream cheese paste, 1 oz. of cream cheese, add a little cream to make a paste.

U. S. COMPETITION IN UTILITIES URGED

(Associated Press.)

Regulation of public utilities by competition from Government operation yesterday was written into the legislative program of the political independents who will hold the balance of power in the next session of Congress.

It was advanced by a committee, headed by Donald R. Richberg, Chicago author and lawyer, which was appointed by the progressive conference here last March to study the utilities problem.

In a report to Senator Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, who presided over the conference, the committee held that regulation of public utilities had failed. It drew the conclusion that "public competition is the most effective form of regulation."

Government to Compete.

A political program, designed to "restore control of public business to the people, was recommended. Government production and distribution of electric power wherever feasible and creation of a Government railway system to compete with privately owned lines was proposed.

Holding that "the recapture of public control of all public business, and the elimination of any private monopoly of public necessities are the gravest problems that confront the American people today," the report said:

"It has been thought that we could avoid a purely political control of public utility service by establishing enterprises endowed with private legal rights, coupled with public regulations.

"The unfortunate result has been the growth of private rights and the decay of public obligations in the handling of public business.

"Our efforts at Government regulation of privately owned utilities have produced the counterforce of private regulation of government."

Other Recommendations.

Among the other recommendations of the committee were:

Federal regulation of interstate electrical utilities similar to interstate commerce commission regulation of the railroads, together with State regulation.

Cooperation of Federal and State governments in production and distribution of electric power to create standards of service and rates which can be applied to private enterprise.

Regulation of railroad rates by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the basis of costs, rather than property values.

Legislation to regulate railroad mergers.

Regulation of motor transportation in interstate commerce, including airplanes.

Natives to Assist In Halloween Fete

First Meeting of Season Is Held at Washington Club by District Society.

Participation in the Halloween celebration was indorsed by the Society of Natives, District of Columbia, at their first meeting of the season last night at the Washington Club, 1701 K street.

Entertainment was furnished by Miss Thelma Rector soprano soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Pauline Menage; Bernard Bury, pianist; Fleming Oren, marimba soloist; Miss Helen Tucker, contralto soloist, accompanied by Miss Ella C. Robinson; Miss Mildred Battle, soprano soloist, accompanied by Miss Marion Fowler, and the Randall male quarter, comprised of Eugene Swygert, Harlan Randall, Nathan A. Clark and Harry Quinn.

Boy Is Sent to School On Charges of Theft

A boy, 15 years old, was committed to the National Training School for Boys for one year and a companion placed on probation by Judge Kathryn Sellers in Juvenile Court yesterday for breaking locks and robbing Honor System racks at car stops on the Cabin John car line in Potomac Heights.

Both boys had run away from home, police say, and were said to be planning a trip to Florida when apprehended by Policemen B. O. Fletcher and W. O'Conner of the Seventh Precinct.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN PATUXENT RIVER

stone this morning was identified today by George W. Elliott, of Solomons, as that of a woman who came to his garage on Wednesday morning, driving a sport model roadster bearing a New York license.

She asked that it be stored there for a week. Mr. Elliott states that she did not give her name and no one at Solomons saw her afterward.

In a brief case in the car, $11 and some crocheting was found, and a receipt was afterward found on the floor of the Elliott's Garage. It was made out in June last to a Whittington, the first name not being given.

It is recalled at Solomons that during the present year a captain on one of the oil steamers there bore the name of Whittington.

A coroner's jury acting under Magistrate Harry T. Wise, of Millstone, and Coroner P. J. Dean, of St. Mary's County, rendered an open verdict that the woman came to death by drowning.

The woman was apparently about 45 years of age, with brown hair, gray eyes and was clothed in a black crepe dress with a floral design worked into it in wool. She was without shoes and stockings, and apparently had been in the water but a few hours.

The body was found by the Rev. Samuel Bauer, of Vienna, Va., who was spending his vacation in the section. He was formerly pastor of the Cedar Point Methodist Church. Mr. Bauer was going fishing and when off Green Nolly Creek noticed the body floating in the water. With the aid of James J. Bradley he towed it ashore and notified the authorities.

While some of those who viewed the body said the woman's face was familiar, they were unable to identify her as any one they actually knew.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Moving like a streak of greased lightning practically throughout its hilarious length, this recrudescence of the supposedly defunct screen comedy with music is so far superior to "Whoopee," its star's first audible screen vehicle, in every department of entertainment that no reasonable comparison between the two can be made.

As a matter of fact, "Palmy Days" progresses at such a great rate that it skips right over several very elegant places to end its madly merry career, leading one to wonder just how the authors do plan to let go of their plot and let things come to rest. That is finally accomplished, after a melodramatic final sequence or two, in a manner so eminently satisfactory that there is no suggestion of anticlimax, even if the yarn has ended itself logically three or four times before.

Judged on a basis of stage, rather than screen methods, Cantor is here at his best, adhering to a consistently high pressure in all that he does and imbuing several of his scenes with a vigor that is no less than dynamic. In the maintenance of this pace, Charlotte Greenwood, one of the stage's lustier comediennes, is a tower of strength. "Tower," by the way, is precisely the word. Standing well over the star in footage, Miss Greenwood is the one feminine player who comes to mind—with the possible exception of Marie Dressler, who would be just a trifle incongruous—who can give and take with Mr. Cantor on a basis of equality.

This is highly important in the present instance, because into the action of the piece—which he himself in large measure wrote—the star has incorporated several of the physically roughest of his skits from early productions of the "Follies" in which he worked opposite that large and muscular comic, Mr. George Le Maire. Miss Greenwood has succeeded to the Le Maire business, and that she is able to get away with it is distinctly a feather in her cap.

The whole business has to do with a young assistant to a fake fortune teller, who leaves the employ of the bogus clairvoyant to become—through merest fluke—efficiency expert in the baking establishment of a wealthy Mr. Clark, who goes in in a large way for the glorification of the doughnut and the beatification of bread. And what a bakery it is into which Mr. Cantor projects himself! I didn't notice any men to speak of around the place, but the girls would bring envy to the hearts of the Flo Ziegfelds, George Whites and Earl Carrolls by sheer predominance of pulchritude.

While there is a fable of a sort running through the various scenes of this farcical revusical, "Palmy Days" is primarily a "gag" comedy. The various sequences obviously have been devised with an eye single to enabling the star to put his best foot, his best voice and his best wisecracks forward. And don't think he doesn't!

While only two songs—"Nothing's Too Good for My Baby" and "Yes, Yes," both sung by Cantor, with chorus and ensemble of principals—are introduced during the action, there is frequent orchestral accompaniment from an unseen source that lends both melody and point to amusing scenes.

The supporting cast is uniformly capable, including as it does Miss Greenwood, Spencer Charters, Paul Page, Barbara Weeks, Charles B. Middleton and numerous others. The production is a handsome one, Director Eddie Sutherland having made exceptionally expert use of both the lapse dissolve and quick fadeout.

The supplementary bill is on a par with the excellence of the feature. "Football Thrills," first of a series of gridiron releases, analyses famous pigskin plays, with a posthumous flash or two of Knute Rockne, and running comment by a commentator who talks even faster than Floyd Gibbons. The Paramount Sound News records much of interest and a Barkville, all-dog comedy, strikes a new high note in canine sagacity. The brief canned organ interlude alone of all on the program is not so hot.

It is an entertainment to set you on fire, at that!

RIALTO

"THE SPIRIT OF NOTRE DAME." Universal picturization of a screen story by Richard Schayer and Dale Van Every, starring Lew Ayres, supported by William Bakewell, Sally Blane, J. Farrell MacDonald and former members of the Notre Dame Football Team. Directed by Russell Mack. Reviewed (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

Now that a world series has been won and lost, make way for the finest sports picture that has yet been made!

"The Spirit of Notre Dame," dedicated to the memory of the late Knute Rockne, presents the football machine of that university in an engrossing drama that is little else than an exposition of the art of developing teams, winning games, and promoting the spirit and the temper of real sportsmanship.

William Bakewell and Lew Ayres are seen as players whose personal grudges well-nigh smash the steamroller effect of the great machine. The comedy relief is carried admirably by Harry Barris. The football sequences utilize the work of "The Four Horsemen" and other former members of the Notre Dame Team, as well as making excellent use of long shots of actual games.

Interpreting the paternal head coach, J. Farrell MacDonald does a magnificent job, and through his diligent and sympathetic treatment of the role "The Spirit of Notre Dame" rises to heights worthy of a commemorative film.

The interest of the spectator of this picture will be in direct proportion to his personal enjoyment of the game of football. It is a great film.

Completing the program are "Trapped," a Detective Stories release based on "The Cat's Paw," with James Murray, Lina Basquette, and T. De Witt Jennings, a Mickey Mouse cartoon, "Fishin' Around," and a release of the Universal News.

FOX

"WICKED." Fox picturization of a story adapted by Kenyon Nicholson, Kathryn Scola and Adela Rogers St. John, starring Elissa Landi, supported by Victor McLaglen, Una Merkel, Theodore von Eltz and Irene Rich. Directed by Allan Dwan. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

"Wicked" should go down in cinema history as the best titled photoplay of 1931. The entire affair is wicked. Such a lot of clap-trap melodramatic agony and so many, many tears for poor Elissa Landi that even her talent and beauty can't be seen for the rain.

The Estelle Taylor of the Fox this week is not the exotic and flaming Estelle of the oft-startling screen. She is a very lovely, dark-haired, dark-eyed lady, in a clingy blue gown and sparkly thing-a-ma-gubs, who goes quietly and unassumingly about her business of singing in the city where she made her stage debut some eleven years ago. No Hollywood stories or attempts at this or that. She just sings. That's got to be enough, and should be, for you, and you, and you.

The voice has something of her usual unusualness. A different voice, one that seems soft and almost crooning, only to rocket suddenly into real power and brilliance.

As for the picture, there's everything in it there shouldn't be. Margo's (Elissa) friend husband is shot because of a bank robbery. Margo, struggling with a great, brave copper to keep him from her dying husband, finds that a gun has gone off, and lo! Margo has shot a minion of the law. So Margo goes to jail. And Margo comes out of jail to have her baby and then goes back, and the baby is adopted and things just go from bad to worse, and it is all very depressing except for Una Merkel.

Victor McLaglen, as a great big, noble man from Australia, only makes it more so with his determination to set things right. Elissa struggles as best she can with what she has with which to struggle. She cries so much that before the picture is even well under way, she is practically continuously hysterical. We'd be too, playing Margo. Mae Busch returns, a trifle worn in the prison scene. Irene Rich is most attractive, but the gentleman who plays her husband is pretty terrible.

The stage show has novelty in its interesting introduction of the doll mender and the delightful doll dance of the—(now a deep breath)—Twelve Golden Sunkist Dancing Dolls. Fascinating costuming here. Mowatt and Hardy, two hat experts, with at least six hands between them, have a great time with Panamas. Charles Bennington's harmonica band's harmony is grand, but so reminiscent of Borah Minevitch and His Rascals! A one-legged man does painful backkicking, difficult for two legs, then the T. G. S. D. Dolls hop out on crutches to show their prowess and before it's over a chorus of one-legged piratical looking puritans is beating out time. There's a dog act. And honestly the Three Comets have new adagio stunts. It's all very sprightly.

A magic carpet takes us to the Nile, a newsreel to hear H. G. Wells turn the world over to economists, and Giovanni Martinelli to Italy to hear him sing "Nina," nicely recorded, though his first selection is not. Al Mitchell leads the orchestra through one of the most delightful overtures in some weeks.

So if it's quantity you're looking for—

RKO-KEITH'S

"FRIENDS AND LOVERS." RKO-Radio picturization of a story by Maurice DeKobra, adapted to the screen by Wallace Smith, featuring Adolphe Menjou, Laurence Olivier, Lily Damita and Eric von Stroheim, supported by Hugh Herbert, Frederick Kerr and Blanche Friderici. Directed by Victor Schertzinger. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Following a previous effort to establish his claim as a great lover, Adolphe Menjou continues his amatory adventures, this time running into the totally unexpected complication that the lady in question is not only encumbered with a husband, but is also the sweetheart of his closest friend.

This mix-up, unwittingly engineered and equally accidentally uncovered, forms the basis for testing the thesis of whether the bonds of friendship between man and man are stronger than those between man and woman, especially when both men are enamored of the same lady, and that lady is Lily Damita.

Menjou is tricked into a blackmail plot and, after anteing the necessary $25,000, returns to his regiment in the Foreign Service, to which has been reassigned Laurence Olivier. The triangle is discovered and the two men decide to cast the hapless Lily out of their lives. Well, they just can't—for at a dinner party given while they are on leave in London, Lily is there and the battle royal recommences. But the youthful Laurence, whose technique is eclipsed by Adolphe's, loses and Adolphe takes the girl friend off to Paris. The End.

As the friendly enemies, Messrs. Menjou and Olivier give fine delineations, although Mr. Olivier's portrayal loses some of its luster because of the actor's striking resemblance to Ronald Colman. Hugh Herbert, as the desert orderly, furnishes the comedy relief. Frederick Kerr and Blanche Friderici, as Gen. and Lady Armstrong, have characteristically well played parts.

Were any member of the cast to be singled out for especial mention, it perforce would have to be Eric von Stroheim. What memories of Teutonic meticulousness and precision that name conjures up! As the connoisseur of porcelain and blackmailer par excellence, von Stroheim is superb in making himself thoroughly and completely hated—despicable, cold, calculating and sinister in his Mephistophelean role. He is shot during the action, but not before he has vividly impressed all of his complete and total theft of the histrionic honors.

The second of the Masquers' Club comedies, "Oh, Oh, Cleopatra," shows Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in a chariot race for the favor of Cleopatra Dorothy Burgess, a subject that is the ne plus ultra of nonsensical travesty. During the screening, many other celebrities of filmland are seen in "straight" parts.

A release of Pathe News rounds out a bill that is as entertaining as it is varied in subject matter and method of presentation.

PALACE

"THE PHANTOM OF PARIS." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer adaptation of the novel, "Cheri-Bibi," by Gaston Leroux, starring John Gilbert, supported by Leila Hyams, Lewis Stone and Jean Hersholt. Directed by John S. Robertson. Reviewed Friday night by Don B. Reed.

John Gilbert, somewhat neglected cinema favorite, comes bounding back onto the main line of filmland in "The Phantom of Paris," as different from the honey-coated love dramas Jack used to play as day is from night. And there is a decided inclination to like Gilbert just as well in this sort of role as in that of the great lover. Not that he overlooks the love theme in this, for he doesn't, and Leila Hyams is a lovely object for his adoration.

As Bibi, famous magician, who escapes from handcuffs and sealed water tanks to mystify audiences and police alike, Gilbert has a part which offers plenty of opportunity for a wide range of expression. He is smooth as silk as the magician performing in public; he is the Gilbert of old making love to the "lady" above his station; he plunges into the depths of despair as the prisoner accused of murdering his sweetheart's father, and he is grand in an impersonation of the real murderer.

There is plenty of action in "The Phantom of Paris." It moves rapidly from sequence to sequence, with just enough of mystery about the plot to keep the climax deftly covered until the proper moment. M-G-M has seen fit to surround Gilbert with an all-star cast, each of the principals adding considerably to a delightful bit of screen entertainment.

Leila Hyams is splendid as Gilbert's sweetheart, forced into marriage with a man she did not love to follow her father's last wish. Ian Keith is sufficiently annoying as the real murderer; C. Aubrey Smith has the role of the murdered father, with an excellent bit before his death. But Lewis Stone and Jean Hersholt come close to sharing honors with the star. Stone, as the great detective, and Hersholt, as the old toymaker and friend of Bibi, are perfect in roles made just for them.

Ted Lewis is back in town, which is enough said for most Palace patrons. The rafters at the old place will be doing a lot of reverberating before the week is out, for Lewis and his Musical Klowns are the hottest things since the Federal Trade Commission offices burned out.

Ted works like a trouper, the band plays everything from lullabys to old minstrel marches and the cast just panics every audience. "Sweet Sue" does a hula dance that stopped the show; "Ted Lewis, Jr.," in his own words, didn't stop the show, but rather "broke it up" with a bit of red-hot hoofing, while "Charlie," another stepper, put on plenty of steam. The last two were ebony-hued entertainers and Ted's presentation is aided also by a colored quartet that can sing, dance and strut. There are eight other hula dancers forming the chorus and every offering is a knockout.

But when Lewis plays "St. Louis Blues" on the clarinet or sings "Music Is Magic" and "Good Old Minstrel Band" they are liable to tear down the house. It is the best program Lewis has given here.

An orchestral prelude and an issue of the Hearst Metrotone News completed a bill which is 99 44-100 real goods.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

WELL, if you can weigh cotton with your eyes, there is a fine air trip to Atlanta, Ga., and back in store for you.

The contest will be inaugurated next Friday, October 23, and will take the form of competitive guessing as to the weight in pounds and ounces of a bale of cotton to be exhibited in the lobby of the Fox Theater. The prize-winning award will include all expenses for a companion of the lucky guesser.

This is the way the thing is to work. Every patron of the theater during the period that the cotton bale is on display will be given a ballot, to be filled out, signed with correct address in its proper space and deposited in one of the several ballot boxes to be provided for that express purpose. Simple, isn't it?

And this is what you will get—if successful: Early one morning the winner and one guest will board an eighteen-passenger Condor plane of the Eastern Air Transport at Hoover Field and be whisked away to Atlanta, over majestic mountains, famous old Southern plantations, and growing cities of the "New" South.

Arriving at Atlanta, the winning contestants will be greeted by officials of the air line and the Fox Theater in the metropolis of the Southeast, escorted to the Georgian Terrace Hotel, entertained at dinner and later be guests of honor at the Fox Theater.

Next day they will tour Atlanta and be greeted by municipal authorities—not necessarily the police department! Stone Mountain also will be visited. The day after that the Washington cotton experts will be flown back to the Capital.

Is that worth a try, or not, I ask you?

Occasionally some cameraman betrays a rigid adherence to what was the last word in novelty and excitement in the early days of the silent movies, to the decided detriment of some modern bit of movie shooting that needs no clowning to put it over.

An instance of the case in point is to be found in the new issue of the Paramount Sound News, currently on view at the Columbia. The blasting away of the entire side of a huge cliff on the site of the mammoth Boulder Dam is shown. An unbelievable amount of dynamite and TNT is used for the purpose and the resultant explosion is cataclysmic, no less.

Then the cameraman, just to be playful, says, "And now we will put it back again," and by reversing his camera causes the earth, rock and destroyed verdure to climb back up out of the river to its original place in the terrain—as abysmal and outworn an anticlimax as could be found in a lifetime of searching.

Or am I merely getting old, or something?

What is all this wave of hoochie-koochie, hula and "Minnie, the Moocher" that has swept over the stages and screens of the land here of late?

Given its first impetus by the bizarre exhibitions down the streets of Cairo at the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893, this ungraceful—and maybe I mean "dis"—form of torso tossing and twirling long ago passed into almost complete eclipse, except in the street carnival tents farthest from the mayor's reviewing stand and in a few fly-by-night burlesque "turkeys," barnstorming on the one-nights. And now look at the darn thing!

The writhing women of the world are wriggling themselves and their audiences into a state of hopeless weariness again these recent weeks—and for what?

Oscar Doob, chief of publicity for the Loew theaters, arrived in the Capital yesterday afternoon by plane from New York, which seems to be the way all of the boys are traveling nowadays.

And it's true as gospel that nothing ever happened to anybody from merely going up in a plane. It's the coming down in which they sometimes don't do so well!

With "The Spirit of Notre Dame" held over a second week at the Rialto, it is now possible to view two posthumous films of Knute Rockne, the foremost of the coaches of the modern gridiron game. He is also in the "Football Thrills" short-reel subject on view at the Columbia.

Last line, my eye! This will hardly get into the paper as it is, so tight is today's issue—the lucky this-and-that!

Man, 73, Hurt by Auto.

Charles F. Miners, 73, received a possibly fractured leg last night when knocked down by an automobile in front of his home at 3656 New Hampshire avenue. George W. Swift, 23, 801 Allison street northwest, was operating the car. Miners was treated at Garfield Hospital.

Virginia Gun Club Organized.

The Northern Virginia Gun Club was organized at a meeting held in the offices of Dr. J. H. Gilligan at Clarendon with the election of O. A. Nelson, president; Dr. J. H. Gilligan, vice president, and George Yeatman, secretary.

Suicide Attempt Reported.

According to a police report, Russell Southerland, 26, attempted to end his life by swallowing antiseptic tablets yesterday in his home at 209 Tenth street southwest. He is said to have declined treatment after being taken to Emergency Hospital by the rescue squad, and was discharged.

WHITNEY DEFENDS SELLING OF SHORTS

Stock Exchange President Supports System in Radio Talk.

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, tonight defended short selling as a source of great stability in a time of crisis, as a necessity if the exchange is to keep open, and as a thoroughly legal practice.

Had there been no short interest in the market September 21, the day after England's suspension of the gold standard, Whitney said, the stock exchange might have been forced to close for the third time in its history.

Denies Depression.

He denied, in his address before the Hartford Chamber of Commerce, which was broadcast over a Nation-wide radio hook-up, that short selling had caused a decline in security prices. Instead, he said, such a decline would certainly result from a prohibition of the practice.

"It also is wrong to say that a ban on short selling could halt our business depression," he said. "When economic equilibrium in the world's affairs is again reestablished—and make no mistake, gentlemen, it will be—liquidation of securities will stop, buyers will regain confidence, and prices will rise.

"The prohibition of short selling would delay and can not hasten this process. Neither our governmental authorities by means of legislation, nor the New York Stock Exchange by means of its regulations can by any magic perform economic miracles."

Mr. Whitney disclosed for the first time that last month's ban on short selling was not complete, since it became necessary after the first two hours to permit a limited amount of short selling to prevent corners and unwarranted and dangerous advances.

The address had been awaited with much interest in financial quarters throughout the country, for it was understood Whitney would explain for the first time the handling of the market crisis resulting from England's gold suspension, reveal the results of the exchange's intensive investigation of short selling during the last several months and answer the many outbursts of indignation against short selling.

In declaring the decline in security prices has been due not to short selling but to "our unsatisfactory business conditions and to the liquidation of securities owned outright or held on margin," Whitney said:

Destroys Buying.

"Any halt or hindrance to short selling would have the effect of driving from the stock market the most important sources of buying power, and it would only lead to an excess of sellers and further declines in prices. Whether the opponents of short selling know this or not, the New York Stock Exchange knows it, and it is one of the basic reasons for the stock exchange attitude in defense of short selling."

HOOVER IS REPORTED AS SHORT SALES FOE

Chicago Trade Board Believed Considering Ban in Wheat Dealing.

Chicago, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Restriction of short selling of wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade is understood to have been asked by President Hoover in an interview with Silas H. Strawn, attorney for the exchange.

Mr. Strawn, who is head of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, visits Washington nearly every week-end and has informal discussions with the President on various matters of business. The question of short selling is said to have come up at different times. Today Mr. Strawn notified the Board of Trade directors that he had a statement to make and a special meeting of the directorate was called. Action on the subject presented by Mr. Strawn was deferred until Tuesday.

An official of the Board of Trade said the situation would be considered then. He also said there had been less short selling in the wheat market during the past few months than at any time in years.

Prices were so low, he said, that there was no prospect of profits on the short side and when there was short selling the market was not seriously depressed. He added that the Federal Farm Board had been unable to hold up prices even by purchasing 250,000,000 bushels of wheat.

One of the largest cash wheat handlers said the cash wheat market has steadily hardened of late; that prices were up 7 cents a bushel inside of two weeks, with cash premiums the highest in a long time, and that export sales had increased for a month past.

American U. Plans To Dedicate Field

Exercises to Take Place This Afternoon Before Game.

American University will dedicate its new athletic field this afternoon with appropriate ceremonies, prior to the football game between American U. and High Point College. Homecoming day will be observed for graduates and old students.

One of the features of the ceremony will be the formation of a huge living "A. U." by members of the freshman class, dressed in white. They will leave a procession and form in these two huge letters across the gridiron, facing the stands.

The American University Band will play for the procession, which will wind its way across the new field to the far northwest corner, where the American flag will be raised on a rustic pole in the presence of the assemblage and the two football teams.

Homecoming day will be concluded with a dance in the gymnasium.

Boy's Arm Cut By Auto.

Dr. W. F. Notz Speaks at Annapolis.

Dr. William F. Notz, dean of the Foreign Service School at Georgetown University, yesterday addressed the postgraduates of the Naval Academy, at Annapolis, on the economic situation in Europe. Dr. Notz recently returned from a summer trip abroad.

NOT "JUST AS GOOD" BUT BETTER FUEL OIL SERVICE

"We have established a reputation for giving the best fuel oil service in Washington. To maintain this good record, we must have the co-operation of every driver and employee.

"Be very careful in making oil deliveries to see that full measure is given.

"Always measure customer's tank before making a delivery to make sure that his tank will hold the quantity of oil ordered.

"Do not drive on lawns or over flower beds under any circumstances. Be careful not to damage shrubbery.

"Drivers are required to be courteous to customers and their servants at all times.

"Orders are heaviest in bad weather. During such periods drivers are expected to put forth extra effort so that customers may be promptly served.

"And remember that we want to give not as good but BETTER SERVICE than any other fuel oil company in Washington. With the full co-operation of drivers and other employees this can be done. Do your part to accomplish this."

This high standard of service is not dependent on "good intentions" alone for the fuel oil personnel of Griffith-Consumers are trained under careful supervision of men who have a thorough knowledge of fuel oil, and how to properly handle it.

CHARITY GRID GAMES BY DISTRICT COLLEGES PLANNED

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

JACK ESPEY, the ensemble kid, whose fame, or maybe it is notoriety, as the best dressed, or most dressed, sports writer in our fair city, has flown full into the face of fate by challenging this column to a football expertng contest on the results of today's games.

The worry is Mr. Espey's. Plunged into the morass of college football during all of his wakeful moments for three months every fall, Mr. Espey is too close to his subject to arrive at a circumspect, deliberate choice of winners while I am able to detach myself from the situation and pot shot my choices from the vantage point of a calm observer.

It has been bruited about that Mr. Espey has made the statement that this column is the Jim Corbett of football pickers. Poor, misguided soul that he is, innocent of my record of past achievements, which included my selection of Hannibal and his elephantine line to defeat the Alps in 218 B. C. by using the pass.

It's Espey's turn first. He picks:

Kentucky to beat Maryland.
High Point to beat American U.
Boston College to beat Villanova.
Dartmouth to beat Columbia.
Cornell to Beat Princeton.
Fordham to beat Holy Cross.
New York U. to beat Rutgers.
Syracuse to beat Florida.
Army to beat Harvard.
West Virginia to beat Washington and Lee.
Washington-Jefferson to beat Western Maryland.
Alabama Poly to beat Georgia Tech.
Georgia to beat North Carolina.
Tennessee to beat Alabama.
Vanderbilt to beat Tulane.
Yale to beat Chicago.
Indiana to beat Iowa.
Notre Dame to beat Drake.
Wisconsin to tie Purdue.

That's his line-up. Watch me riddle it with some reversals right out of the "pickle vat."

What does this guy mean by picking Wisconsin to tie Purdue, anyway? Looks as if he doesn't know his own nind and is on the fence. Not I. I'll haul off and take Purdue. No dilly-dallying. We want selections, not apprehensions.

The good fellow picks Kentucky to beat Maryland. That makes up my mind. I pick Maryland.

He votes for Fordham to beat Holy Cross. On the same premise, I pick Holy Cross.

He's put the onus sign on Washington-Jefferson. So I'll take Western Maryland.

Tennessee might beat Alabama. But Espey picks Tennessee. That is sufficient. I'll take Alabama.

Espey likes Yale to beat Chicago. Stagg is still coaching Chicago. Yale uses a conglomeration of the Michigan, Notre Dame and Tad Jones systems. Don't be misled, Espey. I'll take Chicago.

He's picked a lot of cripples that I won't comment about. A blindfolded man with astigmatism could name the rest of the winners. I like 'em tough.

And if Espey has picked more winners than I have, I shall confound him Sunday morning with my new brown ensemble outfit.

One-Time Washington Pitcher Dead at 53

Moline, Ill., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Oscar Graham, 53, former southpaw pitcher for the Washington American League Club, died here yesterday.

He played with the Moline Club, of the Three Eye League, retiring from the major league.

Murphy, Once Owner Of Chicago Cubs, Dies

Chicago, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Charles Webb Murphy, former owner of the Chicago National League Baseball Club, died at his home here today, victim of a stroke. He was 63 years old.

Murphy, one of the most picturesque figures baseball ever produced, owned the Cubs during the managerial regime of the late Frank L. Chance, the famed "peerless leader." During Murphy's eight-year reign as owner, the Cubs won two world championships, in 1907 and 1908; four National League titles, finished second twice and third in the other two seasons.

Chance put the famous Cub infield of Joe Tinker, Johnny Evers, Henry Steinfeldt and Chance himself, together and the club became a winner almost from the outset. The great double-play combination of "Tinkers to Evers to Chance," became a baseball byword.

Coach Ban Lifted As Team Protests

Boston University Gridmen Win Plea to Have Mentor on Bench at Game.

Weston, Mass., Oct. 16 (U.P.).—The Boston University football team scored a victory today over the "player control" system advocated by Dr. Frederick Rand Rogers, dean of physical education.

Dean Rogers wanted the team to oppose Geneva college here tomorrow with Coach Hilary Mahaney in the stands and the team directed by its captain.

The players appointed a committee of protest led by James Truden, tackle, and Arthur French, Student Manager, and Coach Mahaney announced this afternoon at practise that tomorrow's game would be played under the "old system" Dean Rogers is on a speaking tour in the West.

Reports that the team had threatened to strike and had refused to play under self-direction were denied by university officials.

4 University Teams May Clash

Unemployment Relief Group Seeks to Hold Carnival Dec. 12.

Will Invite Maryland, G. U., Catholic and G. W. to Play.

WASHINGTON'S part in the Nation-wide program of football games for unemployment relief will be a tournament with Georgetown, Maryland, George Washington and Catholic Universities participating if plans discussed yesterday at a meeting at the University Club materialize.

The meeting, called by George J. Adams, executive secretary of the District of Columbia committee on employment, was attended by persons interested in raising funds for the unemployment of Washington and by the sports editors of the five local daily newspapers.

Saturday, December 12, was selected as the most logical time for the tournament, or, for any one game if the tournament plan does not work out. The scene probably will be Griffith Stadium.

All-Star Plan Withdrawn.

At present the use of the stadium for December 12 has been guaranteed the Tall Cedars of Lebanon, a fraternal organization which has planned to stage a charity game between star gridmen of Northern and Southern teams, but it was stated by John Q. Slye, representing the Tall Cedars, that his organization would withdraw in deference to the District committee on employment.

Georgetown and Catholic universities already have gone on record as being willing to participate in games for charity or unemployment relief but whether they, or George Washington or Maryland are favorable to a tournament has yet to be determined.

Catholic University has announced an unqualified offer to meet any team to aid the cause of charity. Georgetown for several weeks has been negotiating with five or six teams in an effort to schedule one game, but Maryland, it has been revealed, is preferred as the Hilltop's opponent.

Three-Game Series Proposed.

The proposed tournament would bring the four teams mentioned into action on the same day in a series of three games, conducted on the elimination plan. The winners of the first two games would meet in the third and final contest and each game would consume 20 minutes. Under this plan no team would play as long as in a regulation game, the duration of which is 60 minutes.

Football tournaments for charity are being arranged in New York and New Haven by eight of the leading elevens of the East, namely, Columbia, Pennsylvania, Cornell and Princeton (in New York) and Dartmouth, Holy Cross, Yale and Brown (New Haven). Numerous other games for the relief of the unemployed are being scheduled throughout the country as colleges and universities come to the aid of President Hoover's committee.

Betzel New Manager Of Louisville Club

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Bruno Betzel, second baseman and former manager of the Indianapolis American Association Club, was appointed today as manager of the Louisville American Association Colonels. Betzel played with Louisville from 1919 to 1927 when he was traded to Indianapolis, where he managed the team until released in 1928. He was with the St. Louis Browns prior to 1919. Betzel's home is in Celina, Ohio. He replaces Allan Sothoron, who went to the St. Louis Browns as a coach.

St. Paul's Franchise Sought by Winnipeg

Chicago, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Two wealthy Winnipeg, Canada, sportsmen today made overtures for the transfer of the St. Paul Club of the American Association to their city.

Thomas Jefferson Mickey, president of the club, said that the two Canadian sportsmen conferred with him directly and that he immediately advised Bob Connery, president of the St. Paul Club, that a lavish offer would be made for the franchise. The two bidders, heavily backed in the project, asked that their names be held secret until an opinion can be gained from President Connery.

"The two bidders said that in view of St. Paul's poor financial return last season, in which it won the league championship, the St. Paul Club would be willing to sell its franchise," Hickey said.

Md. U. Aiming For Win Over Kentucky

Foes Risk Conference Standing in Game at College Park.

Maryland to Oppose Heavy Line and Clever Backs.

A BAND of Kentucky Wildcats are in town ready to steal upon the Old Liners of Maryland University at College Park this afternoon, hungry for victory in the Southern Conference clash that will begin in Byrd Stadium at 2:30 o'clock. And from all reports, the invaders from the Blue Grass State are confident of making a hearty meal of it.

Maryland's confidence has been shaken somewhat by an epidemic of stomach ailments that hit the team the day of the Navy game last Saturday, and which still troubles several of the Old Liners. There were no injuries incurred in the triumphant contest with the Middies, but a couple of Coach Byrd's regulars may be unable to start today and one other is far from form.

However, Maryland has lost none of its determination and will go into the game with the idea that the Wildcats, though favored by the experts, can be tamed to the kittenish state of plain parlor cats.

90-Piece Band to Lend Kentucky Support.

There will be a lot of color to the contest as a trainload of fans with the university's 90-piece band will reach here this morning to lend support to the football team that has an idea that it is going far in the Dixie realm this season. In fact, it is a crucial spot for both Kentucky and Maryland, as the one that is on the short end of the score today will have its ambitions rudely jolted.

If Maryland can get by today's game with the Wildcats it will have the best chance it ever has had to make a place for itself in the Conference rating. Kentucky and Vanderbilt, which it will meet in Nashville November 7, are its biggest barriers, and if the Wildcats can be tamed it will mean much to the College Park aggregation.

Kentucky Boasting Powerful Line.

Kentucky has a big, powerful line that averages better than 190 pounds to the man, and a backfield that compares with the best in the country. Its ball-carrying quartet includes the famous "Shipwreck" Kelly, who not only is famous on the gridiron, but who is one of the best sprinters in the land. He has stepped the 100 yards in as low as 0:9.6.

The Old Liners also have a backfield that contains a lot of dynamite and the game is fraught with possibilities of sensational feats.

The capable Maryland Band also will be on hand to vie with the Kentucky musical organization. The latter will give a concert between the halves.

4,500 Thrilled as Shikat Slams Steele for Victory

Former Champion Ends Bout After 62 Minutes; Both Thrown Out of Ring; Flying Mares Weaken Californian.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

TWO of the mightiest Germans since Beowulf met last night at the Auditorium before 4,500 spectators in the greatest wrestling match put on here in recent years, and, after 62 minutes of fast, fierce and fatal battle, Dick Shikat crashed the 220-pound body of his opponent, Ray Steele, to the mat with such vigor and viciousness that the latter succumbed in the biggest upset of the wrestling year.

For one hour the two giants practiced the science of applied mayhem upon each other after a cautious five-minute period at the start when neither chose to come close enough to shake hands. Shikat gained the first tumble with an arm stretch and chin hold, and the fury of Hades let loose in the ring. Rock-ribbed muscles strained in every known hold and many that weren't in the books. Steele went out of the ring twice, and Shikat twice, and once the two behemoths were both out on the flanges of the ring swinging expertly at the other.

Shikat Breaks Strong Holds.

Shikat walked out of titanic holds like Gulliver broke the Lilliputian ropes which tied him, and Steele's sterling fleetness and equal strength made the match seeming an unending spectacle of wrestling science and brawn. There was no faking here. They didn't reel away from missed punches as if they had been struck by a trench mortar. Instead when they fought they stood toe to toe and pummeled the other with the blows which are permissible in this strange hybrid sport.

Shikat literally rose from a knockout to win. The victim of four crushing flying mares, Shikat met the fifth rush of Steele with two hands into the face of the charger. It took Steele off his feet, and he landed on the back of his head. His heels had not touched the ground when Shikat applied a headlock and battered the ring four times with him. Then he picked him up bodily, went off his feet himself, and came down from an altitude of about 6 feet on top of the prostrate Steele.

Crowd Wild At End.

The crowd cheered Shikat like mad. Steele recovered quickly and leaped out of the ropes, brushed the peering citizens aside and disappeared in the caverns of the Auditorium whence these men spring.

DARTMOUTH IS TEST FOR COLUMBIA

Hewitt Makes Bid for National Fame With Team Underdog.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Lou Little's Columbia Lions, undefeated in three starts this season, were in top condition today for the major test of their schedule against Dartmouth tomorrow.

Columbia has scored 149 points and kept its goal uncrossed against Middlebury, Union and Wesleyan, but is conceded only an outside chance against Dartmouth's powerful eleven.

The game is regarded as Ralph Hewitt's final bid for all-America recognition. The Columbia captain, handicapped by playing on a weak team, never has been able to break loose against Dartmouth, and must make good tomorrow to realize his ambition.

Syracuse Is Primed For Florida Invasion

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Rain interfered with practice today as Syracuse and Florida held their last workouts for the game tomorrow, and both coaches limited activities to limbering-up drill.

Syracuse will enter the game at full strength, but Florida will be compelled to use a substitute for Shaw, regular quarter.

Fordham Slight Choice To Defeat Holy Cross

New York, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Fordham was a slight favorite tonight to end its twenty-game series with Holy Cross tomorrow with a fourth consecutive victory.

The game will end the series betwen the two Catholic rivals, with Michigan State displacing Holy Cross on Fordham's 1932 schedule. In nineteen games to date, Fordham has won ten and Holy Cross eight, with one tie. Neither school has been able to win more than three consecutive games, but Fordham has taken the last three contests and hopes to shatter the precedent tomorrow.

Rutgers-N. Y. U. Clash Sees Brothers Opposed

New York, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—The Rutgers eleven held its last practice of the week on home ground today and will not arrive here until late tonight for the game with N. Y. U. tomorrow. The New York team worked out in light fashion and called it a day.

30,000 to See Cornell Play Princeton Today

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 16 (U.P.).—An estimated crowd of 30,000 people will attend the Princeton-Cornell game here tomorrow. Cornell rules a slight favorite.

The Tiger eleven arrived this morning and ran through a light workout in the afternoon. Coach Wittmer will start an inexperienced back field which includes three sophomores.

Bucknell and Temple Battle to 0-0 Score

Philadelphia, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Bucknell and Temple football teams battled to a 0-to-0 tie beneath the floodlights tonight. Temple had several chances to score early in the game, but lacked the necessary power to push the ball over.

ELI-CHICAGO GAME SEEN TOSS UP

Booth Chief Threat in Dramatic Invasion of West.

By CHARLES DUNKLEY.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Yale, for the first time in history, will battle on a mid-west football field tomorrow to honor its Athletic star of 43 years ago, Amos Alonzo Stagg, the grand old man of the gridiron.

The contest will be a tribute to Stagg. Yale, 89, now 69 years old, for the 47 years of service to intercollegiate athletics.

The game, the outstanding football attraction in the West, will be one of the most colorful occasions the midway has ever known, equally as attractive as a pageant and a football classic. Yale comes West headed by Albie Booth, the most dramatic personality of present day football, to meet a maroon team that will have everything that the coaching genius of Stagg can provide.

Game Considered Toss-Up.

Chicago's close battle with Michigan, cochampions of the Western conference of 1930, last Saturday, and the defeat of Yale by the strong Georgia team, indicates that the Maroon and Blue elevens, will be evenly matched and that the game is about as much of a toss up as any gridiron contest can be.

The biggest assets in Yale's offense is the clever Booth, one of the finest broken field runners and passers in the game. Chicago has no individual player to match the reputation of Booth, but in Vinson Sahlin and Bobby Wallace has two fast and shifty backs, who figure to give the men of Eli a busy afternoon.

Stagg wants to win tomorrow's game and he has prepared a special offense for the offensive for the occasion. And since Yale and Chicago have a nonscouting agreement, it should be a particular threat.

Stagg's Son in Back Field.

Determined to triumph, Stagg will start his strongest backfield. His son, Paul, will direct the play from quarter and will do the passing. Paul was out of the Michigan game, but has returned to form. The Maroon line will face a weight disadvantage of 9 pounds per man, but that does not worry Coach Stagg, because his forwards fought Michigan to a standstill a week ago.

Georgetown, Duquesne Tie, 0-0

Hilltop Drive at Start Turned Back at 13-Yard Line.

Special to The Washington Post.

FORBES FIELD, Pittsburgh, Oct. 16.—A scoreless tie was the net result of the first football engagement between Georgetown University and Dusquesne, who battled tonight before 5,000 fans at Forbes Field under weather conditions which made playing practically impossible. A slight drizzle was in progress at the start of the game, but within a few minutes after the opening whistle a downpour had started, the rain becoming almost torrential.

Honors, if any, went to the locals, who made nine first downs against seven for the Hoyas, the Georgetown players failing to make a single first down during the second half. The Dukes' attack functioned better and notwithstanding the heavy rain the locals completed five passes while their opponents were making two.

A penalty following the opening kick-off placed the ball deep in Duke territory and gave the visitors their only scoring chance. On the second play after kick-off King tried a pass and when Cristina interfered with the receiver, the Hoyas were awarded a first down on the local 30-yard line. A pass, Donoghue to Hudson, gave them a first down on the 20-yard line, and then Bordeau, on a double pass, made 7 yards. It looked as if Georgetown were headed for a score, but then the rain began pouring and the Dukes held, regaining the ball on their 14-yard line.

Penalty Gives First Down.

Georgetown held, but roughing the punter gave the locals a first down on their 22-yard line and the Dukes followed with two first downs which brought the ball to their 45-yard line. The Dukes kicked, but the visitors fumbled, Weinberg recovering on his own 46-yard line. A sudden pass, De Luca to Cristina, was good for 30 yards and gave the Dukes a first down on their 15-yard mark, King catching the receiver from behind as he was headed for a certain score. The Hoyas regained the ball on their 8-yard line.

The second period was merely an exchange of kicks with Zaninelli outpunting both King and Skovinski. The Dukes were handed a second scoring opportunity when Skovinski fumbled a wet ball and the Dukes recovered on the Georgetown 41-yard line. The locals advanced the ball to the 24-yard mark when the half ended.

The second half proved the Dukes to be the better mud horses. Danner's kick-off was short and was returned to the Duke 45-yard mark, and from that time on the ball was always deep in Georgetown territory. The Dukes carried the ball on half a dozen occasions to the 20-yard line, but did not have the scoring punch and the visitors were continuously compelled to kick from the shadow of their goal.

Georgetown Eleven Kicks.

With the ball deep in their sector and the field treacherous, Tommy Mills' proteges were compelled to abandon their attack and kick, with the result that they failed to make a down in the second half.

Georgetown fumbled the ball on six occasions and the locals once, several of their fumbles after Bordeau had broken through the Duke line and was on his way to good sized gain.

Colonials Unable to Halt Boehm, Diminutive Star; Night Crowd Is Thrilled

Invaders Also Score on Pass Deep in Own Territory.

By JACK ESPEY.

TULSA UNIVERSITY'S Golden Hurricane swept into Griffith Stadium last night, smashed, battered and passed through, over and around George Washington, and, after spending the full force of its fury, eased off into the chill night air, leaving the Colonial eleven breathless and defeated, 24 to 7. More than 15,000 persons, watching the first night game and the first intersectional contest of the year here, were treated to an exhibition of offensive football that seldom materializes outside of a Hollywood studio.

Everything in the category of gridiron attack was unloosed by the Oilers who executed their plays with Utopian finesse and precision. In short, they played a game that any coach might dream about.

Led by Billy Boehm, 145-pound quarterback, and "Ish" Pilkington, 190 pounds of line-bending dynamite, Tulsa reeled off a touchdown in the very first minute of the proceedings and by half-time enjoyed a lead of 18 to 0. About the only thing in which the Hurricane was inefficient was the attempt for extra point, none of Pilkington's four tries with placement kicks succeeding.

Pass Brings Colonials Lone Touchdown.

Against the furious charge of the invaders, the Colonials fought courageously from start to finish and they shot the injured Johnny Fenlon into the fray in the last two minutes to throw the pass that brought them their single touchdown. Fenlon, suffering a badly sprained ankle, limped into the battlefield with the ball on the 15-yard line as a result of a 75-yard gallop by Finis Parrish who, on an intercepted pass, and hurled the oval over the goal line to Bob Galloway for 6 points. Jack Jones placekicked the extra point.

There was not only power and speed to the Hurricanes' attack, but in addition a generous measure of deception which seldom failed to trick the Colonials. Only when second and third string players entered the game in the fourth period did the Oilers' offensive cease to function smoothly. Fierce smashes at the tackles, sweeping end runs, spinners, fakes and reverses—all of these weapons the visitors employed with equal effect.

But it was a forward pass good for 85 yards and a touchdown that climaxed the thrills. This play occurred in the second period with Tulsa backed up on its 15-yard line and with the Colonials looking for a punt.

Takes Kick, Then Tosses Pass.

Pilkington dropped back 10 yards and faked a kick as G. W. tacklers hurled themselves through the line in an effort to block the ball. Standing on the line of scrimmage a few yards out on the end was the elusive Boehm, and when the Colonials had concentrated on Pilkington the big full back quickly seized his chance and fired straight to Boehm. In another moment the Tulsa jack rabbit was streaking over the chalk marks with his burly mates gathering to form interference. On and on Boehm pushed yardage behind him until his path was clear. Then from out of the startled Colonial ranks came Johnny Fenlon desperately trying to overhaul him, but with an extra burst of speed and changing his direction, Boehm eluded the G. W.

Four Turfmen Suspended In Alleged "Ringer" Coup

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 16.—On October 3, at Havre de Grace, a 2-year-old race horse, which was supposed never to have started before, was listed to run under the name of Shem. The owner's name on the program was given as William Marino, said to be of New York City. The trainer's name was listed as Arthur Kennedy. This Shem, registered as a chestnut colt, was sired by Noah, hence his name.

In a field of twelve nonwinners, Shem broke alertly under Jockey Robert Lehrahman from the 6-furlong pole and soon opened a gap of several lengths, which it maintained without trouble to the finish.

Shortly after the race was run it looked suspicious to several close followers of the turf. These Doubting Thomases hardly could understand that a nonstarter could run so smoothly and so fast the first time out. The time was 1:13 flat.

Then was heard the rumor of "ringer." It gained momentum. The Maryland Racing Commission soon started an investigation.

Today the commission suspended four man, the colt Shem and the filly Ep. The men are Marino, P. Wesley, Leo Kamerman and A. Ray.

Shem, which is believed to be the original colt by that name, was in

(Associated Press.)

Regulation of public utilities by competition from Government operation yesterday was written into the legislative program of the political independents who will hold the balance of power in the next session of Congress.

It was advanced by a committee, headed by Donald R. Richberg, Chicago author and lawyer, which was appointed by the progressive conference here last March to study the utilities problem.

In a report to Senator Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, who presided over the conference, the committee held that regulation of public utilities had failed. It drew the conclusion that "public competition is the most effective form of regulation."

Government to Compete.

A political program, designed to "restore control of public business to the people, was recommended. Government production and distribution of electric power wherever feasible and creation of a Government railway system to compete with privately owned lines was proposed.

Holding that "the recapture of public control of all public business, and the elimination of any private monopoly of public necessities are the gravest problems that confront the American people today," the report said:

"It has been thought that we could avoid a purely political control of public utility service by establishing enterprises endowed with private legal rights, coupled with public regulations.

"The unfortunate result has been the growth of private rights and the decay of public obligations in the handling of public business.

"Our efforts at Government regulation of privately owned utilities have produced the counterforce of private regulation of government."

Other Recommendations.

Among the other recommendations of the committee were:

Federal regulation of interstate electrical utilities similar to interstate commerce commission regulation of the railroads, together with State regulation.

Cooperation of Federal and State governments in production and distribution of electric power to create standards of service and rates which can be applied to private enterprise.

Regulation of railroad rates by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the basis of costs, rather than property values.

Legislation to regulate railroad mergers.

Regulation of motor transportation in interstate commerce, including airplanes.

First Meeting of Season Is Held at Washington Club by District Society.

Participation in the Halloween celebration was indorsed by the Society of Natives, District of Columbia, at their first meeting of the season last night at the Washington Club, 1701 K street.

Entertainment was furnished by Miss Thelma Rector soprano soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Pauline Menage; Bernard Bury, pianist; Fleming Oren, marimba soloist; Miss Helen Tucker, contralto soloist, accompanied by Miss Ella C. Robinson; Miss Mildred Battle, soprano soloist, accompanied by Miss Marion Fowler, and the Randall male quarter, comprised of Eugene Swygert, Harlan Randall, Nathan A. Clark and Harry Quinn.

Boy Is Sent to School On Charges of Theft

A boy, 15 years old, was committed to the National Training School for Boys for one year and a companion placed on probation by Judge Kathryn Sellers in Juvenile Court yesterday for breaking locks and robbing Honor System racks at car stops on the Cabin John car line in Potomac Heights.

Both boys had run away from home, police say, and were said to be planning a trip to Florida when apprehended by Policemen B. O. Fletcher and W. O'Conner of the Seventh Precinct.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN PATUXENT RIVER

stone this morning was identified today by George W. Elliott, of Solomons, as that of a woman who came to his garage on Wednesday morning, driving a sport model roadster bearing a New York license.

She asked that it be stored there for a week. Mr. Elliott states that she did not give her name and no one at Solomons saw her afterward.

In a brief case in the car, $11 and some crocheting was found, and a receipt was afterward found on the floor of the Elliott's Garage. It was made out in June last to a Whittington, the first name not being given.

It is recalled at Solomons that during the present year a captain on one of the oil steamers there bore the name of Whittington.

A coroner's jury acting under Magistrate Harry T. Wise, of Millstone, and Coroner P. J. Dean, of St. Mary's County, rendered an open verdict that the woman came to death by drowning.

The woman was apparently about 45 years of age, with brown hair, gray eyes and was clothed in a black crepe dress with a floral design worked into it in wool. She was without shoes and stockings, and apparently had been in the water but a few hours.

The body was found by the Rev. Samuel Bauer, of Vienna, Va., who was spending his vacation in the section. He was formerly pastor of the Cedar Point Methodist Church. Mr. Bauer was going fishing and when off Green Nolly Creek noticed the body floating in the water. With the aid of James J. Bradley he towed it ashore and notified the authorities.

While some of those who viewed the body said the woman's face was familiar, they were unable to identify her as any one they actually knew.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Moving like a streak of greased lightning practically throughout its hilarious length, this recrudescence of the supposedly defunct screen comedy with music is so far superior to "Whoopee," its star's first audible screen vehicle, in every department of entertainment that no reasonable comparison between the two can be made.

As a matter of fact, "Palmy Days" progresses at such a great rate that it skips right over several very elegant places to end its madly merry career, leading one to wonder just how the authors do plan to let go of their plot and let things come to rest. That is finally accomplished, after a melodramatic final sequence or two, in a manner so eminently satisfactory that there is no suggestion of anticlimax, even if the yarn has ended itself logically three or four times before.

Judged on a basis of stage, rather than screen methods, Cantor is here at his best, adhering to a consistently high pressure in all that he does and imbuing several of his scenes with a vigor that is no less than dynamic. In the maintenance of this pace, Charlotte Greenwood, one of the stage's lustier comediennes, is a tower of strength. "Tower," by the way, is precisely the word. Standing well over the star in footage, Miss Greenwood is the one feminine player who comes to mind—with the possible exception of Marie Dressler, who would be just a trifle incongruous—who can give and take with Mr. Cantor on a basis of equality.

This is highly important in the present instance, because into the action of the piece—which he himself in large measure wrote—the star has incorporated several of the physically roughest of his skits from early productions of the "Follies" in which he worked opposite that large and muscular comic, Mr. George Le Maire. Miss Greenwood has succeeded to the Le Maire business, and that she is able to get away with it is distinctly a feather in her cap.

The whole business has to do with a young assistant to a fake fortune teller, who leaves the employ of the bogus clairvoyant to become—through merest fluke—efficiency expert in the baking establishment of a wealthy Mr. Clark, who goes in in a large way for the glorification of the doughnut and the beatification of bread. And what a bakery it is into which Mr. Cantor projects himself! I didn't notice any men to speak of around the place, but the girls would bring envy to the hearts of the Flo Ziegfelds, George Whites and Earl Carrolls by sheer predominance of pulchritude.

While there is a fable of a sort running through the various scenes of this farcical revusical, "Palmy Days" is primarily a "gag" comedy. The various sequences obviously have been devised with an eye single to enabling the star to put his best foot, his best voice and his best wisecracks forward. And don't think he doesn't!

While only two songs—"Nothing's Too Good for My Baby" and "Yes, Yes," both sung by Cantor, with chorus and ensemble of principals—are introduced during the action, there is frequent orchestral accompaniment from an unseen source that lends both melody and point to amusing scenes.

The supporting cast is uniformly capable, including as it does Miss Greenwood, Spencer Charters, Paul Page, Barbara Weeks, Charles B. Middleton and numerous others. The production is a handsome one, Director Eddie Sutherland having made exceptionally expert use of both the lapse dissolve and quick fadeout.

The supplementary bill is on a par with the excellence of the feature. "Football Thrills," first of a series of gridiron releases, analyses famous pigskin plays, with a posthumous flash or two of Knute Rockne, and running comment by a commentator who talks even faster than Floyd Gibbons. The Paramount Sound News records much of interest and a Barkville, all-dog comedy, strikes a new high note in canine sagacity. The brief canned organ interlude alone of all on the program is not so hot.

It is an entertainment to set you on fire, at that!

RIALTO

"THE SPIRIT OF NOTRE DAME." Universal picturization of a screen story by Richard Schayer and Dale Van Every, starring Lew Ayres, supported by William Bakewell, Sally Blane, J. Farrell MacDonald and former members of the Notre Dame Football Team. Directed by Russell Mack. Reviewed (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

Now that a world series has been won and lost, make way for the finest sports picture that has yet been made!

"The Spirit of Notre Dame," dedicated to the memory of the late Knute Rockne, presents the football machine of that university in an engrossing drama that is little else than an exposition of the art of developing teams, winning games, and promoting the spirit and the temper of real sportsmanship.

William Bakewell and Lew Ayres are seen as players whose personal grudges well-nigh smash the steamroller effect of the great machine. The comedy relief is carried admirably by Harry Barris. The football sequences utilize the work of "The Four Horsemen" and other former members of the Notre Dame Team, as well as making excellent use of long shots of actual games.

Interpreting the paternal head coach, J. Farrell MacDonald does a magnificent job, and through his diligent and sympathetic treatment of the role "The Spirit of Notre Dame" rises to heights worthy of a commemorative film.

The interest of the spectator of this picture will be in direct proportion to his personal enjoyment of the game of football. It is a great film.

Completing the program are "Trapped," a Detective Stories release based on "The Cat's Paw," with James Murray, Lina Basquette, and T. De Witt Jennings, a Mickey Mouse cartoon, "Fishin' Around," and a release of the Universal News.

FOX

"WICKED." Fox picturization of a story adapted by Kenyon Nicholson, Kathryn Scola and Adela Rogers St. John, starring Elissa Landi, supported by Victor McLaglen, Una Merkel, Theodore von Eltz and Irene Rich. Directed by Allan Dwan. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

"Wicked" should go down in cinema history as the best titled photoplay of 1931. The entire affair is wicked. Such a lot of clap-trap melodramatic agony and so many, many tears for poor Elissa Landi that even her talent and beauty can't be seen for the rain.

Only Estelle Taylor with her cycle—is three a cycle?—of songs and an interesting stage show, save this week's bill from that most libelous of comments—boring.

The Estelle Taylor of the Fox this week is not the exotic and flaming Estelle of the oft-startling screen. She is a very lovely, dark-haired, dark-eyed lady, in a clingy blue gown and sparkly thing-a-ma-gubs, who goes quietly and unassumingly about her business of singing in the city where she made her stage debut some eleven years ago. No Hollywood stories or attempts at this or that. She just sings. That's got to be enough, and should be, for you, and you, and you.

The voice has something of her usual unusualness. A different voice, one that seems soft and almost crooning, only to rocket suddenly into real power and brilliance.

As for the picture, there's everything in it there shouldn't be. Margo's (Elissa) friend husband is shot because of a bank robbery. Margo, struggling with a great, brave copper to keep him from her dying husband, finds that a gun has gone off, and lo! Margo has shot a minion of the law. So Margo goes to jail. And Margo comes out of jail to have her baby and then goes back, and the baby is adopted and things just go from bad to worse, and it is all very depressing except for Una Merkel.

Victor McLaglen, as a great big, noble man from Australia, only makes it more so with his determination to set things right. Elissa struggles as best she can with what she has with which to struggle. She cries so much that before the picture is even well under way, she is practically continuously hysterical. We'd be too, playing Margo. Mae Busch returns, a trifle worn in the prison scene. Irene Rich is most attractive, but the gentleman who plays her husband is pretty terrible.

The stage show has novelty in its interesting introduction of the doll mender and the delightful doll dance of the—(now a deep breath)—Twelve Golden Sunkist Dancing Dolls. Fascinating costuming here. Mowatt and Hardy, two hat experts, with at least six hands between them, have a great time with Panamas. Charles Bennington's harmonica band's harmony is grand, but so reminiscent of Borah Minevitch and His Rascals! A one-legged man does painful backkicking, difficult for two legs, then the T. G. S. D. Dolls hop out on crutches to show their prowess and before it's over a chorus of one-legged piratical looking puritans is beating out time. There's a dog act. And honestly the Three Comets have new adagio stunts. It's all very sprightly.

A magic carpet takes us to the Nile, a newsreel to hear H. G. Wells turn the world over to economists, and Giovanni Martinelli to Italy to hear him sing "Nina," nicely recorded, though his first selection is not. Al Mitchell leads the orchestra through one of the most delightful overtures in some weeks.

So if it's quantity you're looking for—

RKO-KEITH'S

"FRIENDS AND LOVERS." RKO-Radio picturization of a story by Maurice DeKobra, adapted to the screen by Wallace Smith, featuring Adolphe Menjou, Laurence Olivier, Lily Damita and Eric von Stroheim, supported by Hugh Herbert, Frederick Kerr and Blanche Friderici. Directed by Victor Schertzinger. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Following a previous effort to establish his claim as a great lover, Adolphe Menjou continues his amatory adventures, this time running into the totally unexpected complication that the lady in question is not only encumbered with a husband, but is also the sweetheart of his closest friend.

This mix-up, unwittingly engineered and equally accidentally uncovered, forms the basis for testing the thesis of whether the bonds of friendship between man and man are stronger than those between man and woman, especially when both men are enamored of the same lady, and that lady is Lily Damita.

Menjou is tricked into a blackmail plot and, after anteing the necessary $25,000, returns to his regiment in the Foreign Service, to which has been reassigned Laurence Olivier. The triangle is discovered and the two men decide to cast the hapless Lily out of their lives. Well, they just can't—for at a dinner party given while they are on leave in London, Lily is there and the battle royal recommences. But the youthful Laurence, whose technique is eclipsed by Adolphe's, loses and Adolphe takes the girl friend off to Paris. The End.

As the friendly enemies, Messrs. Menjou and Olivier give fine delineations, although Mr. Olivier's portrayal loses some of its luster because of the actor's striking resemblance to Ronald Colman. Hugh Herbert, as the desert orderly, furnishes the comedy relief. Frederick Kerr and Blanche Friderici, as Gen. and Lady Armstrong, have characteristically well played parts.

Were any member of the cast to be singled out for especial mention, it perforce would have to be Eric von Stroheim. What memories of Teutonic meticulousness and precision that name conjures up! As the connoisseur of porcelain and blackmailer par excellence, von Stroheim is superb in making himself thoroughly and completely hated—despicable, cold, calculating and sinister in his Mephistophelean role. He is shot during the action, but not before he has vividly impressed all of his complete and total theft of the histrionic honors.

The second of the Masquers Club comedies, "Oh, Oh, Cleopatra," shows Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in a chariot race for the favor of Cleopatra Dorothy Burgess, a subject that is the ne plus ultra of nonsensical travesty. During the screening, many other celebrities of filmland are seen in "straight" parts.

A release of Pathe News rounds out a bill that is as entertaining as it is varied in subject matter and method of presentation.

PALACE

"THE PHANTOM OF PARIS." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer adaptation of the novel, "Cheri-Bibi," by Gaston Leroux, starring John Gilbert, supported by Leila Hyams, Lewis Stone and Jean Hersholt. Directed by John S. Robertson. Reviewed Friday night by Don B. Reed.

John Gilbert, somewhat neglected cinema favorite, comes bounding back onto the main line of filmland in "The Phantom of Paris," as different from the honey-coated love dramas Jack used to play as day is from night. And there is a decided inclination to like Gilbert just as well in this sort of role as in that of the great lover. Not that he overlooks the love theme in this, for he doesn't, and Leila Hyams is a lovely object for his adoration.

As Bibi, famous magician, who escapes from handcuffs and sealed water tanks to mystify audiences and police alike, Gilbert has a part which offers plenty of opportunity for a wide range of expression. He is smooth as silk as the magician performing in public; he is the Gilbert of old making love to the "lady" above his station; he plunges into the depths of despair as the prisoner accused of murdering his sweetheart's father, and he is grand in an impersonation of the real murderer.

There is plenty of action in "The Phantom of Paris." It moves rapidly from sequence to sequence, with just enough of mystery about the plot to keep the climax deftly covered until the proper moment. M-G-M has seen fit to surround Gilbert with an all-star cast, each of the principals adding considerably to a delightful bit of screen entertainment.

Leila Hyams is splendid as Gilbert's sweetheart, forced into marriage with a man she did not love to follow her father's last wish. Ian Keith is sufficiently annoying as the real murderer; C. Aubrey Smith has the role of the murdered father, with an excellent bit before his death. But Lewis Stone and Jean Hersholt come close to sharing honors with the star. Stone, as the great detective, and Hersholt, as the old toymaker and friend of Bibi, are perfect in roles made just for them.

Ted Lewis is back in town, which is enough said for most Palace patrons. The rafters at the old place will be doing a lot of reverberating before the week is out, for Lewis and his Musical Klowns are the hottest things since the Federal Trade Commission offices burned out.

Ted works like a trouper, the band plays everything from lullabys to old minstrel marches and the cast just panics every audience. "Sweet Sue" does a hula dance that stopped the show; "Ted Lewis, Jr.," in his own words, didn't stop the show, but rather "broke it up" with a bit of red-hot hoofing, while "Charlie," another stepper, put on plenty of steam. The last two were ebony-hued entertainers and Ted's presentation is aided also by a colored quartet that can sing, dance and strut. There are eight other hula dancers forming the chorus and every offering is a knockout.

But when Lewis plays "St. Louis Blues" on the clarinet or sings "Music Is Magic" and "Good Old Minstrel Band" they are liable to tear down the house. It is the best program Lewis has given here.

An orchestral prelude and an issue of the Hearst Metrotone News completed a bill which is 99 44-100 real goods.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

WELL, if you can weigh cotton with your eyes, there is a fine air trip to Atlanta, Ga., and back in store for you.

The contest will be inaugurated next Friday, October 23, and will take the form of competitive guessing as to the weight in pounds and ounces of a bale of cotton to be exhibited in the lobby of the Fox Theater. The prize-winning award will include all expenses for a companion of the lucky guesser.

This is the way the thing is to work. Every patron of the theater during the period that the cotton bale is on display will be given a ballot, to be filled out, signed with correct address in its proper space and deposited in one of the several ballot boxes to be provided for that express purpose. Simple, isn't it?

And this is what you will get—if successful: Early one morning the winner and one guest will board an eighteen-passenger Condor plane of the Eastern Air Transport at Hoover Field and be whisked away to Atlanta, over majestic mountains, famous old Southern plantations, and growing cities of the "New" South.

Arriving at Atlanta, the winning contestants will be greeted by officials of the air line and the Fox Theater in the metropolis of the Southeast, escorted to the Georgian Terrace Hotel, entertained at dinner and later be guests of honor at the Fox Theater.

Next day they will tour Atlanta and be greeted by municipal authorities—not necessarily the police department! Stone Mountain also will be visited. The day after that the Washington cotton experts will be flown back to the Capital.

Is that worth a try, or not, I ask you?

Occasionally some cameraman betrays a rigid adherence to what was the last word in novelty and excitement in the early days of the silent movies, to the decided detriment of some modern bit of movie shooting that needs no clowning to put it over.

An instance of the case in point is to be found in the new issue of the Paramount Sound News, currently on view at the Columbia. The blasting away of the entire side of a huge cliff on the site of the mammoth Boulder Dam is shown. An unbelievable amount of dynamite and TNT is used for the purpose and the resultant explosion is cataclysmic, no less.

Then the cameraman, just to be playful, says, "And now we will put it back again," and by reversing his camera causes the earth, rock and destroyed verdure to climb back up out of the river to its original place in the terrain—as abysmal and outworn an anticlimax as could be found in a lifetime of searching.

Or am I merely getting old, or something?

What is all this wave of hoochie-koochie, hula and "Minnie, the Moocher" that has swept over the stages and screens of the land here of late?

Given its first impetus by the bizarre exhibitions down the streets of Cairo at the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893, this ungraceful—and maybe I mean "dis"—form of torso tossing and twirling long ago passed into almost complete eclipse, except in the street carnival tents farthest from the mayor's reviewing stand and in a few fly-by-night burlesque "turkeys," barnstorming on the one-nights. And now look at the darn thing!

The writhing women of the world are wriggling themselves and their audiences into a state of hopeless weariness again these recent weeks—and for what?

Oscar Doob, chief of publicity for the Loew theaters, arrived in the Capital yesterday afternoon by plane from New York, which seems to be the way all of the boys are traveling nowadays.

And it's true as gospel that nothing ever happened to anybody from merely going up in a plane. It's the coming down in which they sometimes don't do so well!

With "The Spirit of Notre Dame" held over a second week at the Rialto, it is now possible to view two posthumous films of Knute Rockne, the foremost of the coaches of the modern gridiron game. He is also in the "Football Thrills" short-reel subject on view at the Columbia.

Last line, my eye! This will hardly get into the paper as it is, so tight is today's issue—the lucky this-and-that!

Suicide Attempt Reported.

According to a police report, Russell Southerland, 26, attempted to end his life by swallowing antiseptic tablets yesterday in his home at 209 Tenth street southwest. He is said to have declined treatment after being taken to Emergency Hospital by the rescue squad, and was discharged.

WHITNEY DEFENDS SELLING OF SHORTS

Stock Exchange President Supports System in Radio Talk.

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, tonight defended short selling as a source of great stability in a time of crisis, as a necessity if the exchange is to keep open, and as a thoroughly legal practice.

Had there been no short interest in the market September 21, the day after England's suspension of the gold standard, Whitney said, the stock exchange might have been forced to close for the third time in its history.

Denies Depression.

He denied, in his address before the Hartford Chamber of Commerce, which was broadcast over a Nation-wide radio hook-up, that short selling had caused a decline in security prices. Instead, he said, such a decline would certainly result from a prohibition of the practice.

"It also is wrong to say that a ban on short selling could halt our business depression," he said. "When economic equilibrium in the world's affairs is again reestablished—and make no mistake, gentlemen, it will be—liquidation of securities will stop, buyers will regain confidence, and prices will rise.

"The prohibition of short selling would delay and can not hasten this process. Neither our governmental authorities by means of legislation, nor the New York Stock Exchange by means of its regulations can by any magic perform economic miracles."

Mr. Whitney disclosed for the first time that last month's ban on short selling was not complete, since it became necessary after the first two hours to permit a limited amount of short selling to prevent corners and unwarranted and dangerous advances.

The address had been awaited with much interest in financial quarters throughout the country, for it was understood Whitney would explain for the first time the handling of the market crisis resulting from England's gold suspension, reveal the results of the exchange's intensive investigation of short selling during the last several months and answer the many outbursts of indignation against short selling.

In declaring the decline in security prices has been due not to short selling but to "our unsatisfactory business conditions and to the liquidation of securities owned outright or held on margin," Whitney said:

Destroys Buying.

"Any halt or hindrance to short selling would have the effect of driving from the stock market the most important sources of buying power, and it would only lead to an excess of sellers and further declines in prices. Whether the opponents of short selling know this or not, the New York Stock Exchange knows it, and it is one of the basic reasons for the stock exchange attitude in defense of short selling."

HOOVER IS REPORTED AS SHORT SALES FOE

Chicago Trade Board Believed Considering Ban in Wheat Dealing.

Chicago, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Restriction of short selling of wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade is understood to have been asked by President Hoover in an interview with Silas H. Strawn, attorney for the exchange.

Mr. Strawn, who is head of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, visits Washington nearly every week-end and has informal discussions with the President on various matters of business. The question of short selling is said to have come up at different times. Today Mr. Strawn notified the Board of Trade directors that he had a statement to make and a special meeting of the directorate was called. Action on the subject presented by Mr. Strawn was deferred until Tuesday.

An official of the Board of Trade said the situation would be considered then. He also said there had been less short selling in the wheat market during the past few months than at any time in years.

Prices were so low, he said, that there was no prospect of profits on the short side and when there was short selling the market was not seriously depressed. He added that the Federal Farm Board had been unable to hold up prices even by purchasing 250,000,000 bushels of wheat.

One of the largest cash wheat handlers said the cash wheat market has steadily hardened of late; that prices were up 7 cents a bushel inside of two weeks, with cash premiums the highest in a long time, and that export sales had increased for a month past.

American U. Plans To Dedicate Field

Exercises to Take Place This Afternoon Before Game.

American University will dedicate its new athletic field this afternoon with appropriate ceremonies, prior to the football game between American U. and High Point College. Homecoming day will be observed for graduates and old students.

One of the features of the ceremony will be the formation of a huge living "A. U." by members of the freshman class, dressed in white. They will leave a procession and form in these two huge letters across the gridiron, facing the stands.

The American University Band will play for the procession, which will wind its way across the new field to the far northwest corner, where the American flag will be raised on a rustic pole in the presence of the assemblage and the two football teams.

Homecoming day will be concluded with a dance in the gymnasium.

Boy's Arm Cut By Auto.

Dr. W. F. Notz Speaks at Annapolis.

Dr. William F. Notz, dean of the Foreign Service School at Georgetown University, yesterday addressed the postgraduates of the Naval Academy, at Annapolis, on the economic situation in Europe. Dr. Notz recently returned from a summer trip abroad.

NOT "JUST AS GOOD" BUT BETTER
FUEL OIL SERVICE

FROM General Manager on down, this is the goal of every Griffith-Consumers' employe.

The following excerpts from the Manual of Instructions given each employe strikingly demonstrates this constant desire to serve you better.

"We have established a reputation for giving the best fuel oil service in Washington. To maintain this good record, we must have the co-operation of every driver and employee.

"Be very careful in making oil deliveries to see that full measure is given.

"Always measure customer's tank before making a delivery to make sure that his tank will hold the quantity of oil ordered.

"Do not drive on lawns or over flower beds under any circumstances. Be careful not to damage shrubbery.

"Drivers are required to be courteous to customers and their servants at all times.

"Orders are heaviest in bad weather. During such periods drivers are expected to put forth extra effort so that customers may be promptly served.

"And remember that we want to give not as good but BETTER SERVICE than any other fuel oil company in Washington. With the full co-operation of drivers and other employees this can be done. Do your part to accomplish this."

This high standard of service is not dependent on "good intentions" alone for the fuel oil personnel of Griffith-Consumers are trained under careful supervision of men who have a thorough knowledge of fuel oil, and how to properly handle it.

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

JACK ESPEY, the ensemble kid, whose fame, or maybe it is notoriety, as the best dressed, or most dressed, sports writer in our fair city, has flown full into the face of fate by challenging this column to a football experting contest on the results of today's games.

The worry is Mr. Espey's. Plunged into the morass of college football during all of his wakeful moments for three months every fall, Mr. Espey is too close to his subject to arrive at a circumspect, deliberate choice of winners while I am able to detach myself from the situation and pot shot my choices from the vantage point of a calm observer.

It has been bruited about that Mr. Espey has made the statement that this column is the Jim Corbett of football pickers. Poor, misguided soul that he is, innocent of my record of past achievements, which included my selection of Hannibal and his elephantine line to defeat the Alps in 218 B. C. by using the pass.

It's Espey's turn first. He picks:

Kentucky to beat Maryland.
High Point to beat American U.
Boston College to beat Villanova.
Dartmouth to beat Columbia.
Cornell to Beat Princeton.
Fordham to beat Holy Cross.
New York U. to beat Rutgers.
Syracuse to beat Florida.
Army to beat Harvard.
West Virginia to beat Washington and Lee.
Washington-Jefferson to beat Western Maryland.
Alabama Poly to beat Georgia Tech.
Georgia to beat North Carolina.
Tennessee to beat Alabama.
Vanderbilt to beat Tulane.
Yale to beat Chicago.
Indiana to beat Iowa.
Notre Dame to beat Drake.
Wisconsin to tie Purdue.

That's his line-up. Watch me riddle it with some reversals right out of the "pickle vat."

What does this guy mean by picking Wisconsin to tie Purdue, anyway? Looks as if he doesn't know his own mind and is on the fence. Not I. I'll haul off and take Purdue. No dilly-dallying. We want selections, not apprehensions.

The good fellow picks Kentucky to beat Maryland. That makes up my mind. I pick Maryland.

He votes for Fordham to beat Holy Cross. On the same premise, I pick Holy Cross.

He's put the onus sign on Washington-Jefferson. So I'll take Western Maryland.

Tennessee might beat Alabama. But Espey picks Tennessee. That is sufficient. I'll take Alabama.

Espey likes Yale to beat Chicago. Stagg is still coaching Chicago. Yale uses a conglomeration of the Michigan, Notre Dame and Tad Jones systems. Don't be misled, Espey. I'll take Chicago.

He's picked a lot of cripples that I won't comment about. A blindfolded man with astigmatism could name the rest of the winners. I like 'em tough.

And if Espey has picked more winners than I have, I shall confound him Sunday morning with my new brown ensemble outfit.

One-Time Washington Pitcher Dead at 53

Moline, Ill., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Oscar Graham, 53, former southpaw pitcher for the Washington American League Club, died here yesterday.

He played with the Moline Club, of the Three Eye League, retiring from the major league.

Murphy, Once Owner Of Chicago Cubs, Dies

Chicago, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Charles Webb Murphy, former owner of the Chicago National League Baseball Club, died at his home here today, victim of a stroke. He was 63 years old.

Murphy, one of the most picturesque figures baseball ever produced, owned the Cubs during the managerial regime of the late Frank L. Chance, the famed "peerless leader." During Murphy's eight-year reign as owner, the Cubs won two world championships, in 1907 and 1908; four National League titles, finished second twice and third in the other two seasons.

Chance put the famous Cub infield of Joe Tinker, Johnny Evers, Henry Steinfeldt and Chance himself, together and the club became a winner almost from the outset. The great double-play combination of "Tinkers to Evers to Chance," became a baseball byword.

Coach Ban Lifted As Team Protests

Boston University Gridmen Win Plea to Have Mentor on Bench at Game.

Weston, Mass., Oct. 16 (U.P.).—The Boston University football team scored a victory today over the "player control" system advocated by Dr. Frederick Rand Rogers, dean of physical education.

Dean Rogers wanted the team to oppose Geneva college here tomorrow with Coach Hilary Mahaney in the stands and the team directed by its captain.

The players appointed a committee of protest led by James Truden, tackle, and Arthur French, Student Manager, and Coach Mahaney announced this afternoon at practise that tomorrow's game would be played under the "old system" Dean Rogers is on a speaking tour in the West.

Reports that the team had threatened to strike and had refused to play under self-direction were denied by university officials.

4 University Teams May Clash

Unemployment Relief Group Seeks to Hold Carnival Dec. 12.

Will Invite Maryland, G. U., Catholic and G. W. to Play.

WASHINGTON'S part in the Nation-wide program of football games for unemployment relief will be a tournament with Georgetown, Maryland, George Washington and Catholic Universities participating if plans discussed yesterday at a meeting at the University Club materialize.

The meeting, called by George J. Adams, executive secretary of the District of Columbia committee on employment, was attended by persons interested in raising funds for the unemployment of Washington and by the sports editors of the five local daily newspapers.

Saturday, December 12, was selected as the most logical time for the tournament, or, for any one game if the tournament plan does not work out. The scene probably will be Griffith Stadium.

All-Star Plan Withdrawn.

At present the use of the stadium for December 12 has been guaranteed the Tall Cedars of Lebanon, a fraternal organization which has planned to stage a charity game between star gridmen of Northern and Southern teams, but it was stated by John Q. Slye, representing the Tall Cedars, that his organization would withdraw in deference to the District committee on employment.

Georgetown and Catholic universities already have gone on record as being willing to participate in games for charity or unemployment relief but whether they, or George Washington or Maryland are favorable to a tournament has yet to be determined.

Catholic University has announced an unqualified offer to meet any team to aid the cause of charity. Georgetown for several weeks has been negotiating with five or six teams in an effort to schedule one game, but Maryland, it has been revealed, is preferred as the Hilltop's opponent.

Three-Game Series Proposed.

The proposed tournament would bring the four teams mentioned into action on the same day in a series of three games, conducted on the elimination plan. The winners of the first two games would meet in the third and final contest and each game would consume 20 minutes. Under this plan no team would play as long as in a regulation game, the duration of which is 60 minutes.

Football tournaments for charity are being arranged in New York and New Haven by eight of the leading elevens of the East, namely, Columbia, Pennsylvania, Cornell and Princeton (in New York) and Dartmouth, Holy Cross, Yale and Brown (New Haven). Numerous other games for the relief of the unemployed are being scheduled throughout the country as colleges and universities come to the aid of President Hoover's committee.

Betzel New Manager Of Louisville Club

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Bruno Betzel, second baseman and former manager of the Indianapolis American Association Club, was appointed today as manager of the Louisville American Association Colonels. Betzel played with Louisville from 1919 to 1927 when he was traded to Indianapolis, where he managed the team until released in 1928. He was with the St. Louis Browns prior to 1919. Betzel's home is in Celina, Ohio. He replaces Allan Sothoron, who went to the St. Louis Browns as a coach.

St. Paul's Franchise Sought by Winnipeg

Chicago, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Two wealthy Winnipeg, Canada, sportsmen today made overtures for the transfer of the St. Paul Club of the American Association to their city.

Thomas Jefferson Mickey, president of the club, said that the two Canadian sportsmen conferred with him directly and that he immediately advised Bob Connery, president of the St. Paul Club, that a lavish offer would be made for the franchise. The two bidders, heavily backed in the project, asked that their names be held secret until an opinion can be gained from President Connery.

"The two bidders said that in view of St. Paul's poor financial return last season, in which it won the league championship, the St. Paul Club would be willing to sell its franchise," Hickey said.

Md. U. Aiming For Win Over Kentucky

Foes Risk Conference Standing in Game at College Park.

Maryland to Oppose Heavy Line and Clever Backs.

A BAND of Kentucky Wildcats are in town ready to steal upon the Old Liners of Maryland University at College Park this afternoon, hungry for victory in the Southern Conference clash that will begin in Byrd Stadium at 2:30 o'clock. And from all reports, the invaders from the Blue Grass State are confident of making a hearty meal of it.

Maryland's confidence has been shaken somewhat by an epidemic of stomach ailments that hit the team the day of the Navy game last Saturday, and which still troubles several of the Old Liners. There were no injuries incurred in the triumphant contest with the Middies, but a couple of Coach Byrd's regulars may be unable to start today and one other is far from form.

However, Maryland has lost none of its determination and will go into the game with the idea that the Wildcats, though favored by the experts, can be tamed to the kittenish state of plain parlor cats.

90-Piece Band to Lend Kentucky Support.

There will be a lot of color to the contest as a trainload of fans with the university's 90-piece band will reach here this morning to lend support to the football team that has an idea that it is going far in the Dixie realm this season. In fact, it is a crucial spot for both Kentucky and Maryland, as the one that is on the short end of the score today will have its ambitions rudely jolted.

If Maryland can get by today's game with the Wildcats it will have the best chance it ever has had to make a place for itself in the Conference rating. Kentucky and Vanderbilt, which it will meet in Nashville November 7, are its biggest barriers, and if the Wildcats can be tamed it will mean much to the College Park aggregation.

Kentucky Boasting Powerful Line.

Kentucky has a big, powerful line that averages better than 190 pounds to the man, and a backfield that compares with the best in the country. Its ball-carrying quartet includes the famous "Shipwreck" Kelly, who not only is famous on the gridiron, but who is one of the best sprinters in the land. He has stepped the 100 yards in as low as 0:9.6.

The Old Liners also have a backfield that contains a lot of dynamite and the game is fraught with possibilities of sensational feats.

The capable Maryland Band also will be on hand to vie with the Kentucky musical organization. The latter will give a concert between the halves.

4,500 Thrilled as Shikat Slams Steele for Victory

Former Champion Ends Bout After 62 Minutes; Both Thrown Out of Ring; Flying Mares Weaken Californian.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

TWO of the mightiest Germans since Beowulf met last night at the Auditorium before 4,500 spectators in the greatest wrestling match put on here in recent years, and, after 62 minutes of fast, fierce and fatal battle, Dick Shikat crashed the 220-pound body of his opponent, Ray Steele, to the mat with such vigor and viciousness that the latter succumbed in the biggest upset of the wrestling year.

For one hour the two giants practiced the science of applied mayhem upon each other after a cautious five-minute period at the start when neither chose to come close enough to shake hands. Shikat gained the first tumble with an arm stretch and chin hold, and the fury of Hades let loose in the ring. Rock-ribbed muscles strained in every known hold and many that weren't in the books. Steele went out of the ring twice, and Shikat twice, and once the two behemoths were both out on the flanges of the ring swinging expertly at the other.

Shikat Breaks Strong Holds.

Shikat walked out of titanic holds like Gulliver broke the Lilliputian ropes which tied him, and Steele's sterling fleetness and equal strength made the match seeming an unending spectacle of wrestling science and brawn. There was no faking here. They didn't reel away from missed punches as if they had been struck by a trench mortar. Instead when they fought they stood toe to toe and pummeled the other with the blows which are permissible in this strange hybrid sport.

Shikat literally rose from a knockout to win. The victim of four crushing flying mares, Shikat met the fifth crush of Steele with two hands into the face of the charger. It took Steele off his feet, and he landed on the back of his head. His heels had not touched the ground when Shikat applied a headlock and battered the ring four times with him. Then he picked him up bodily, went off his feet himself, and came down from an altitude of about 6 feet on top of the prostrate Steele.

Crowd Wild At End.

The crowd cheered Shikat like mad. Steele recovered quickly and leaped out of the ropes, brushed the peering citizens aside and disappeared in the caverns of the Auditorium whence these men spring.

DARTMOUTH IS TEST FOR COLUMBIA

Hewitt Makes Bid for National Fame With Team Underdog.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Lou Little's Columbia Lions, undefeated in three starts this season, were in top condition today for the major test of their schedule against Dartmouth tomorrow.

Columbia has scored 149 points and kept its goal uncrossed against Middlebury, Union and Wesleyan, but is conceded only an outside chance against Dartmouth's powerful eleven.

The game is regarded as Ralph Hewitt's final bid for all-America recognition. The Columbia captain, handicapped by playing on a weak team, never has been able to break loose against Dartmouth, and must make good tomorrow to realize his ambition.

Syracuse Is Primed For Florida Invasion

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Rain interfered with practice today as Syracuse and Florida held their last workouts for the game tomorrow, and both coaches limited activities to limbering-up drill.

Syracuse will enter the game at full strength, but Florida will be compelled to use a substitute for Shaw, regular quarter.

Fordham Slight Choice To Defeat Holy Cross

New York, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—Fordham was a slight favorite tonight to end its twenty-game series with Holy Cross tomorrow with a fourth consecutive victory.

The game will end the series betwen the two Catholic rivals, with Michigan State displacing Holy Cross on Fordham's 1932 schedule. In nineteen games to date, Fordham has won ten and Holy Cross eight, with one tie. Neither school has been able to win more than three consecutive games, but Fordham has taken the last three contests and hopes to shatter the precedent tomorrow.

Rutgers-N. Y. U. Clash Sees Brothers Opposed

New York, Oct. 16 (U.P.).—The Rutgers eleven held its last practice of the week on home ground today and will not arrive here until late tonight for the game with N. Y. U. tomorrow. The New York team worked out in light fashion and called it a day.

30,000 to See Cornell Play Princeton Today

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 16 (U.P.).—An estimated crowd of 30,000 people will attend the Princeton-Cornell game here tomorrow. Cornell rules a slight favorite.

The Tiger eleven arrived this morning and ran through a light workout in the afternoon. Coach Wittmer will start an inexperienced back field which includes three sophomores.

Bucknell and Temple Battle to 0-0 Score

Philadelphia, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Bucknell and Temple football teams battled to a 0-to-0 tie beneath the floodlights tonight. Temple had several chances to score early in the game, but lacked the necessary power to push the ball over.

ELI-CHICAGO GAME SEEN TOSS UP

Booth Chief Threat in Dramatic Invasion of West.

By CHARLES DUNKLEY.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Yale, for the first time in history, will battle on a mid-west football field tomorrow to honor its Athletic star of 43 years ago, Amos Alonzo Stagg, the grand old man of the gridiron.

The contest will be a tribute to Stagg, Yale, 89, now 69 years old, for the 49 years of service to intercollegiate athletics.

The game, the outstanding football attraction in the West, will be one of the most colorful occasions the midway has ever known, equally as attractive as a pageant and a football classic. Yale comes West headed by Albie Booth, the most dramatic personality of present day football, to meet a maroon team that will have everything that the coaching genius of Stagg can provide.

Game Considered Toss-Up.

Chicago's close battle with Michigan, cochampions of the Western conference of 1930, last Saturday, and the defeat of Yale by the strong Georgia team, indicates that the Maroon and Blue elevens, will be evenly matched and that the game is about as much of a toss up as any gridiron contest can be.

The biggest assets in Yale's offense is the clever Booth, one of the finest broken field runners and passers in the game. Chicago has no individual player to match the reputation of Booth, but in Vinson Sahlin and Bobby Wallace has two fast and shifty backs, who figure to give the men of Eli a busy afternoon.

Stagg wants to win tomorrow's game and he has prepared a special offense for the offensive for the occasion. And since Yale and Chicago have a nonscouting agreement, it should be a particular threat.

Stagg's Son in Back Field.

Determined to triumph, Stagg will start his strongest backfield. His son, Paul, will direct the play from quarter and will do the passing. Paul was out of the Michigan game, but has returned to form. The Maroon line will face a weight disadvantage of 9 pounds per man, but that does not worry Coach Stagg, because his forwards fought Michigan to a standstill a week ago.

Georgetown, Duquesne Tie, 0-0

Hilltop Drive at Start Turned Back at 13-Yard Line.

Special to The Washington Post.

FORBES FIELD, Pittsburgh, Oct. 16.—A scoreless tie was the net result of the first football engagement between Georgetown University and Dusqesne, who battled tonight before 5,000 fans at Forbes Field under weather conditions which made playing practically impossible. A slight drizzle was in progress at the start of the game, but within a few minutes after the opening whistle a downpour had started, the rain becoming almost torrential.

Honors, if any, went to the locals, who made nine first downs against seven for the Hoyas, the Georgetown players failing to make a single first down during the second half. The Dukes' attack functioned better and notwithstanding the heavy rain the locals completed five passes while their opponents were making two.

A penalty following the opening kick-off placed the ball deep in Duke territory and gave the visitors their only scoring chance. On the second play after kick-off King tried a pass and when Cristina interfered with the receiver, the Hoyas were awarded a first down on the local 30-yard line. A pass, Donoghue to Hudson, gave them a first down on the 20-yard line, and then Bordeau, on a double pass, made 7 yards. It looked as if Georgetown were headed for a score, but then the rain began pouring and the Dukes held, regaining the ball on their 14-yard line.

Penalty Gives First Down.

Georgetown held, but roughing the punter gave the locals a first down on their 22-yard line and the Dukes followed with two first downs which brought the ball to their 45-yard line. The Dukes kicked, but the visitors fumbled, Weinberg recovering on his own 46-yard line. A sudden pass, De Luca to Cristina, was good for 30 yards and gave the Dukes a first down on their 15-yard mark, King catching the receiver from behind as he was headed for a certain score. The Hoyas regained the ball on their 8-yard line.

The second period was merely an exchange of kicks with Zaninelli outpunting both King and Skovinski. The Dukes were handed a second scoring opportunity when Skovinski fumbled a wet ball and the Dukes recovered on the Georgetown 41-yard line. The locals advanced the ball to the 24-yard mark when the half ended.

The second half proved the Dukes to be the better mud horses. Danner's kick-off was short and was returned to the Duke 45-yard mark, and from that time on the ball was always deep in Georgetown territory. The Dukes carried the ball on half a dozen occasions to the 20-yard line, but did not have the scoring punch and the visitors were continuously compelled to kick from the shadow of their goal.

Georgetown Eleven Kicks.

With the ball deep in their sector and the field treacherous, Tommy Mills' proteges were compelled to abandon their attack and kick, with the result that they failed to make a down in the second half.

Georgetown fumbled the ball on six occasions and the locals once, several of their fumbles after Bordeau had broken through the Duke line and was on his way to good sized gain.

Four Turfmen Suspended In Alleged "Ringer" Coup

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 16.—On October 3, at Havre de Grace, a 2-year-old race horse, which was supposed never to have started before, was listed to run under the name of Shem. The owner's name on the program was given as William Marino, said to be of New York City. The trainer's name was listed as Arthur Kennedy. This Shem, registered as a chestnut colt, was sired by Noah, hence his name.

In a field of twelve nonwinners, Shem broke alertly under Jockey Robert Leishman from the 6-furlong pole and soon opened a gap of several lengths, which it maintained without trouble to the finish.

Shortly after the race was run it looked suspicious to several close followers of the turf. These doubting Thomases hardly could understand that a nonstarter could run so smoothly and so fast the first time out. The time was 1:13 flat.

Then was heard the rumor of "ringer." It gained momentum. The Maryland Racing Commission soon started an investigation.

Today the commission suspended four men, the colt Shem and the filly Ep. The men are Marino, P. Wesley, Leo Kamerman and A. Ray.

Shem, which is believed to be the original colt by that name, was in

Invaders Also Score on Pass Deep in Own Territory.

By JACK ESPEY.

TULSA UNIVERSITY'S Golden Hurricane swept into Griffith Stadium last night, smashed, battered and passed through, over and around George Washington, and, after spending the full force of its fury, eased off into the chill night air, leaving the Colonial eleven breathless and defeated, 24 to 7. More than 15,000 persons, watching the first night game and the first intersectional contest of the year here, were treated to an exhibition of offensive football that seldom materializes outside of a Hollywood studio.

Everything in the category of gridiron attack was unloosed by the Oilers who executed their plays with Utopian finesse and precision. In short, they played a game that any coach might dream about.

Led by Billy Boehm, 145-pound quarterback, and "Ish" Pilkington, 190 pounds of line-bending dynamite, Tulsa reeled off a touchdown in the very first minute of the proceedings and by half-time enjoyed a lead of 18 to 0. About the only thing in which the Hurricane was inefficient was the attempt for extra point, none of Pilkington's four tries with placement kicks succeeding.

Pass Brings Colonials Lone Touchdown.

Against the furious charge of the invaders, the Colonials fought courageously from start to finish and they shot the injured Johnny Fenlon into the fray in the last two minutes to throw the pass that brought them their single touchdown. Fenlon, suffering a badly sprained ankle, limped into the battlefield with the ball on the 15-yard line as a result of a 75-yard gallop by Finis Parrish who intercepted pass, and hurled the oval over the goal line to Bob Galloway for 6 points. Jack Jones place-kicked the extra point.

There was not only power and speed to the Hurricanes' attack, but in addition a generous measure of deception which seldom failed to trick the Colonials. Only when second and third string players entered the game in the fourth period did the Oilers' offensive cease to function smoothly. Fierce smashes at the tackles, sweeping end runs, spinners, fakes and reverses—all of these weapons the visitors employed with equal effect.

But it was a forward pass good for 85 yards and a touchdown that climaxed the thrills. This play occurred in the second period with Tulsa backed up on its 15-yard line and with the Colonials looking for a punt.

Takes Kick, Then Tosses Pass.

Pilkington dropped back 10 yards and faked a kick as G. W. tacklers hurled themselves through the line in an effort to block the ball. Standing on the line of scrimmage a few yards out on the end was the elusive Boehm, and when the Colonials had concentrated on Pilkington the big full back quickly seized his chance and fired straight to Boehm. In another moment the Tulsa jack rabbit was streaking over the chalk marks with his burly mates gathering to form interference. On and on Boehm pushed yardage behind him until his path was clear. Then from out of the startled Colonial ranks came Johnny Fenlon desperately trying to overhaul him, but with an extra burst of speed and changing his direction, Boehm eluded the G. W.

OVERTIME'S STRETCH RUSH WINS LAUREL MILE FEATURE

Whitney Colt Scores Over Sun Melus

Sweepingly Outruns Maiden 2-Year-Olds in Opener.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 15.—Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Overtime captured the Manor Stakes, for 2-year-olds, vanquishing in the stretch Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Melus, reversing their last meeting at Havre de Grace. W. R. Coe's Masked Knight was third, six lengths behind Sun Melus, and Election Day was fourth, in a field of seven which will start in the Spalding Lowe Jenkins Handicap, $10,000 added, to be run later in the meeting.

Sun Melus was first away from the barrier and set up a long lead and appeared the winner, but at the sixteenth the distance began to tell on the Sun Briar colt, and H. Callahan drove Overtime, by The Porter—Pretty Peggy, past him. The result was a surprise to the large crowd, which had made Sun Melus a short-priced favorite. They ran the mile in 1:40 3-5. The winner paid $11.70. This made a double for Mrs. Whitney, she winning both feature races.

Butter John Beats Platers by Neck.

Mrs. C. Crane's 5-year-old horse, Butter John, slight favorite in the fourth race, in which the platers ran a mile and a furlong, won by a neck. Fair Dawn was second and Daddy Nelson third. The pace was set at first by Underdun, and when he yielded the lead to Fair Dawn, Butter John was close up, and in the ensuing battle in the stretch had no trouble getting to the front. The winner, ridden by Barnes, paid $6.60. He was timed in 1:54 4-5.

The Log Cabin Stud's Zosara, the favorite, won the third race for maiden 2-year-old fillies easily, and the victory again placed W. Nertney in front of M. Garner in their contest for leading rider here, 9 to 8. Five lengths behind the winner, A. G. Weston's Jaffa finished second and Audley Farm's Lucky Racket was third. Chloedair, heavily back, was second to the far turn. The winner paid $5. The time was 1:14 4-5.

Sweepingly Leads Maidens.

W. R. Coe's Sweepingly won the first race for maiden 2-year-old fillies by five lengths after racing Broompatch into defeat. Facchina, with Mack Garner up, was second and Glen Burnie, in the field group, third. Happen, the favorite at third betting, was never prominent. This Schwartz filly has been a chronic favorite at this meeting, but her racing has never justified it. The slow condition of the track was indicated by the time, 1:15 1-5. The winner paid $13.50 and was ridden by L. Knapp, apprentice, who managed his mount perfectly.

The Heathen won his second race at last, scoring in the sixth today and his rider, W. Nertney, went further into the lead of the jockeys with ten winners, two ahead of Garner. Hacky H., was second and Dunlin's Lad third. The Heathen was timed in 1:13 2-5 and paid $4.60. Outbound set the pace to the stretch when he quit. The Heathen came strong in the stretch and was going away at the finish.

Badly outrun in the early stages, Glenno, owned by A. Miller, staged a furious drive to win the seventh race from Bob Shannon and Strong Tackle, paying $11.70 in the $2 mutuels. The Miller horse caught Bob Shannon on the outside entering

Boots and Saddle's
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)
—Laurel Selections—
By J. B. SNODGRASS.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 16.—Laurel will put its best foot foremost tomorrow with the renewal of the $10,000 added Laurel Handicap for all-aged horses and the institution of the Maryland Breeders' Futurity, to which $5,000 is added.

Before the running of the first Futurity here, the breeders of the State will have luncheon in the clubhouse restaurant, at which Vice President Charles Curtis will be a guest, and Mr. Curtis, further to show his interest in the breeding industry, will present a cup to the owner of the winner.

The Laurel Handicap, being for all-aged horses, has two 2-year-olds seeking against older horses the honor and the rich purse, BURNING BLAZE and LAUGHING QUEEN. As good as Burning Blaze seems to be, he has undertaken his hardest task in the stake. MR. SPONGE, of the Joseph E. Widener entry, looms as the winner of the stake. He has won two standout races this year, one at Belmont Park in which he ran a mile in 1:35 4-5, the best mile of the year, and the Capital Handicap at Laurel last week, in which he was timed for the six furlongs in 1:11 1-5, setting a new record. With 118 pounds, Mr. Sponge should lead all the way. He is coupled with CURATE. Mrs. Payne Whitney's SURF BOARD is at his best now, and a mile is his distance. He should be the contender. BURNING BLAZE, the star 2-year-old colt, is believed better than the others at any distance and is picked for third. Fourth money should go to CLOCK TOWER.

SULTRY coupled with SWIFT and TRUE of the Trainer Hirsch entry appears best in the first race for maiden two-year-olds, on recent work. BLAZE WHITE and DONNELLA both have a chance. Donnella can do better than in the last outing.

KADIAK has shown he is in top form, by winning a race here, and the opposition is no more dangerous in this event, and he should take the second race. HOLD is improving, and is regarded as chief contender. His race Thursday was his best here. STAR LASSIE has speed and may be dangerous.

QUARTER DECK should repeat in the third race, a handicap, and his weight is light. PRINCE PEST has speed, and is in top form. He is the contender. SIDNEY GRAND has not been racing at his best, but should save the show money.

The starting of a breeders futurity is a good move by the Pimlico management, and it will grow in importance. Sylvester Labrot has been liberal with entries, having entered four of Maryland breeding, BOSCOBEL, SPRING STEEL, MONEL and TINGE. The entry should win. The first two mentioned are the best of the quartet, and Springsteel is the choice. DISABURU should get the place on his Havre de Grace victory. STEP LIZ will have backing and is a fleet filly.

EAGER PLAY, winner of his last two races, is selected for the sixth, but will have keen competition from ANNE ARUNDEL, a filly ready for brackets. TEWSENELDA gave a flash of speed last that indicates top form. GRAND PRINCE, recent winner, may get in the running.

The Lowenstein entry seems to have the seventh race sewed up with REPLEVIN and MOUTHPIECE, the first named being the one to rely upon. MIRBAT should run well here. SUN FRIAR won the last race Thursday, and unless the track gets too fast for him, may make it a hotly contested event, with third money in his grasp.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SWEEPINGLY, $13.10, $5.50, $4.50; FACCHINA, $10.80, $6.90; GLEN BURNIE (field), $7.60.

SWEEPINGLY began quickly, raced BROOMPATCH into defeat and drew out rapidly after being straightened into the home stretch. FACCHINA, slow to get into racing stride, saved ground when moving up and finished with good courage. GLEN BURNIE, forced to race on the outside all the way, came gamely for the final drive. LATEST WRINKLE was unable to reach the leaders. HAPPEN could never reach a contending position. BROOM PATCH, ridden stoutly in the early stages, staggered and refused to extend herself during the final furlong. She swerved badly to the outside. PRISCILLA LEE did not appear to favor the footing.

SECOND RACE—About two miles. Purse, $3,000; allowances. The Warrenton Steeplechase. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:15. Off at 2:16½. Winner, Mrs. J. H. Whitney's br. g. (3), by Peter Pan—Fair Feint. Trained by A. Ferguson. Value to winner, $2,100; second, $600; third, $300. Time, 3:56 1/4 (jumps).

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SPAR, $5.00, $3.60, $3.70; DIONYSOS (entry), $3.30, $3.70; POLINOS (entry), $3.70.

SPAR, steadied along in close attendance of the leaders, fenced boldly when assuming command at the ninth fence, withstood a stout drive and outstayed DIONYSOS. Latter forced a good pace while racing on his own courage for the first mile, recovered gamely after a bad landing at the ninth jump and offered stiff contention thereafter. BAROMETER, sluggish at all of his fences, made repeated early attempts. He struck the beacon turning into the home stretch and ran out of the course, for which he was disqualified. POLINOS was messed about the last half mile. DAWDLE was outrun. WOLF RUN went well for the first mile and one-half. COCK ROBIN bolted to the outside of the wings at the first jump.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For maiden 2-year-old fillies. Start good from stalls for all but Blue Violet, place. Arrived. Went to post at 2:51. Off at 2:57½. Winner, Log Cabin Stud's b. f. (2), by Waysood—Rhea. Trained by J. H. Stotler. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:14 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ZOSARA, $5.00, $3.50, $2.60; JAFFA, $7.60, $3.90; LUCKY RACKET, $2.90.

ZOSARA broke sluggishly, but showed keen speed to move into a forward position in the opening furlong, went to the leaders without effort and drew out at will during the stretch run. JAFFA displayed good early speed in the going, but could not stay with the winner when put to a drive. LUCKY RACKET, racing forwardly, closed gamely in the final drive. CHLOEDAIR weakened steadily in the final three furlongs. BETROTHAL was held safe the entire trip. BLUE VIOLET refused to break and was left.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:26. Off at 3:26½. Winner, C. H. *Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUTTER JOHN, $6.60, $5.60, $3.70; FAIR DAWN, $11.40, $4.60; DADDY NELSON, $2.80.

BUTTER JOHN, at home in the going, was rated off the pace until midway of the back stretch, went to the outside when moving into contention, assumed a brief lead in the final furlong, but had to be vigorously urged to withstand FAIR DAWN. Latter disposed of UNDERDUN when ready, saved ground and held on stoutly for the closing test. DADDY NELSON, under restraint early, finished with good energy. UNDERDUN was unable to keep pace when put to a drive. POMPRET secured racing room on the inside, but was not good enough. VILLAGER closed a good gap. WANDERING GOLD had no excuses.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,500; allowances. The Manor. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:00. Off at 4:00. Winner, Mrs. J. H. Whitney's ch. c. (2), by The Porter—Pretty Peggy. Trained by J. W. Healy. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $200. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48, 1:13 3-5, 1:40 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OVERTIME, $11.70, $4.90, $3.10; SUNMELUS, $3.40, $2.60; MASKED KNIGHT (entry), $2.60.

OVERTIME, rated in nearest pursuit of the pacemaker, was given a mild breathing spell before leaving the back stretch, came to the outside for the final drive and wore SUNMELUS down in the final furlong. SUNMELUS, whipped and rushed hard to take early command, was shaken up repeatedly during the running and weakened in the final drive. MASKED KNIGHT, prominent from the start, was held safe in the closing drive. ELECTION DAY was outrun for the entire journey. STARELIUS could never improve his position. LAUGHING QUEEN was never a factor.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, fame. Went to post at 4:30. Off at 4:31½. Winner, C. H. Pierce's b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—THE HEATHEN, $4.60, $3.40, $2.50; HACKY H., $3.40, $4.80; DUNLIN'S LAD, $3.30.

THE HEATHEN gained a forward position after the first sixteenth, raced OUTBOUND into defeat to take command when entering the home stretch, was kept under a hard drive and outstayed HACKY H. Latter, going in his best form, raced close up and came with a determined effort approaching the finish. DUNLIN'S LAD, forced to work his way up on the inside, responded to punishment and closed with good speed. THE GEN followed the pace closely and came with a good effort nearing the finish. CHARLIE K raced well. OUTBOUND had a lot taken out of him setting the pace.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:06. Off at 5:07. Winner, A. Miller's ch. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GLENNO, $11.80, $5.90, $3.40; BOB SHANNON, $3.50, $3.50; STRONG TACKLE, $103.40.

GLENNO, outrun early, worked his way into contention with good speed, swung to outside of BOB SHANNON entering home stretch and, dismissing latter in final sixteenth, was going away at end. BOB SHANNON, rated along in early speed stages, reached BAKED ALASKA when ready, but was unable to meet winner's rush.

WESTERN HIGH DEFEATS BUSINESS IN SERIES OPENER, 13-0

3,500 Watch Defeat of Stenogs

Penalty Paves Way for Touchdown in First Period.

Pass Leads to Score in Second; Fumble Stops Business.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

RIDING in the wake of a trinity of battering backs, Buscher, Reynolds and Hilleary, and a prancing fleaweight half back, Lynham, Western High's football team knifed through Business High yesterday to win the opening game of the 1931 high school series, 13 to 0, before 3,500 spectators in Central Stadium.

Both teams showed unexpected power in the first half of the game, Western putting one of the biggest grid teams in modern high school history on the field, and Business averaging hardly 5 pounds less per man. Western scored in the first two quarters, and its bulky line saved at least two and possibly three incipient Business tallies when the rejuvenated Stenogs, paced by Bill Flynn, a 185-pound back, battered down the field in a manner thoroughly unlooked for from teams wearing the colors of the school in question.

Western Eleven Penalized.

Western drew three penalties in the first quarter, two for offside and one for unnecessary roughness, being fined by Referee Towers on the first two plays after the kick-off for offside. Western was held in its initial attack in midfield, but it countered by holding Business on Western 40-yard line and then sent its four backs crashing and peppering their way 60 yards down the field to score.

On the 25-yard Business stripe, Western drew a 15-yard penalty for roughness, but a good pass, Buscher to Lynham, made up the loss. Business was penalized for roughness in tackling Buscher on the next play and the ball was moved up to Business' 1-yard line, amid boos from the stands. Lynham bucked it across on the second play and Hilleary rushed the extra point.

Lynham opened the way for the second touchdown by intercepting Cavanaugh's pass and sprinting 40 yards before going down on Business' 21-yard line midway in the second quarter. Reynolds crashed for 20 yards, getting up twice to go on, his shoulders covered with Business tacklers, and Hilleary took it across. Buscher's placement was blocked.

Fumble Ends Drive.

Business held its own in the third period, and in the fourth, when Reynolds fumbled on Business' 10-yard stripe, Flynn, on a fake kick, ran the ball out to the 40-yard line. He made two successive first downs, but the rally ended when Keller fumbled on Western's 20-yard line. Business came right back near the end and advanced the ball to Western's 35-yard line, but Flynn missed the signal on the snapback, and the game died a natural death.

The tussle set a high standard for the remaining school tussles. The schoolboys lashed out at each other with inspired zeal. Western outrushed the losers, twelve first downs to seven, but it was the lowly Stenogs who injected the major portion of the spice in the fray, with the speedy and mountainous Flynn blundering and heroing in the manner to be expected of a boy who has attended but one practice, and yet who possesses a world of native talent.

ALEXANDRIA GRID TEAMS ACTIVE

Celtics, Fraters and Others in Battles Tomorrow.

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Oct. 16.—Reina Mercedes football team, of Annapolis, Md., will invade this city Sunday for a game with the Fraters Eleven at Baggett's Stadium, beginning promptly at 3 o'clock, it was announced today by Ralph Scrivener, manager of the locals.

Scrivener traveled to Baltimore, Md., after a game last night and when he found it was impossible to get an Oriole City eleven here he went to Annapolis, where terms were completed to bring the Gobs here for a contest.

The Fraters were slated to meet the Mercury A. C. but the game was held over.

The St. Mary's Celtics will make their South Atlantic League debut Sunday against the Apaches at Griffith Stadium.

Dick Allen's Del Ray Athletic Club eleven will trek to Seat Pleasant, Md., Sunday to meet the Dixie Pigs in a Capital City League game. This is the opening game for the Red Birds.

TULSA TROUNCES G. W. TEAM, 24-7

The first Tulsa touchdown occurred shortly after play was started as the result of a 30-yard march, with Pilkington bursting through tackle for the score. It was his fourth thrust within the 3-yard line, where he and Boehm alternately had placed the ball on short dashes outside of the tackles.

A devastating march of 76 yards netted the Oilers their second touchdown early in the second period. It began in the preceding period when a series of spinners sending Pilkington crashing through the line completely bewildered the Colonial forwards. Pilkington, first faking a pass to a teammate in the back field, would whirl around to find an opening among the surprised enemy, and clip off gains of five and six yards before the G. W. secondary closed in on him. Finally Boehm turned end for 9 yards and a touchdown, Pilkington making beautiful interference.

G. W. Drive Halts On 8-Yard Line.

George Washington rallied at this stage to open a drive of its own that covered 57 yards before Reynolds, crack guard of Tulsa, intercepted a pass by Fenlon on the 8-yard line. Tulsa's long pass for its third touchdown followed immediately.

Another G. W. threat featured the beginning of the third quarter when Neilson recovered a fumble punt on Tulsa's 5-yard line, the ball having rolled through the legs of Keeling, substitute for Boehm. But the Colonials were unequal to the task of breaking the hard-charging Hurricane line. And Littrell stopped Doyle, G. W. reserve back, on the 2-yard line.

An exchange of punts gave Tulsa the ball on its 36-yard line whence in less than ten plays the Oilers scored once more. A 32-yard pass from Pilkington to Green put the ball on G. W.'s 20-yard line and following a couple of line smashes, Keeling, a perfect counterpart of Boehm, sidestepped his way over the last stripe.

The fourth period was dragging along and many of the spectators were departing when Farrish paved the way for G. W.'s touchdown. This lanky Colonial full back speared a pass by Day on his 10-yard line and dashed 75 yards down the sideline before being overtaken. Here Fenlon, who had retired at the end of the first half, rushed back into the game and tossed a left-handed pass to Galloway, who fought off a couple of aliens to save G. W. a whitewashing.

Hitting —The— Head Pin

"HOKIE" SMITH led King Pin to a two-game victory over Columbia in a District League match rolled at the King Pin alleys last night. Debonair Mr. Smith came within three pins of getting a 400 set. He would have exceeded this mark with plenty to spare had he rolled in the second game as he did in his first and last. "Beans" Boston, of the losers, was not far behind with his score of 387. P. Lawhorn was also in great shape, knocking the bottles for a 372 set.

Todd Construction Co. strengthened its position as leader of the Building Contractor's League when it dealt Fuller a 2-1 defeat at the Arcadia alleys last night. A. W. Lee, with Dick Lee spilling the maples for a high set of 363, took the odd one from Standard Art Marble. The winners had a set of 1,643. Heffron handed Southern Asbestos a 2-1 setback, while D. C. Butcher was giving Minte Paint a dose of the same medicine. Evans Plumbing, Massapomax Sand and Smoot Construction scored one-game victories over Moyer Construction, Rosslyn Steel and Fuller's Stone Plant, respectively.

The Columbia Mixed Doubles League will get under way tonight at 8 o'clock on the Columbia alleys, with many of the city's leading bowlers entered. The following duckpinners will compete: Elsie Fischer, Lorraine Gulli, Margaret Leaman, Peggy Babcock, Jean Welsh, Catherine Crawley, Billie Butler, Polly Shugrue, Catherine Hiser, Lucille Young, Reva Banks, Margaret Miltner, Doris Goodall, Helen Sample, Paul Harrison, Fred Moore, Eddie Espey, Norman Schroth, "Hap" Welsh, Wesley Miltner, Phillip Goodall, Hugh Crawley, Carroll Daly, Clem Weidman, Paul James, Charles Young, Al Fischer and Bill Maske.

Although no world's records were broken the Public Buildings and Public Parks League witnessed plenty of close scores in its matches rolled at the Temple alleys last night. Of the twelve teams competing Architects was the only one able to win all three from its opponent. Engineers was the victim in this match. The other results are as follows: Potomac Park defeated Horticulture, Surveyors took the odd one from Parks, Main was one better than Triangle, No. 1, Accounts stopped Welfare by a single game, and Supply put the bee on Shops. Bittner, of Architects, rolled high game with a score of 124.

MARINES 18-0 WINNERS IN MUD

Campbell College Is Routed; Zeher in Star Role.

IN a game marred by frequent penalties and the poor condition of the playing field due to rain, the Quantico Marines defeated Campbell College by a score of 18-0 at Quantico yesterday. Approximately 1,000 fans witnessed the game.

The Devil Dogs, after twice being held by their lighter opponents within the 20-yard zone in the first quarter, scored two touchdowns in the second period in rapid fire order. They clicked off four first downs in succession, bringing the ball down to Campbell's 5-yard line. From this point Zeher plunged over for the score.

Zeher took the following kick-off and ran it back to his 45-yard line. A 40-yard pass, Zeher to Robertson, produced the second 6-pointer. In the third quarter the sea soldiers were encamped on their rivals' 10-yard stripe on two occasions, but each time Campbell held and took the ball on downs.

St. John's-Calvert Hall To Battle Here Today

Two of the best high school teams in the section will clash today at Eastern Stadium when St. John's, claimants of the prep school championship last year, will take on the city champions of Baltimore, Calvert Hall, at 2:30 o'clock.

Calvert, boasting of one of its biggest squads in the history of the school, including 10 regulars from last year's undefeated team, looms as a favorite, but the Cadets are stronger than ever this year. Last year Calvert won, 13-7, in Baltimore. St. John's has six regulars in its line-up, including Mike Scanlon, one of the best high school ball luggers.

AMERICAN U. DEDICATES NEW FIELD

Eagle and High Point Elevens to Clash Here Today.

AMERICAN UNIVERSITY'S light, but hard fighting eleven makes its debut before a local audience this afternoon when it meets the High Point (N. C.) College team on the new American University field, located 200 yards west of Nebraska avenue on Massachusetts avenue. Ceremonies dedicating the field, preceding the game, will begin at 2 o'clock with a delegation of students led by Earl Masencup, president of the Student Council, hoisting Old Glory in the breeze.

A closely contested game is anticipated as the rivals appear well matched in weight, speed and experience. Each has lost to Lynchburg College by a small margin, although the Eagles bowed by two touchdowns while High Point conceded only one point.

Eagles Drill on Passes.

American this week has devoted most of its time in practice to the strengthening of its defense for forward passes. Coach Walter Young believes that the Eagles will win if they frustrate the visitors' overhead attack.

Ed Parke, former Central High School star, is the offensive and defensive mainstay of the local eleven. Playing in the full back position, this 6-footer backs up the line effectively and does most of his team's passing and punting. He also is the chief reliance in the Eagles' ground offense.

FOUR SUSPENDED IN "RINGER" COUP

Maryland from the night of October 1 until yesterday, when he was shipped by train to New York City. He was stabled near the race track at Havre de Grace.

Durng the last week of racing at Havre De Grace, Jimmy Ross, track superintendent, was told by Kennedy to procure two stalls for him because he expected two horses to be sent down from New York.

A van left either from Belmont Park or Aqueduct with two horses, it is said, and picked up another horse at Jamaica. The van arrived at Havre De Grace on the night of October 1, when one of the horses was taken to a farm. After disposing of this horse, so the story runs, the van continued into the race track proper and disposed of its other two horses to Kennedy. They were supposed to be Shem and Ep.

Early this week Dr. Tubbs received a message from Ray instructing him to ship the horse by rail to New York. The horse started on its way Wednesday.

NOEL HOUSE TO WORK.

All members of the Noel House 135-pound football team are requested to meet on the Rosedale Playground today at 5:30 p. m., for practice. Sunday Manager Mathews will take his charges to Alexandria for a game with the Virginia Pirates.

ST. ANTHONY'S WINS.

Shillman's 40-yard run after intercepting an enemy pass enabled St. Anthony's gridders to score a 6-0 victory over St. Paul's Academy on the latter's field yesterday. It was the first game for both elevens but both showed to a good advantage.

MERCURY SEEKS FOE.

The Mercury 125-pound football team is without a game for Sunday and would like to meet a strong team in its class. Manager Riley is arranging the schedule at District 9151.

TIGERS WOULD PLAY.

2,000 WATCH ARMSTRONG IN DRAW

School Eleven Ties Baltimoreans by 7-7 Score.

A CROWD of 2,000 witnessed the annual clash between Armstrong High and Douglass High of Baltimore, yesterday afternoon in the Walker Stadium, which resulted in a 7-7 tie. The Orange eleven of Armstrong appeared outclassed in the first quarter when they were swept down the field by a powerful attack launched by the Douglass aggregation.

Douglass essayed the air from the 14-yard line and scored the first touchdown, Morse to Dantley, on a short pass after eight minutes of play. Byrd carried the ball over for the extra point. Coach Westmoreland, at this point, sent in his first string, which held the Oriole aggregation safe and, but for an offside play, would have turned apparent defeat into victory.

Armstrong Near Another Score.

Armstrong was the aggressor for the greater part of the second half. Its count was made in the third quarter, when Thompson intercepted a lateral pass, Morse to Hutchinson, and raced 40 yards for a touchdown, the extra point being rushed across by Franklin.

In the final quarter, on the Douglass 10-yard line, Armstrong completed a 15-yard pass across the goal line, but was penalized for holding. The team gained 10 yards on the next play by a forward pass, but lost the ball and the chance to score on the next play, when held for downs.

G. W. and Western Md. Cubs to Clash Today

The George Washington freshmen eleven meets the Western Maryland yearlings in Griffith Stadium at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. The Colonial Cubs have played one game this season, winning handily from Altoona Training School, 53 to 0, but they had little or no opposition in it. The Green Terror youngsters are reputed to be powerful.

4,500 SEE SHIKAT WIN FROM STEELE

The preliminaries, for the most part, were the customary farces with pulled punches as prevalent as were caps and gold teeth in the audience. The show got off to a halting start when George Romonoff threw a gentleman believed to be named Bobbie Leachfield, or Leachcock, in 22 minutes with a couple of flying mares. Washington's Own, Doc Wilson, was successful against a fat man named Bruce Hanson, in 16½ minutes with a body slam. Tiger Nelson, of course, lost to George Hagan, the reformed Marine, in 23 listless minutes. Hagan has gone way back.

Nelson and Umpire Bortnick supplied most of the gore, when they traded taps outside the ring in a wild melee. Mr. Bortnick, it is regretful to report, missed a nice right hook to Mr. Nelson's jaw and hit the ring post instead, lacerating himself badly about the fingers.

The semifinal round of the tournament produced some good fighting and not a little wrestling. Sandor Szabo, the brunette Hungarian menace, made goulash out of one John Katan, a tough guy, in 28 minutes. The "holt" was called a "flying tackle," but, unless these sad old eyes are dimming badly, it possessed all the maneuvers of a left hook to the button.

The preliminaries served only to whet the appetite of the witnesses for the final. Another match like Shikat vs. Steele would pile up so much good wrestling within the city that the thousand punk grunt tableaux which have been committed here would be gracefully forgiven.

CENTRAL GOLFERS VIE.

The first annual golf championship of Central High School will be staged today on the East Potomac links, starting at 9 a. m. Teddy Duvall and Jack Quigley, members of the Mount Pleasant School golf team, are handling arrangements for the tournament. A sizeable entry list is expected.

HAWKS TO WORK OUT.

Patsy Donovan, major-domo of the Mohawk Club's football forces, wants all members of the squad to report for practice at the clubhouse tonight at 7 p. m. The Hawks will go through a light drill in preparation for their game tomorrow in the South Atlantic Football League.

Speedy Celtic Backs Face Apaches Here Tomorrow

THE Alexandria Celtics, who defeated both the Mohawks and the Apaches last season, will make their debut in the South Atlantic League tomorrow, meeting the Apaches at Griffith Stadium, starting at 2:30 p. m.

While the Alexandrians have made several changes in their line-up since the 1930 games, they have added Joe Sweeney and Admiral Dewey, two of the speediest independent players, and will invade Washington confident of turning back the District champions and backed by a large following.

Two Alexandria boys, Lester McMenamin and Ellett Cabell, will start in the back field. McMenamin, former All-State High School player, who later starred at William and Mary, is a brilliant punter.

The Apaches, under Coach Jim Farrell, have spent the week brushing up on their plays. The Indians opened their season last Sunday with a scoreless tie with Irvington and are anxious to gain a victory.

While the Apaches and Celtics are fighting it out here, the Mohawks and Irvingtons will be meeting in Baltimore.

Bristol High Captain Punts Ball 105 Yards

Bristol, Va.-Tenn., Oct. 16 (A.P.). Herbert Miller, captain and end of the Bristol (Va.) High School football team, punted a ball 105 yards today during his team's 21-to-0 victory over Saltville High.

Miller was standing on his own 5-yard line when he kicked and the ball stopped at the opposite goal posts. Another of his kicks traveled 73 yards.

OVERTIME WINNER IN LAUREL FEATURE

the home stretch and opened up a lead of two lengths by the time the wire was reached.

Baked Alaska, a long shot, gave his backers a thrill when he took the lead and held on for three-quarters of the journey, but when put to the test he was unable to stave off the three which took down the money. Bob Shannon ran a steady race to beat Strong Tackle, a rank outsider, for the place. Strong Tackle was quoted at odds of $441.70 to $1, and paid $103.40 for taking the show position.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Spar, for the second time this year defeated Mrs. T. W. Durant's Dionysos, when he won the Warrenton Steeplechase, $3,000 added, feature here today. But Mrs. Durant had the distinction not only of taking second money, but took third as well. This came about when E. R. Bradley's Barometer knocked a buoy off the course, and while finishing third, was placed last by the stewards.

The last time Dionysos and Spar met was in the Harbor Hill at Aqueduct, Spar winning by a half length. He won by a length today. The winner was $5. J. McGovern, apprentice rider, had the mount on the winner. Ball rode the second horse, and C. R. White, amateur, was on Polinos.

CENTENNIALS DRILL.

The Centennials will practice today at 5:30 p. m. on the New York Avenue Playground in preparation for their game in the Capital City League Sunday. Manager Joe Khuen is displeased with the showing of the team and a general shake-up is expected at the drill today.

BRENTWOOD DRILLS.

Coach Wilkinson wants all members of the Brentwood Hawks to report for practice tonight at 7:30 o'clock on the field at Seventeenth street and Constitution avenue northwest. Wilkinson's charges have high hopes of avenging the 13-0 setback they received at the hands of the Palace Club in the Capital City League last Sunday by winning tomorrow's tilt.

C. U. VARSITY WINS OVER CUBS, 19-6

Freshmen Score First; Oliver and Whelan Salvage Game.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

A TEAM of good, big men, Catholic University's varsity, defeated a team of good, little men, the Frosh from the same school, by the score of 19-6, in the Brookland stadium yesterday. Proceeds derived from the game will be contributed to the Knute Rockne Memorial Fund.

For three periods of the game the upper classmen faced the humiliating prospect of being tied by the lowly freshmen, and possibly beaten. Coach "Dutch" Bermann placed his second-stringers on the field at the start of the game, but this team could approach no closer than the 6-yard line to its opponents' goal, where the latter withstood four line plunges to take the ball on downs in the opening period.

The first team came hustling on the field near the end of the second quarter bristling with energy and confident of shoving over at least two touchdowns before the end of the half. To the Frosh this was only a signal for the fireworks, and Finn cut loose with a 20-yard heave to Miller for a touchdown. Tom Whelan put the big boys back in the running in short order when he took the kick-off and blasted his way through a maze of yearlings for 80 yards and the score.

There was no change in the score until the final period, when Johnny Oliver, varsity quarter back, shot a 35-yard pass to Carl De Mello, who eased over the final chalk mark for a touchdown. About midway in the same period the eventual winners tallied the final score of the game, when Billinger secured a headlock on a Frosh lateral pass and ran 15 yards to the goal line.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

HOW TO TREAT SNAKE BITE.

A MAN bit by a rattlesnake 45 miles from El Paso not only had his life saved, but contributed something to our knowledge of how to treat snake bite. The bite was on the ankle. A tourniquet was applied and the man was started toward town and a chance for treatment. (If the wound was not slashed and the outward flow of blood and poison promoted by suction that should have been done.) When the treatment station was reached suction was done for ten minutes.

It was repeated at intervals of an hour until three attempts to evacuate the poison by that means had been made, and it was felt that no more poison was being removed. A full dose of antivenim was injected. A clean protective dressing was applied loosely to the wound. Up to this point the case presented no unusual features.

A careful record was kept of blood pressure. It was found that the systolic pressure tended to drop from 150, the level it was at first, to 80 or thereabouts. Whenever a drop occurred the man would show signs of shock, and the physicians would give a full injection of a 10 per cent solution of glucose, or nine-tenths of 1 per cent salt solution.

The injection was given by one of several routes and methods. Following the injection the pressure would rise. When it would drop a few hours later another injection would be given. After the use of several injections no further drops occurred and the man was regarded as out of danger.

Another observation was that the poison caused the blood hemoglobin percentage to drop to 35. This was overcome by a transfusion. After that the man rapidly convalesced and before many days he was well and his wound had healed. He had no whisky and none of the usual remedies given for shock. If he had been where he could not have received these injections as a means of holding his blood pressure up he would have had to rely on coffee, ammonia, and hot drinks.

Col. M. L. Crimmins' district contribution was the study of the blood pressure and blood richness and his suggestions as to how to take care of the dangerous effects of snake bite in these directions. Incidentally, he tells us that many medium sized rattlesnakes are capable of killing an adult, provided everything is right. A medium sized snake is more poisonous than a big, old fellow, or a little, young one.

If a snake bites through clothing he can be expected to inject only about one-fourth of his poinson into the wound. Bites of the hand, foot, forearm, and lower leg are generally not fatal because of poor absorption. A snake with a full stomach is not likely to have much poison. It takes three days for a snake to digest a full meal. After his poison bag has emptied completely about two weeks will elapse before it is completely filled.

STITCHES AND HEALING.

D. writes: My brother had a leg operation some time ago. To date, one or two places where the stitches were taken out have not healed. He has applied ointments. Do you think it would be better to leave off all salves and ointments?

REPLY.

I am sure that applying salves and ointments does no good.

If I were an old family doctor, I would say burn out the proud flesh with alum or something else, and then expose the places to direct sunlight and air.

Is it possible that there are stitches or other foreign matter in the bottom of the nonhealing places?

Rich Fossil Beds Found In Western Nebraska

Sidney, Nebr. (U.P.).—New, rich fossil beds have been discovered in western Nebraska by a party of investigators working near here and at Bridgeport during the summer months.

Fields located here and at Bridgeport are reported to be particularly productive by C. B. Schultz, leader of the excavation party.

Work done this year was primary, Schulz said, but resulted in discovery of valuable oligocene beds. Two members of the party, digging near here, unearthed a mastodon skull, prehistoric rhinoceros, camel, turtle and evidences of a rare three-toed horse. The party will return to this location next year to further develop this bed.

One of the most important finds ever made in Nebraska was reported from near Bridgeport, where the jaw of an amphibian was unearthed.

Texas Presbyterians Ask National Day of Prayer

Fort Worth, Tex. (U.P.).—Texas Presbyterians in convention here recommended a nationally observed day of prayer and fasting for the economic ills of the world.

Delegates from the Cuero Church asked that the convention petition Gov. Ross Sterling to designate such a day in Texas and President Hoover to set aside a national day.

RAIL STOCKS GUIDE MARKET'S ADVANCE

Leading Issues Rise in Price as Financial Sentiment Begins to Mount.

New York, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Stocks and commodities gained strength today and sentiment in financial circles seemed to move up a notch or two with them. Railroad shares provided the basis for the stock market's advance after a little shakiness at the opening. With the exception of the first quarter hour or so, and a brief interval of afternoon profit-taking, prices were advancing all day and there was a final spurt at the close. The net advance averaged 2.5 points. Trading was again relatively dull, the turnover amounting to 1,420,273 shares.

United States Steel, which has a dividend meeting soon, looked as though its sponsors were confident the regular payment would be voted, closing 2½ higher. General Motors and General Electric were sluggist.

Phone Shares Rally.

American Telephone rallied more than 3 points, while Westinghouse, American Can, National Biscuit, Woolworth, Paramount, Loew's, North American, United Corporation, American & Foreign Power and Consolidated Gas advanced 1 to more than 2. In the rails, Atchison's gain was 5½, Southern Pacific's 3⅞, New Haven's 3¾, New York Central's 2⅝ and Baltimore & Ohio's 2½. Most of the carriers were up at least a point.

The 3½ per cent rediscount rate here, quickly duplicated by the Chicago and Boston Central banks, had immediate repercussions in the money market. Call loans renewed at 2½ per cent, bankers' acceptances were advanced, time funds firmed and commercial paper rose 1 per cent. Wall Street generally regarded the rate rise as constructive, viewing the action with little or no surprise and feeling that the continuation of gold losses would bring still further increases.

Gold exports amounted to about $44,000,000, but there was a decrease of $7,732,000 in earmarkings and imports of $8,412,000 at New York and San Francisco, which brought the net loss to slightly more than $28,000,000.

Foreign Trade Gains.

The appearance of a seasonal gain in America's foreign trade for September was also gratifying, especially when it was recalled that many lines of home industry has had no improvement. It is still too early to gauge the effects on our own trade and by a general improvement in sentiment, according to both Dun's and Bradstreet's. "There can be little doubt," the latter said, "that business is gradually adjusting itself to changed conditions and becoming less depressed by the conservative attitude everywhere displayed." Dun's commodity list revealed a preponderance of advances over declines for the first time in twelve weeks.

Foreign exchanges eased slightly because of the higher interest rates available here, although Sterling closed unchanged at $3.87½. Wheat rose half a cent in response to large exports and dry weather in Kansas. Corn was up slightly less and cotton improved 50 to 60 cents per bale.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Oct. 16 (A.P.).—Broadening of export business in North American wheat lifted grain values today anew. It was estimated that 1,500,000 bushels of Canadian and United States wheat had been bought today for shipment overseas, and that total foreign takings in the last week were 6,000,000 bushels, or more. Indications pointed to a better milling demand in Europe, and with Canadian stocks of wheat greatly reduced as compared with a year ago much damp and sprouted wheat was reported as being marketed in Canada.

Wheat closed firm, 3 to 3½ cents higher, corn ½ to ⅝ up, oats unchanged to ¼ to ⅜ advance, and provisions unchanged to 13 cents off.

Despite heavy selling to realize profits, wheat prices finished at almost the day's top level. Upturns here were prefaced by unexpected advance in Liverpool, and by assertions that United States wheat both at Gulf or Mexico and Atlantic ports was now cheaper than Argentine wheat. Notwithstanding high quality of the United States grain and low quality of Argentina's, there was also a bullish impression that Argentine wheat crops in northern districts were reported to be within three weeks of harvest and to be at the jointing stage in territory south. Advices here said that during the last five weeks the average rainfall in north Argentina was only 1.6 inches, against a normal of 2.8, and in the south was 1.2 inches compared with 2.4 normal. Bullish stress also on Texas reports that more rain was needed, and that seeding progress remained slow in parts of Texas wheat region. Some other domestic winter wheat areas Southwest were likewise without relief.

Corn and oats showed themselves responsive to wheat strength. Auspicious weather for field work and for cribbing of corn failed to act as an offset. Provisions reflected downturns in hog values.

FEDERAL BONDS SAG AS RAIL ISSUES GAIN

Treasury and Liberty Loans Drop to New Lows in Changing Market.

New York, Oct. 16. (A.P.).—Fluctuations in the bond market today were very much mixed. United States Government loans declined to a greater degree than ever before this year, and high grade and gilt edge corporate issues were generally lower also, principally as a response to the advance in money rates. Many second grade bonds, particularly among rail issues, made good gains.

Most of the Treasury and Liberty loans reached new low levels for this year, and the Treasury 4s of 1954 sold at the lowest price in almost seven years. The Treasury 3⅛s of 1946-49 lost more than 4 points and the new 3s of 1951-55 dropped more than 3 points. The weakness in the latter two bonds was not surprising in view of the fact that they were floated when money rates were abnormally low just a few months ago.

Some bankers were disposed to regard the action of these Government bonds as partly the result of selling by interests desirous of enlarging their cash reserves. The prospect of rising interest rates on bank deposits have tempted some large corporate holders of the bonds to convert them into cash, in some instances.

Secondary rail loans followed carrier stocks upward. Net gains of 1 to 5 points appeared in such active issues as Chesapeake & Ohio series B 4½s, St. Paul 5s of 1975 and 5s of 2000, Rock Island 4s of 1934, Colorado & Southern series A 4½s, Kansas City Southern 5s of 1950, Erie 5s of 1967 and of 1975, several issues of Missouri Pacific 5s and St. Louis San Francisco 4½s of 1978. However, high grade carrier loans such as those of the Atchison, Norfolk & Western and Union Pacific eased off, probably because of rising money rates.

Public utility and industrial obligations divided their changes about evenly between gains and declines. The former were moderately active but the latter were quiet.

25 Years Ago Today

OCTOBER 17, 1906.

Francis L. Cardozo, supervising principal of colored schools, was dismissed yesterday by the Board of Education from the public school service on a charge of disloyalty to his superior, Assistant Superintendent Montgomery.

Secretary Taft reached Washington shortly after midnight on his return trip from Cuba, where he has been in an effort to quiet turbulent political conditions. In addition to Mrs. Taft, all of the official party which accompanied the War Secretary to the island republic, were in the returning group.

Sir William Perkins, the English chemist and discoverer of coal tar dye, who is visiting in the United States, was given an official welcome last night by the Chemical Society of Washington at the University Club. Postmaster General George B. Cortelyou, president of the club, made the principal address.

On account of a shortage of work at the Government Printing Office, Public Printer Stillings has announced a furlough among the compositors, proofreaders, makeups, imposers and caster helpers.

RAILWAY EMPLOYE SHOOTS SELF DEAD OVER ILL DAUGHTER

Harry J. Connell, 38, Sends Bullet Into Head While Alone in Office.

ATTORNEY FINDS BODY AND SUMMONS POLICE

Brooded Over Child, 4, Held as Incurably Paralyzed; Leaves Note to Kin.

Harry J. Connell, 38-year-old file clerk for the American Short Line Railway Association, was found dead last night—a bullet through his head—in the company's suite of offices on the fourth floor of the Union Trust Building, Fifteenth and H streets northwest.

The discovery was made shortly after 7 o'clock by Clarence A. Miller, assistant general counsel for the association, who went to the office to obtain a brief case he had left on his desk. Mr. Miller said he noticed a light burning in Mr. Connell's room. As he entered the room to extinguish the light, Mr. Miller said, he found the man's prostrate body on the floor. A revolver was clutched tightly in his right hand.

Police were summoned and a doctor from Casualty Hospital pronounced Mr. Connell dead.

Cigarettes Littered Floor.

According to Mr. Miller, the man was left alone in the office when the day's business was finished at 5:30 o'clock. No one saw him after that time. It was apparent that Mr. Connell debated his act for some time. A large number of cigarettes, some only half smoked, were strewn about the floor.

For several months, friends testified, Mr. Connell had suffered great mental torture. His youngest daughter, Margaret, 4 years old, had been pronounced a hopeless paralytic by physicians at Johns Hopkins University Hospital in Baltimore, Md. The child became ill while visiting her grandparents in Kansas City, Mo., during the summer. Upon her return to Washington she was taken to the Baltimore Hospital, where her case was diagnosed as "muscular paralysis." Doctors declared there was no hope for recovery and the disease would increase as the child grew older.

The increasing strain under which the father labored, fearing for the welfare of his daughter, was apparently more than he could endure. He confided in Mr. Miller a short time ago that the continual worry was too much for him. He indicated at that time, Mr. Miller said, that he had contemplated suicide. Miller said he attempted to dissuade him, and that he had apparently regained his normal state of mind.

Fired Bullet Into Mouth.

Left alone in the office last night, it was evident that Mr. Connell brooded over his troubles for some time, until he at last brought himself to the point of ending his life. With a .32 caliber revolver, which Mr. Miller was at a loss to know where he obtained, he apparently stood in front of a small mirror in one corner of the room and, placing the end of the gun in his mouth, pulled the trigger.

Several watchmen in the building declared they heard no shot, and the tragedy was not discovered until Mr. Miller returned. Besides the cigarette butts, the room was in perfect order. A note on the man's desk asked police to notify S. S. Gheen, his brother-in-law, at 1752 Kilbourne place northwest. Mr. Gheen, who was attending the wrestling matches at the Auditorium, had not been located at a late hour last night. Mrs. Gheen, the man's sister, was notified by a Post reporter. A package, also addressed to Mr. Gheen, was found on a nearby desk.

Long Employed by Company.

Mr. Connell, who had been employed by the railway association for more than 10 years, made his home with his wife, Mrs. Anne Connell, at 4323 Twelfth place northeast. He is also survived by another daughter, Marie, 7 years old.

Deputy Coroner Joseph D. Rogers issued a certificate of suicide. The body was removed to the undertaking establishment of T. F. Costello.

MOTION TO DISMISS FILED IN ATTACK ON NEW ELECTRIC RATE

Twelve Reasons Cited Why Pepco Suit Should Be Thrown Out.

VALIDITY OF CONSENT DECREE QUESTIONED

Contention Utility Body Is Bound by Former Order Held Absurd.

Twelve reasons why suit of the Potomac Electric Power Co. to invalidate the sliding scale rate established by the Public Utilities Commission should be dismissed are cited in a motion filed in District Supreme Court yesterday by People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech, Corporation Counsel William W. Bride and William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel, on behalf of the commission.

The bill contends that the order, which nullified the previous consent decree and established a new basis for fixing electric rates in the District, is valid in every respect.

It further asserts that the complaint filed by the power company "shows on its face" that the order was "duly and validly adopted."

Ten Per Cent Return Held High.

Order referred to was adopted several months ago following a hearing which convinced the commission that the rate of return of the Potomac Electric Power Co., about 10 per cent, was too high. A new sliding scale which assigned a greater proportion of excess profits to the consumers for rate reductions was subsequently adopted.

After waiting almost until the time limit had expired, the power company filed an appeal in which it challenged authority of the utilities body to abrogate the consent decree without consent of either the second party or the court.

Contention of the power company that the present commission is without power to fix electric rates because a previous commission entered into the consent decree is ridiculed by the bill to dismiss.

Consent Decree Questioned.

"If this be true, then the Public Utilities Commission has been shorn of one of the primary duties placed upon it by Congress," the brief states.

Validity of the consent decree itself is questioned. A strict interpretation of the public utilities act "would render it strictly in conflict" with the organic law, it is asserted.

"Absurdity of the contention that by entering into an arrangement * * * the commission divested itself or its successors of the right to change such an arrangement where the necessity for such action exists is self-evident," the motion says.

New Type Cover Used On Hill's Steam Pipes

An interesting feature of construction work being done on Capitol Hill is the installation for the first time in Washington of a type of cover for steam pipes which can be removed for repairs with considerably less difficulty than was heretofore possible.

The new covers, which are known as precast slabs, are solid pieces of cement with hooks on all corners, so that they may be conveniently raised by a small derrick when necessary. Each slab weighs three tons and covers ten feet of piping, under which is packed mineral wool to act as insulation for the hot pipes.

The new scheme, which eliminates much of the tearing up of the streets when repairs are necessary, is being used in the installation of new pipes from the Capitol heating plant to all Government buildings on the "hill." More than 900 of the slabs in all will be used before the job is finished.

In addition to the new covers, engineers are using a 14-inch pipe in 50-foot lengths, which, it is believed, because of their large size and length, will eliminate much of the usual trouble. Each piece of the pipe weighs 3,500 pounds.

Old Rubber Check Racket In New Setting Snares 2

Two checks bounced back energetically yesterday to two Washington women who gave cash change for them to a young man who tendered them as payment for a month's garage rent.

The victims of the ruse are Mrs. Tillie Weintraut, of 4728 Georgia avenue northwest, and Miss Alice Johnson, of 29 Rock Creek Church road northwest. Both have garages for rent in the rear of their homes, and both were approached Wednesday by a man who wanted to rent a garage.

Both women accepted $20 checks in payment for a month's rent on the garage, and both confidently gave change. Mrs. Weintraut, whose garage rents for $9 a month, lost $11, and Miss Johnson is out $15, her garage renting for $5.

Police were unable last night to locate anybody knowing the "J. Crosby" who signed the checks on a local bank, and have broadcast a lookout for the man, who was described by both of his victims.

Trap for Oyster's Enemy Evolved by U. S. Bureau

In order that the world's future supply of half-dozen fried or dozen on the half-shell may be safeguarded, the Bureau of Fisheries yesterday announced that a mighty blow in defense of the oyster had been struck.

Any one who is even only slightly acquainted with the oyster knows that the bivalve is a particularly helpless form of life, and the oyster drill, an animal having a file-like tongue that plays havoc with the oyster shell, has destroyed countless thousands of the bivalves.

The Bureau of Fisheries, however, has evolved a trap for this vandal. Strange as it may seem, the bait is sand. Buckets of sand cause the drills to accumulate in great numbers. Then they are hauled in and destroyed.

Traps are now being prepared for use in the oyster beds of the bay and adjacent waters.

Aiding Damsel in Distress Has Some Disadvantages

This Good Samaritan business is all very well, but it certainly runs up doctor's bills, William Cromwell reflects today. He is suffering combined injuries of a one-story fall and an attack by an infuriated dog.

A woman neighbor, who recently moved next door to Cromwell's house at 1424 Fifth street northwest, was locked out of her home yesterday and asked him for help. When Cromwell attempted to gain entry by the rear door a large dog attached itself to his trousers. He shook himself loose with difficulty and hit upon another idea.

Going to the second floor of his house, Cromwell tried to step from a window across to another in the neighbor's residence. He missed his footing and fell to the ground. A Casualty Hospital ambulance surgeon treated him at the scene for severe bruises, shock and other injuries. A private physician then took the case.

BICENTENNIAL ROW WILL COME BEFORE COMMITTEE MONDAY

Representative Bloom Has Nothing Further to Add to Statement.

DR. MARVIN DENIES ANY COMMERCIALISM

Situation Called Matter of Personalities by the Chairman.

All was quiet along the public front yesterday in the George Washington Bicentennial Commission fight, which was brought into the open the day before by Representative Sol Bloom, of New York, associate director of the national commission, in a statement caustically criticizing activities and plans of the District commission. These, he complained, were commercializing the bicentennial celebration.

He had nothing to add to what he had said the day before. Representative Bloom said the intensity of his feeling against what he described as commercialization of the celebration made it plain that some of the proposals of the District commission would have to be abandoned or there would be another clash.

Criticizes Concessions.

"I have nothing more to say about the matter," he said. "I felt that I had to say what I did say. I am opposed to the hawking of concessions about to the highest bidder. That is not good for the people of Washington nor for the business of Washington.

"Many things proposed by the District commission have been incorrectly attributed to the national commission and we have had many inquiries from people who believed this or that thing was our proposal.

"I was afraid that some of the things the District commission was doing might give a wrong impression. That was why I said what I did."

Meanwhile the District commission is marking time pending its next meeting on Monday. This meeting had been called before Mr. Bloom made public his criticism of "commercialism." Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, its chairman, will preside and various aspects of the program for the District celebration are to be discussed.

Denies Activities.

Dr. Marvin yesterday denied any commercial activities on the part of the local body and characterized the situation as "simply a matter of personalities" between Representative Bloom and Arnold Kruckman, executive director of the District group.

Dr. Marvin declared that it would not be possible for Kruckman to inject any commercialism into the bicentennial activities here without the approval of the commission and added that at any time the commission disapproved of the executive director's work "we shall dispense with his services." The commission chairman deprecated any suggestion that the national and local commissions were not in harmony.

3 SOLDIERS JAILED AFTER AUTO THEFTS

Alleged Band Thought to Be Broken Up by Arrests in Arlington.

An alleged band of automobile thieves, that has been operating in the District and Arlington County, is thought to be broken up with the arrest of three soldiers stationed at Fort Myer, Va. They were arrested yesterday morning by Arlington County police acting under orders of Sheriff Howard B. Fields.

Those arrested are Charles Pope, 20 years old; Steve Joebe, 25 years old, and E. D. Williamson. Pope and Joebe are charged with theft of an automobile and Williamson with carrying concealed weapons.

Joebe was questioned at the Virginia jail by Washington detectives and later brought here where it is said that he is charged with the larceny of an automobile.

Joebe and Pope were arrested as they were allegedly painting a roadster that is claimed to have been stolen here on October 13. They were apprehended on the old Multere estate in Fort Myer Heights by Officers William H. Thompson and John R. Eurke of the county force. According to Deputy Sheriff Harry L. Woodyard, the men confessed to the theft of the car and implicated Williamson, who was later arrested a short distance from the military reservation.

According to police, Pope is on 18 months probation for the theft of an automobile here, and when arrested it is claimed he was carrying a .32 caliber pistol. Williamson also had a revolver of the same caliber.

Utilities Body Workers Preparing Taxicab Data

Employes of the Public Utilities Commission began working overtime last night in order to prepare data for use at the taxicab hearing scheduled for Monday. They probably will be busy today and tomorrow as well.

Under the direction of Earl V. Fisher, executive secretary, they were compiling records to show at a glance the receipts of more than 3,000 operators since the rate war began.

Boy Is Hurt While At Play.

James Jefferson, 5, suffered a fracture of the elbow yesterday when he fell while playing on the grounds of Sibley Hospital. He was treated at the hospital and removed to his home at 13 M street northwest.

Body of Recluse Is Found in Room

Woman, 63, Was Last Seen Alive Tuesday; Refused Aid of Doctors.

Mrs. Levinia Kell, 63 years old, was found dead last night in a third-floor room of her home at 608 D street northwest. It is believed she had been dead for several days.

The woman, who is said to have lived alone, was last seen Tuesday. She had been in ill health, friends declared, but refused medical attention. She was found by Norman F. Bullock, a roomer in the house.

HEBREW EDUCATION COURSE IS DEVISED

Program Will Aim to Unify All Synagogues of City Through Classes.

The Jewish Education Association has inaugurated its schol activities for the school year 1931-1932 with a program unifying all the synagogues in an extensive educational program, under directorship of Dr. Michael M. Zarchin, prominent Jewish educator.

This association was formed as the result of the need for a more modern system of Hebrew education. Professional and religious leaders established the new school program in all effort to widen the scope of cultural activities in the traditions and learning of Judaism.

Dr. Zarchin, who is well versed in the most modern systems of education, holding three degrees, has a selected group of capable and experienced instructors who will conduct classes under his supervision in the various schools affiliated with the association.

The classes will be held five days a week in classrooms in the synagogues of the city. Classes are to be held after regular school hours, from 4 to 7 p. m. Courses in Jewish traditions and Bible history, and also courses in the Hebrew language will be given.

The temporary headquarters of the association is at the Jewish Community Center. Programs outlined by the central institution will be followed by the schools, which are located in seven of the local synagogues.

SECRECY SURROUNDS PROBE OF HOSPITALS

Report Today Promised in Quiz Into Deaths of Two Children Ignored.

Explanations by authorities of Washington hospitals in connection with refusal by certain of the institutions of treatment for two young children who subsequently died will be given out today. Superintendents of the institutions held a lengthy meeting yesterday at which press representatives were barred and a committee was appointed to prepare the explanations for publication.

No reason was assigned for extreme secrecy shown around the gathering, which was also attended by Director George S. Wilson, of the Board of Public Welfare, and representatives of the Community Chest. Organizations under the latter group contribute largely to support of the hospitals.

Yesterday's conference was held at the behest of Community Chest officials, and besides considering the refusal of treatment to the children, was also aimed at preventing recurrences of a like nature, it was said. The committee which is to prepare the report of the conference is as follows:

Dr. S. B. Ragsdale, superintendent of Columbia Hospital, which is not involved in the affairs, chairman; Dr. F. J. Eiseman, superintendent of Garfield; Miss Mattie Gibson, superintendent of Children's; Dr. Charles S. Cole, superintendent of Sibley; Miss Gertrude Bowling, chairman of the health committee of the Council of Social Agencies; B. B. Sandidge, superintendent of Emergency; Public Welfare Director Wilson and Mrs. W. A. Roberts, executive chairman of the Council of Social Agencies.

Children who died were Eva Mae Dixon, 5, who died of burns at Children's Hospital after being refused treatment at Sibley and Garfield hospitals, and Samuel Goddett, 9, who died of lockjaw at Gallinger after being turned away from Emergency and Children's.

A third child, who died recently after being refused admission to Children's and Gallinger—Catherine Zanelotti, 3—was the subject of a recent report by Dr. Edgar Bocock, superintendent of Gallinger, in which blame was denied.

2 Policemen Are Hurt As Precinct Car Crashes

Two policemen were injured yesterday when the radio car in which they were pursuing a taxicab was in collision with another machine at Twentieth and L streets northwest. Private John H. Gwinn had both ankles sprained and received lacerations of one leg. Private Ferdinand P. Martin, who was driving the police car, was bruised.

Fred L. Garlock, 3511 Davenport street, who was operating the other auto, was treated at Emergency Hospital for contusions of the forehead. Late last night Jordan Walter, of 1503 Massachusetts avenue southeast, reported to police that the taxicab which caused the crash belonged to him. He said that he had lent the car to a friend whose name he did not know.

Auto Victim Seriously Hurt.

Knocked down by an auto while attempting to cross Illinois avenue near Randolph street last night, Miss Laura Hayes, 50 years old, 210 F street northwest, was seriously injured. At Garfield Hospital she was found to have a possible fracture of the skull. Anthony N. Baumgartner, 52, 637 E street northeast, was driving the machine, according to police. He was not held.

Radio Audition Winners Selected

Four Young Men to Take Part in National Contests.

The four young men who will represent the District of Columbia in the fifth national radio audition of the Atwater Kent Foundation were chosen last night. The contestants were heard in the studios of Station WRC.

The winners were Edwin Charles Steffe, 509 Third street northwest, the National Cathedral Choir; Leonard Davis, 712 Fifth street northeast, announcer at Station WMAL; Robert Cushman, 4217 Thirty-eighth street northwest, and Kansas City, Mo., George Washington University Glee Club member, and Hugh Phelps Clark, 116 Thirteenth street northeast, of the Hamline M. E. Church choir.

These four boys and the four girls chosen night before last will compete here the week of November 1 to choose one boy and one girl for the New York auditions, November 23. The national finals have been scheduled for December in New York City.

Need for Continuation Of Social Work Stressed

Need for the continuation of the entire social work program of the city, including that of the so-called character building organizations, was stressed by Miss Olga Jones, member of the President's organization for unemployment relief, in a talk before the Community Chest Publicity Council at the Y. W. C. A. yesterday. Miss Jones spoke on "Relief vs. Character Building." She was introduced by Harry Hites, acting for Chairman Ernest S. Johnston, who was absent on account of illness.

Glover Park Citizens Join Halloween Fete

The Glover Park Citizens Association, holding its monthly meeting last night at Industrial Home School, voted to participate in the Washington Hallowe'en celebration and appointed a committee of fifteen to make arrangements. The group will hold its first meeting Tuesday.

H. Oden Lake presided at the meeting. Fifty-seven new members were voted into the community organization. Following the business session, the annual Hallowe'en masquerade and dance was held.

Clarendon Woman Improved.

Police Seeking Blonde Slugger

New Yorker Suffers Wound on Head From Blackjack Blow.

A blonde woman is being sought by police after she slugged Fred Fahmie, of New York, a guest at the Fairfax Hotel, with a blackjack in an attempt to rob him early yesterday.

Fahmie, who is from New York to be near the scene of the Laurel race meeting, he told police, met the young woman in a Ninth street "chop suey" cafe several hours before her attack.

Getting into Fahmie's car, the pair drove to a quiet spot in Georgetown where the young woman asked the New York man to stop. She then produced a blackjack and struck him over the head with it, inflicting a gash several inches long in his scalp. Fahmie grasped the weapon.

Fahmie told police that he jumped from the car and ran. A taxicab had pulled up behind, he said, and two men pursued him, but he outdistanced them. He was treated at Emergency Hospital and reported the affair to police. Fahmie described the young woman as about 20, of medium build and light hair and complexion.

Davis Requests Probe of Slate

Commissioners Appoint Committee on Protest; Hearing Tuesday.

A protest from Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, yesterday caused the District Commissioners to appoint a special committee to investigate charges of discrimination in favor of Virginia slate.

The dispute has been under way for several months, it was learned, between Maj. John C. Gotwals, Engineer Commissioner; Maj. D. A. Davison, Acting Engineer Commissioner, and Senator Davis and Pennsylvania slate interests.

Senator Davis in a recent letter charged that Maj. Davison and Municipal Architect Albert L. Harris seem "determined to use Buckingham, Va., slate on District buildings without making any investigation of the merits of slates from other districts."

The committee named by the Commissioners consists of S. B. Walsh, assistant municipal architect; M. D. Lindsay, assistant purchasing officer, and D. W. Kessler, a slate expert of the Bureau of Standards. A hearing on the controversy is scheduled for next Tuesday.

Tau Kappa Pi Fraternity Plans Dance on Dec. 28

A special meeting of Tau Kappa Pi Fraternity was held last night at the Hay-Adams House. Qualifications for membership were discussed and plans outlined for a dance at the Hay-Adams December 28. The dance committee consists of William Flading, Joseph Schram, Thomas B. Shipman, Lawrence A. Hartnett and Frank McGrath.

Artillery Troop Coming for Fete

Famous Massachusetts Organization Accepts Legion Invitation.

An invitation to participate in the Armistice Day celebration during the bicentennial activites in 1932 has been accepted by the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts. The invitation was extended by the American Legion bicentennial committee of Washington.

The artillery company was organized in Boston in 1638. It began with 20 charter members and served as a training organization during the early colonial period.

Among famous officers who were members were Israel Putnam, General Warren, of Bunker Hill fame; Paul Revere, John Adams, John Quincy Adams, Daniel Webster and Maj. Gen. Daniel Dennison. The present group includes many high-ranking officers of the United States Army.

Tank-Wagon Sales Of Gasoline Barred

Petition of 86 Operators of Filling Stations Is Deciding Factor.

Sale of gasoline from tank wagons on the streets was banned yesterday by District Commissioners following receipt of a petition signed by 86 filling station operators. Upon advice of Corporation Counsel William W. Bride the police regulation was amended.

Revised rule says "no motor vehicle shall be supplied or permitted to be supplied with gasoline on any public space or highway except in case of emergency. * * * Gasoline pumps shall be so located that a motor vehicle being supplied with gasoline shall be entirely on private property."

Filling station operators declare in their petition that the practice constituted a fire hazard, impeded movement of traffic and dirtied Capital streets. Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, chief engineer of the highway department, concurred in the statement that gasoline and oil cause deterioration of asphalt.

Jury Calls Death Of Woman Accident

Heart Attack Found Fatal to 60-Year-Old Wife of Retired Soldier.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death in the case of Mrs. Katie Knox, 60 years old, who was found dead early Wednesday in a third-floor room of her home at 1006 I street northwest.

The inquest was called after Deputy Coroner Joseph D. Rogers found a number of bruises on the woman's body. The jury reported that death was caused by a heart attack brought on by alcoholism, and the bruises sustained when she fell unconscious across a table leg.

Rabbi Urges Honor For Others' Faiths

Parity of Religions Only Good-Will Guaranty, Says Speaker.

Respect for integrity of other religions, and desire that each faith shall enjoy fullest opportunity for development and enrichment, was urged by Rabbi Abram Simon, of Washington Hebrew Congregation, in a sermon last night.

"I believe profoundly in good will," he said. "I am an ardent supporter of several good will societies. I have participated in good will seminars in our universities. I am local chairman of the Fellowship of Faiths," but always on one condition. That condition is not tolerance of one religion by another, but equality of all religions before God and man."

"Parity of religions is the only guarantee of good will. It makes proselytizing as unnecessary as it is insulting."

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

A DAY WITH THE JAPANESE FOREIGN MINISTER.

(Scene—The War Office in Japan.)

MINISTER (to secretary)—Well, how about it?

Secretary—About what, sir?

Minister—The weekly note from the League of Nations.

Secretary—You got that yesterday.

Minister—No; that was last week's note. It was a little late. This week's note hasn't been brought to my attention yet.

Secretary—I'm afraid it hasn't come then.

Minister—Now, don't be ridiculous. It must be around the office some place.

Secretary (looking through paper)—I'm quite sure it hasn't arrived.

Minister—The weekly note from the league always arrives. It's been arriving for months. Have you looked in your desk?

Secretary—I've just been through it.

Minister—And no ultimatum?

Secretary—Oh, yes; hundreds of 'em . . . but not any new ones that you haven't seen. After all, they're all the same. Couldn't you just read one of the old ones?

* * * *

MINISTER—Of course, I could. It isn't that the late note would contain anything new; it's merely that I'm so accustomed to getting a note each week that I can't get down to the regular routine until I get it out of the way.

* * * *

Secretary—Maybe Geneva has decided not to send any more notes to Japan.

Minister—Don't be absurd. Really, there are times when you talk like a child. Many things are possible in this world, but the failure of the league to send a note to Japan each morning is not among them. How about Mr. Stimson? Have we heard from him this morning?

Secretary—Not yet.

Minister—What time is it?

Secretary—It's nearly noon.

Minister—We generally hear from him before this. He must be slowing up. Maybe we ought to cable him.

Secretary—Cable Mr. Stimson?

Minister—Yes. If he knew we hadn't any communication from him as late as this today he'd do something about it at once, I'm sure.

Secretary—He generally sends his notes through Geneva, doesn't he?

Minister—Yes, but Geneva has so much correspondence to handle that it gets mixed up now and then. I'd be much better satisfied if Mr. Stimson would file his daily protests direct. Take it up with him, please.

* * * *

Minister—What have you there, my man?

Courier—This morning's notes from Geneva, Washington, London, Paris, Rome, and points west.

Minister—(With a sign of relief as he takes the basket and empties it into a fire place) Ah-h! Now we can go ahead with the daily routine.

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT.

IF there is a war between Japan and China, the Chinese should win it. Look at all the practice they've had.

Ohio State University has developed a vest pocket cracker that will sustain a man for several days. Now if some of us can only manage to get a vest.

IT'S ALL DONE BY MIRRORS.

Hi—On all brokers' statements you will read these lines: "This statement will help you in making out your income tax return this year."

Bulldog Bites Policeman Serving Writ on Owner

As if it knew the mission of the unfamiliar visitor, a bulldog bit Policeman Thomas Hayes, of the Eleventh Precinct, in the leg yesterday and caused a temporary delay in the policeman's plans to charge Eugenia Blakely, the dog's mistress, with failure to provide her pet with a license.

Equipped with a warrant, Hayes had gone to 2855 Nichols avenue southeast to serve the writ and was on the rear porch when the dog attacked him. Hayes limped back to the station and had the injury dressed. Then he returned to the house and cited the woman.

As a precaution against rabies or infection the policeman will have the limb treated today at the police clinic.
